Conflicting Stories At Pipeline Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conflicting stories concerning knowledge of plans to build the Grizzly Valley pipeline were told Monday to a provincial inquiry.

The president of Cheyenne Petroleum Ltd., Barry Hemsworth, told Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith that Cheyenne and its predecessor companies had been hoping for a pipeline for 25 years.

But he said he was shocked to learn of the government's decision because he "didn't expect a pipeline in the foreseeable future."

The inquiry also heard Arthur Cameron, former constituency secretary to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, say knowledge of the pipeline was "common knowledge" in Dawson Creek before the government's announcement.

Cameron, 24, a Dawson Creek travel agent and director of the B.C. Social Credit Party, said he bought 1,000 shares in Quasar Petroleum Ltd. at $8 a share three days before Premier Bennett made the announcement.

"It (the development) was common knowledge," he said.

But Hemsworth said he was shocked to be told of the government's decision at a private Nov. 8 meeting between the region's gas producers and George Lechner, president of the B.C. Petroleum Corp. (BCPC)

Hemsworth said his hopes had been buoyed by the BCPC's decision to advance Quasar $2 million in August, 1976, to perform final studies of gas reserves in the region, but a heated argument between lawyers for Quasar and BCPC at a meeting in Calgary in October convinced him a "pipeline was not forthcoming" in the near future.

Since Cheyenne was about to launch a $100,000 share offering to raise money, Hemsworth said he arranged for Cheyenne to invest in natural gas leases in Northern Alberta owned by Paramount Oil and Gas Ltd.

By a complex series of transactions, Hemsworth bought an interest in the gas leases which he, in turn, sold to Cheyenne shares, while Hemsworth received 488,500 shares for his role in the deal.

All shares involved in the transaction were escrow shares, which cannot be traded or sold without the approval of the Vancouver Stock Exchange. As a result of the deal Hemsworth won complete control of Cheyenne. He also promised to seek exchange approval for the sale of Paramount's shares.

Hemsworth testified he embarked on the Paramount deal in early November because he had "no knowledge there might be a pipeline." Even after the Nov. 8 meeting, he said, BCPC lawyers advised him "not to take the announcement too literally" because the project still needed National Energy Board approval.

Hemsworth's testimony was in sharp contrast to statements by earlier witnesses who said the government's intentions were evident to the public in early December. Some have said they felt a development was almost a certainty after the govern-

WONDERFUL MAKE-BELIEVE

A child's imagination is a wonderful thing and thanks to the efforts of members of the Victoria Society for the Recreation of Handicapped Persons, underprivileged youngsters are enjoying the wonderful world of make-believe through play-acting.

The Times and CJVI have joined forces to raise money for the society so its members can carry on their worthwhile work with not only handicapped youngsters, but with adults, too. See Page 17 for details on just what kind of work the society is doing.

Gandhi 'Accepts Verdict'

NEW DELHI (AP) — Repudiated by the Indian electorate, Indira Gandhi resigned today as prime minister, saying: "The collective judgment of the people must be respected." Her son, also defeated, said he was quitting politics.

With returns from the general election last weekend almost complete, Mrs. Gandhi's foes said they will have a majority of at least 126 seats in the lower houses of Parliament.

In a statement conveying her best wishes to the new government and offering the "constructive co-operation" of her Congress party, Mrs. Gandhi said she and her colleagues "accept the verdict unreservedly and in a spirit of humility."

"I have always said, and I do believe, that the winning or losing of an election is less important than the strengthening of our country and ensuring a better life for our people," she said. "My love and concern for the welfare of every section of the people remain unchanged.

SECRET POLL

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque says he has knowledge of secret polls indicating a "very substantial" number of Canadians favor "a new type of association, or new relationships" with Quebec should the province vote in a referendum to separate from the rest of Canada.

Outlook Bleak: Economic Panel

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Unemployment and inflation will both become worse before they start to improve, the Conference Board in Canada has predicted in a bleak scenerio for the Canadian economy.

In its quarterly report, released Monday, the Conference Board said unemployment will average about eight per cent for 1977, somewhat higher than in the first two months.

The rate would be the worst since the 1930s Depression.

At the same time, increased costs for food and energy, as well as indirect tax increases recently announced in provincial budgets, will result in an acceleration in the pace of inflation in early 1977.

The renewed upward pressure on prices should moderate towards midyear, and for the year as a whole the Consumer Price Index is forecast to increase by about seven percent, compared with 7.5 per cent in 1976.

The board states that its forecast does not account for any policy changes that might be implemented in the March federal budget.

It states that the slowdown in economic activity has yet to turn the corner towards renewed expansion.

Growth in total output will slow substantially in 1977, resulting in a widening gap between actual output and the potential production if the economy's capacity was fully utilized.

Real Gross National Product (the value of goods and services produced) will be only three percent in 1977, compared with 4.5 per cent last year.

Canada's economic performance is in marked contrast with that in the U.S. where the GNP gap has narrowed considerably in the last two years.

The Board says the situation in Canada bears a "rather disturbing resemblance" to conditions prevailing during the period from 1958 to 1961 when Canada experienced a prolonged recession.

The principle source of weakness in the economic outlook continues to be in investment spending.

Housing starts are expected to decline throughout 1977 to reach a low of 220,000 units seasonally adjusted at annual rates in the second half of the year.

Real investment spending on housing construction is expected to decline by about four per cent for the year as a whole.

The outlook is also weak for business investment in plant and equipment. A recent survey suggests that businessmen are not optimistic about the short-term outlook for the Canadian economy, and generally expect continuing weak demand conditions, and a high degree of excess capacity.

"These factors, together with an uncertain policy environment and the continuing poor performance of corporate profits, strongly suggest that a resurgence in investment spending is unlikely to occur," the board states.

Merchandise exports are expected to increase by 4.5 per cent this year following a growth of 12 per cent in 1976. However, merchandise imports are also likely to decline so, as a result Canada's merchandise trade balance is therefore likely to strengthen.

However, a further deterioration in the balance of trade in services is expected, with the service deficit measured in current dollars approaching $7 billion for the year.

3 SURVIVE CRASH NEAR HOPE

Three people who survived a light plane crash east of Hope Monday evening walked out of the bush today to flag down a semi-trailer truck on the Hope-Princeton highway.

Torg Hansen, Bob Israel and Barb Israel appeared to have only bruises and superficial injuries, according to an RCMP spokesman in Hope.

The three are in Hope Hospital.

"They were in good spirits," he said, "but I don't think the shock had worn off yet."

The Cessna 172 went down about 4:10 p.m., Monday, crashing into a mountain side near the Hope slide.

The three spent the night with the plane before making a two-hour hike through the damp bush to the highway.

3 Held In Knife Holdup

The robbery was the 33rd armed holdup or incident in the Greater Victoria area this year.

Saanich police Inspector Robin Stewart said the trio were arrsted at 11 p.m., 45 minutes after two men walked into the Pay N' Save station at 3477 Quadra and forced the 16-year-old attendant to hand over the cash in the till and his wallet.

Stewart said the three were arrested as they got out of a van parked at the Pacific Isle Motel, 626 Gorge Road East.

He said Langley RCMP had asked Greater Victoria police to watch for the van and its occupants, wanted for questioning in an armed robbery in that municipality last week.

Stewart said the three came over to Victoria on the weekend.

When police returned to the motel, they discovered three juvenile girls staying in a room the men had rented for the night.

The girls — two age 15, one 13 — had accompanied the men on the trip out from Calgary, Stewart said.

He said arrangements are being made to return the girls to their homes in Calgary.

Charged today with armed robbery were Julio Alexander Da Silva, 23, of Drumheller, Alta.; Terry Wayne Hager, 20, of Calgary and Allan Dale Hanson 17, of Calgary.

The three elected trial by judge without jury and were remanded in custody until Wednesday for bail hearing. A trial date will be set at that time.

'Boardroom Backbencher' Quits Ferries' Position

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

A former Social Credit candidate has quit as a director of B.C. Ferries saying he's fed up being a boardroom benchwarmer.

Graham Roberts, who lost out to NDP MLA Dave Stupich in the last provincial election, said he submitted his resignation to Transport Minister Jack Davis March 1.

Roberts, an automobile dealer in Nanaimo, charged that Davis is running the ferry operation "in the past."

"I never understood my role to be that of a boardroom backbencher," Roberts said.

Roberts said he has a concern for the problems facing the ferry corporation and its staff.

"I feel I can get better results and more action as an outspoken taxpayer and ferry user rather than a paid director," he said.

Transport Minister Jack Davis said he knows of no firm reason why Roberts resigned and "I wish he would reconsider."

Davis stressed that the board of directors is running the corporation.

"I'm a member of the board so I have a voice but the board is running things," the minister said.

Several days before the recent announcement of the slight reduction of ferry fares, Roberts informally announced the decision.

Davis said he has "privately expressed my displeasure" to Roberts about the information leak and said that might be one of the reasons for Roberts' resignation.

Premier Bill Bennett said Roberts' "independent point of view" was one of the original reasons for his appointment to the board.

He said it is normal for conflicts or disagreements to arise during the early stages of the corporation.

"However I still maintain full confidence in Mr. Roberts and would hope that he would reconsider any suggestion of withdrawing at this early, formative stage of the corporation," the premier said.

Carter Criticized

WASHINGTON (WP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said Monday he hopes that Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's criticism of the Carter administration "will not inhibit our conversations when I go to Moscow on Friday."

QUAKE SHAKES IRAN, ~60 REPORTED KILLED

TEHRAN (Reuter) — A strong earthquake struck Iran's southern coast region early today and 60 people were killed in a series of tremors around the port city of Bandar Abbas, the official radio reported.

No casualties have been reported so far from the city itself, which had been packed with more than 20,000 tourists celebrating the Persian new year.

The radio said the deaths were in the villages of Khorkou and Qale Qazi and that rescue teams were still working in other villages in the vicinity.

Damage also was reported from the towns of Minab and Jask, closer to the quake's epicentre in the Strait of Hormuz, but there were no details.

The official Pars news agency said the quake registered seven on Tehran University's open-ended Richter scale.

Shocks were felt on the Persian Gulf island of Kish, where the Shah of Iran and his family were spending the new year holiday.

'Racial Prejudice'

DELTA (CP) — Leaders of North Delta's Sikh community accused council Monday of racial prejudice following council's reluctance to allow reconstruction of a fire-damaged Sikh temple.

The Sikhs have been pressing council for permission to rebuild their temple since the two-storey building was damaged by fire earlier this year.

Mayor Tom Goode said Monday that rebuilding the temple would be a disaster and shouldn't be permitted because of the problems it would cause the neighborhood.

Outside the council meeting, Hardy Singh, temple secretary, said council's attitude showed "complete racial discrimination."

Various aldermen said that the temple was overcrowded and caused parking problems.

Harbans Singh Athwa, temple recording secretary, said there were no more than 100 people inside the temple at one time, and said the temple council will seek court action to force Delta to allow reconstruction of the temple.

Council decided to delay a vote on reconstruction for a week.

Resthaven Staff Get First Option

Staff at Resthaven Hospital in Sidney who apply for jobs at the Saanich Peninsula Hospital when the Sidney hospital closes next year will get "first consideration," spokesmen said today.

Both Jim Cumming, chairman of the peninsula hospital board, and John Clark, regional director of hospital planning, pounced on Sidney council for claims Monday night that Resthaven workers have been told they won't be rehired.

Construction is about to start on a 75-bed acute care wing at the peninsula hospital and when it is finished in the summer of 1978 Resthaven Hospital will close.

Cumming said a little inquiry by the council would have made it clear to aldermen that the hospital can't make a committment to hire everyone working at Resthaven.

The hospital administrator is legally required to handle hiring, the hospital doesn't have an operating budget for its yet-to-be-built wing and union contracts require that new jobs be advertised, he said.

Clark said council was "totally misinformed" on the matter and both Cumming and Clark said Resthaven has been regularly advised on the job developments and board policy.

Laurie Dunfield, administrator at Resthaven, confirmed that amicable discussions on the question have been held.

There are about 130 staff now at Resthaven. Cumming said he thinks the new wing at the peninsula hospital will involve hiring about 100 people.

There appears to be a legal avenue around a potential labor conflict for members of the church working at Resthaven.

Dunfield confirmed that Seventh Day Adventists don't join unions as a matter of religious practice. About half the staff now at Resthaven are church members.

Union contracts at the peninsula hospital require all staff to be members in one of four unions, the Hospital Employees Union, the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., the Health Sciences Association or the operating engineers' union, Cumming said.

But labor law also provides for people who don't want to join a union on religious grounds to be excused, with the equivalent of union dues going from their salaries to the union.

Wanted to Kill Amin

Times News Services

TORONTO — A self-described mercenary held up to 15 persons hostage at gunpoint in a downtown bank Monday in what an intermediary in the 12-hour drama said today was a bizarre plan to assassinate Ugandan President Idi Amin.

The gunman, who identified himself as Bob McLagan, 38, of Vancouver, was taken in handcuffs from the Bank Canadian National shortly after 11:30 p.m. EST after appeals from his brother and sister.

Throughout the 12-hour drama, the gunman told reporters by telephone that he had been a mercenary in the Congo in 1965 and wanted a C-130 Hercules to fly him to Uganda "so I can see my pal" Amin.

CFRB radio reporter Charles Doering, who was ushered into the bank at the gunman's request in the early hours of the incident, said McLagan told him he "admired," but had never met the Ugandan president.

After the drama ended, however, Doering said McLagan's real purpose was to kill Amin with two fragmentation grenades he demanded from police.

Outlook Bleak

Overall, little change is expected in the balance of trade deficit from its level of $4.3 billion in 1976.

Government spending on goods and services is expected to be another source of weakness in the economy in 1977, increasing by just over two per cent.

Moderating tax revenues should result in an overall government deficit of $5.5 billion in 1977 — reflection of general weakness in economic activity.

"At full employment levels of income, the government sector would be in a surplus position," the Board states.

An overall decline is expected in the growth of consumption, a reflection of the expected decline in the increase in personal income, resulting from both slower rates of increase in wages and salaries, and more modest employment growth.

The decline in the rate of wage increases should continue throughout 1977 as a result of the recent moderation in inflation, weak conditions in labor markets, and the impact of the anti-inflation program.

In 1977, average weekly wages are expected to increase by less than 10 per cent compared with 12.5 per cent in 1976.

In financial markets the weak demand for funds resulting from the overall poor performance of the economy has led to a pattern of gradually declining interest rates.

The decline in short-term rates is expected to continue in the months ahead, albiet at a more moderate rate than has been the case recently.

Alderman Attacks Secret Meetings

By PAT DUFOUR

Saanich Ald. John Mika said today council's credibility is threatened by its practice of meeting with developers behind closed doors even when no land acquisition is involved.

Mika is particularly disturbed about secret meetings that took place last week, one on Monday, the other on Thursday.

The first was with Garden City Developments, which owns property in the Seymour-Vernon area, destined to be Saanich Place and the municipal core.

Mika said it cannot be argued that land values might have been affected if the press had been allowed to report the meeting because the developer owns all the property.

Plans were discussed for the erection of several six, eight, nine and 11-storeys highrise projects. Mika said "some members of council said they wouldn't mind seeing a 14-storey building erected."

"I dont mind six-storeys but I'm particularly concerned about highrises in Saanich," Mika said.

The second meeting was with Abbey Glen, Toronto developers who are proposing a $20 million shopping centre for the Tillicum outdoor theatre site.

Challenged on the secret meeting by Mika at Monday's council meeting, Mayor Ed Lum said the reason it was held in-camera was Saanich and the developers have yet to arrive at "some evaluation on lands which are to be exchanged."

Mika said today this argument doesn't stand because the land-swap does not affect outside land values.

"Why should council's credibility be eroded by that approach," he added.

Mika, whose proposals for changes in the procedural bylaw in order to switch council meetings to evening sessions and open up more Saanich business to the public, have twice been delayed, said the amendments are necessary so dealings with developers and others "will be done in a formal way."

At the suggestion of Lum, the amendments were tabled until all members of council are in attendance.

Rap Thrown Back At School Trustees

Saanich Peninsula Recreation Commission chairman Bob Hope today counter-attacked members of the school board who have been criticizing selection procedure for commissioners.

Monday night several Saanich School Board members expressed anger that the board will have no voting power on the newly-formed recreation commission.

But Hope responded by attacking the trustees for their negative attitude and said "we need liaison and co-operation from the board, we don't need a constant barrage of criticism."

Hope said the trustees were left off the commission in order that the new body could be more efficient and less bureaucratic.

Hope said the commission had been comprised of 16 members when it was trimunicipal, going to nine when it became bi-municipal, and seven when the new commission was set up.

He said the seven-member commission is proving to be the most efficient by far.

"Why they (trustees) insist that there should be a vote from them we don't know," he said. "We don't sit on the school board and neither do local politicians."

Conflicting Stories

ment advanced Quasar the $2 million loan.

Commission counsel Ernest Alexander also read the inquiry a sworn affidavit submitted by Dick Lillico, director of information at B.C. House in London, England.

Lillico's affidavit disclosed that he bought 69,000 shares in August Petroleums for $16,000 in early August, 1976, before he left to take up his post in England. These shares were later consolidated on a five-for-one basis into 13,800 Cheyenne shares.

Lillico said his purchase was based on long-time interest in the Grizzly Valley region, not on discussions with Weeks.

"Weeks at no time gave me or attempted to give me any privileged or confidential information," said Lillico, "Nor did he encourage me or try to persuade or influence me in any way to purchase shares of August Petroleum or any other stock."

GANDHI ACCEPTS VERDICT

Since childhood, my aim has been to serve the people to the limit of my endurance. This I shall continue to do."

In a related development, Sanjay Gandhi, Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son who was defeated in his first bid for Parliament, said he is quitting active politics.

"I have been thinking about what to do," the national news agency quoted him as saying.

"There are other ways of serving the people than being in Parliament. I don't propose to be in active politics but propose to devote my energies to quiet, constructive work."

Meanwhile, two former leaders of the Congress party, Morarji Desai and Jagjivan Ram, competed to succeed Mrs. Gandhi.

Zaire Aid Poser

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration faces a tough foreign-policy decision in dealing with a new request from Zaire for military aid, including ammunition for U.S.-made weapons supplied to the African country in past years.

The state department said Monday that Zaire, battling an invading force from neighboring Angola, has made a supplementary request to the United States for aid.

Last week the administration authorized shipment to Zaire of two planeloads of non-lethal military equipment, including spare plane and truck parts, uniforms and communications gear. The shipment was valued at less than $2 million, the state department said.

Although state department spokesmen refused to elaborate on the latest request from the African country, it was reported that Zaire wants ammunition for U.S.-made rifles, mortars and machine-guns, as well as more spare parts.

There have been indications that the Carter administration is looking for another way to provide the materiel.

One possible method would be to transfer U.S.-made equipment to Zaire from a third country that already has received such U.S. aid. Another would be to press France and Belgium to increase their military shipments to the government of President Mobutu Sese Seko in Kinshasa.

Truck Flips, Driver Escapes

Fred Cooper, of 7390 West Saanich, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with head cuts and chest pains. He was treated and released.

Sidney RCMP said Cooper was rounding a curve when his truck hit a soft shoulder and skidded.

Showers were present along the B.C. coast overnight. In the Interior the cloud cover was variable with fog in some valleys.

A Pacific disturbance brought more rain to the coast this morning with cloud spreading across the Interior later today. The system will weaken as it moves inland tonight.

A band of mixed rain and snow will cross the Interior Wednesday morning and will be followed by showers of rain or snow in most regions. The present temperature pattern will persist along the coast and afternoon temperatures in the Interior will be slightly cooler on Wednesday in a few areas.

Greenpeace Quits Seals

MONTREAL (CP) — Lack of money, bad weather and hazardous ice conditions have forced 28 members of British Columbia's Greenpeace foundation to abandon their annual protest against the harp seal hunt, but foundation member Paul Watson says the campaign was not a waste of time.

Watson, a freelance journalist from Vancouver and leader of this year's Greenpeace expedition to the sealing area off the Newfoundland coast, said Monday that the protesters had managed to hinder hunters during the first two days of the hunt last week.

Speaking to reporters during a stop at Montreal's Dorval airport, Watson said the hunters had abandoned about five stacks of seal pelts because of protesters' intervention.

Watson said foundation members would travel to Ottawa today to try to meet Fisheries Minister Romeo Leblanc.

The protesters claim the seal herd is in danger of extinction, while Leblanc and other government officials say it is growing.

Meanwhile, at the seal-hunting site at St. Anthony, two Newfoundland MPs of different political parties have joined local groups to launch a petition that will ask Parliament to keep protesters from interfering with next year's seal hunt.

The petition idea came from a meeting here involving Jack Marshall, Progressive Conservative member for Humber-St. Georges-St. Barbe, Bill Rompkey, Liberal MP for Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador, and Roy Pilgrim, chairman of a local citizens' committee opposed to protesters.

Rompkey said the petition likely will ask the government to keep the seal hunting area off northern Newfoundland out of bounds to nonhunters, except those with permission from the fisheries minister to visit the ice or observe the hunt.

It also would ask that amendments be made to the Fisheries Act to allow charges to be laid against persons who interfere with the hunt or damage property or equipment of sealers.

Rompkey said the Criminal Code can only be applied within the 12-mile territorial limit. Amendments to the Fisheries Act could cover the remainder of Canada's 200-mile fishing zone, Rompkey said.

"The idea is not to keep people out but to prevent interference," Marshall said.

"The petition will have a psychological effect — it will give everybody in Newfoundland a chance to do something," Rompkey said.

He said the petition would be prepared and would begin circulating in Newfoundland as quickly as possible.

'CIRCUS STUNT' BY RAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The ride taken by Governor Dixy Lee Ray of Washington State through Rosario Straits Sunday has been called "a circus stunt" by Gary Gallon, executive director of the Society of Pollution and Environmental Control.

Gallon said Monday in a telephone interview from Ottawa that the Washington governor had "bought the oil industries' line" after she steered a 120,000-ton oil tanker through waters as narrow as one mile between the San Juan Islands.

Ray said tankers were safe for inland waters after taking over the helm of the Arco Fairbanks, loaded with about 80,000 barrels of crude oil from Iran.

Saccharin Ban Studied

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano Jr. has ordered a top-level review of the law that led to the ban of saccharin.

The furor over the ban, effective probably in July, of the only dietary sugar substitute still on the market, moved to the capital Monday as a House health subcommittee held hearings on the situation.

Reactions of members differed, but a majority seemed to feel that the law as it stands is too rigid.

The Delaney Clause in the 1958 Food and Drug Act, requires that a food additive be banned if "appropriate" tests show it causes cancer in animals or humans. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration announced the saccharin ban two weeks ago, because Canadian tests showed it caused cancer in rats when given in doses equal to 800 bottles of diet drink a day.

Rep. Barbara A. Mikulski called tests with such massive dosage "ridiculous" and said anyone drinking even a small part of this amount "would die of gas before they would die of cancer."

Meanwhile, a science researcher reported saccharin may also actually cause humans to gain weight rather than lose it.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of Ralph Nader's health Research Group, offered that opinion to a House health subcommittee reviewing the FDA's proposed ban on the artificial sweetener.

Wolfe backed the FDA's decision and said "no scientific study shows saccharin helps to lose weight."

Vancouver Has Highest 12-Month Price Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver consumers suffered through the highest rate of inflation in the past 12 months up to February, Statistics Canada reported Monday in a survey of 14 selected cities.

Victoria's prices are considered comparable to Vancouver's.

In February, though, consumers in Thunder Bay faced the worst price increases compared to January figures with a jump of 1.4 per cent.

Vancouver's prices rose seven-tenths of one per cent over January's, but 9.1 per cent in the 12-month period.

The federal agency said higher electricity, gas, shelter, fresh vegetable and pork prices pushed up the consumer price index in the Lakehead city. The national inflation rate between January and February was nine-tenths of one per cent.

Residents of St. John's, Nfld., fared best, with prices rising only four-tenths of one per cent between January and February. However, the 12-month rate for St. John's was 6.3 per cent.

Ottawa and Edmonton had the second highest inflation rate between the two months, with prices rising 1.2 per cent. Ottawa's 12-month rate was seven per cent and Edmonton's was 7.9 per cent.

Price increases for the other cities, with the 12-month rates in brackets, were as follows:

Halifax 1.1 per cent (5.7 per cent); Saint John, N.B. 1.1 per cent (6.4 per cent); Quebec City 1.1 per cent (7.5 per cent); Montreal 1.1 per cent (seven per cent); Winnipeg 1.1 per cent (7.6 per cent;

Toronto nine-tenths of one per cent (6.4 per cent); Regina nine-tenths of one per cent (8.7 per cent); Saskatoon eight-tenths of one per cent (6.8 per cent)and Calgary seven-tenths of one per cent (7.2 per cent).

Overtime Talks End

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owen Shime, the government-appointed arbitrator in the overtime dispute between the United Transportation Union and B.C. Railway, completed three days of hearings Monday without arriving at a settlement.

Shime a Toronto consultant, returned to Ontario where he will work out a binding settlement in the dispute.

Meanwhile, Glen Bowles, spokesman for the union, said the UTU is upset that a solution was not reached.

Growing Drought Worries China

HONG KONG (WP) — The general alarm over China's worsening drought has spread to the huge southern province of Kwangtung, increasing the threat to Chairman Hua Kuo-feng's plan for economic recovery.

An official Kwantung radio broadcast monitored here Sunday said, "The current situation of drought in our province is developing daily, seriously threatening the smooth progress of spring farming. Since November of last year there has been no heavy rain ... Some of the water levels are close to the lowest levels ever recorded."

The drought in usually well-watered Kwangtung, the province of 53 million people that surrounds this British colony, aggravates a severe national water shortage parching at least six northern Chinese provinces. The situation has become so serious that Peking's state council issues a circular Sunday for immediate action.

"At present the drought is extremely severe in areas along the Yellow and Huai rivers and a humber of places in northern China," the New China News Agency quoted the circular as saying. "Many places had no rain or snow for half a year. In some other places the drought continues to develop. It is greatly threatening the growth of the summer-harvested crops and spring ploughing and sowing."

BILINGUAL EXCHANGE

OTTAWA (CP) — A bilingual exchange program involving elementary and secondary school children in Ontario and Quebec was announced Monday by the secretary of state department.

The program, which allows for the twinning of classes by Ontario and Quebec school boards, will enable students to visit each other for four weeks in summer and two in winter, the department said in a statement.

Seven school boards are expected to take part during 1977-78, involving about 8,768 students. Twelve school boards involving about 11,152 students are expected to take part during 1978-79.

The program is to be financed on a cost-sharing basis by the secretary of state and the Ontario government.

Gale Stalls Search For Tanker Crew

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Squalls hampered the search for remaining survivors from a Panamanian tanker that broke apart after an explosion and disgorged thousands of barrels of oil into the Atlantic Ocean.

The U.S. Coast Guard said Monday it has rescued 27 of the 39 crew members, Italians and Uruguayans aged 25 to 65.

Several survivors said the ship, the Claude Conway, was split in two by a blast caused by welding equipment. They said the blast killed the captain, the radio operator and a number of other crew.

The ship remained afloat. Coast guard officials said they have found no bodies, but plans were made to board the stern portion today if rain and gale-force winds ease.

"From the information we have after talking with the crew here, there is nothing to indicate that anyone was left on board," said Lieut. Richard Wigger. "But until we get people aboard the stern part of the vessel there's no way to tell for sure."

The explosion came Sunday morning when the ship was 120 miles southeast of here on its way to the Bahamas.

A WAGON BUILT TO CARRY CARGO MORE PRECIOUS THAN GROCERIES.

The Volvo wagon, on the other hand, was designed to take a load off your mind as a parent.

Volvo realizes, for example, that it's impossible to keep both eyes on the road if you have to keep one eye on the back seat.

So to keep the kids in place, we provide you with things like child-proof door locks on all the rear doors. Including the back one.

And to virtually guarantee that you can focus your attention on the road at all times, we give you defrosters for the front side windows, and the rear window comes with its own wiper, washer, and defroster.

On the road, the first thing you'll notice is how quickly our overhead cam engine can put trouble behind you. Should trouble appear ahead, you'll appreciate the way our rack and pinion steering can help you steer clear of it. And our four-wheel power disc brakes can stop you short of it.

In spite of all these precautions, we realize that accidents do happen. So we've planned for the unplanned.

Where many wagons may feature a front end designed to impress the neighbors, the Volvo wagon features a front end designed to help absorb the impact of a collision.

Our side doors have steel tubes running through their insides for added protection, instead of imitation wood running down their outsides for frivolous decoration.

There's finally a wagon that shows as much concern for your children as you do.

$2 Billion in Trinkets

Ottawa's announcement that the defence department is searching for a new fighter aircraft at an approximate price of $2 billion appears to ruffle few feathers among critics of government spending. The rationale appears to be that waste or inefficiency must be routed out, but defence costs are sacrosanct, and a gleaming new fighter emblazoned with maple leaves is tangible evidence that Canada still counts. Unfortunately some of the government's worst examples of wasteful expenditures have been in the defence department beginning with the infamous Bonaventure refit through the purchase of the CF-5 support fighter.

Considering recent history perhaps we should approach the matter of a new fighter aircraft and its $2 billion price tag with some trepidation. At present Canadian fighter pilots are squeezing the last drops of useful life out of aging CF-101 Voodoos at home and CF-104 Starfighters in Germany, not to mention the remaining CF-5 close support aircraft in Norway. These are very different aircraft designed for special tasks. Now it's been decided to replace them with one aircraft. Unless the government plans to change some of the country's confusing defence roles no replacement will be adequate for all seasons.

In our North American Air Defence Treaty role, for example, we are required to provide four squadrons of high level interceptors. Canada's North Atlantic Treaty Organization role is predicated on a close support and reconnaisance air roles. Among the four American and two European fighter models under consideration, any number fit one role, but none do everything to perfection. The very nature of Canadian geography also dictates a special type of aircraft, incorporating long range and cold weather capabilities.

Yet the tactical problems in choosing a new aircraft costing upwards of $16 million apiece pale beside monetary considerations. There is a real question about whether we can afford a $2 billion defence expenditure — the most expensive single defence expenditure contemplated in Canadian history — when our army and navy continue to languish with outdated equipment and a dizzying number of assignments. Canada's total defence expenditure in the current fiscal year amounts to $3.975 billion. Are we going to lavish more than half our current budget on a single item that will once again be obsolete in 10 years or less? To put the cost in perspective, Ottawa budgetted $1.376 billion for the Unemployment Insurance Commission during 1977-78, a time of record unemployment. Should a nation with burgeoning domestic economic problems spend $2 billion on a single warplane in peacetime?

The answer is "no." To spend almost one-twentieth of the total national budget on 150 aircraft is the height of foolishness. According to the government, Canada's first defence priority is national sovereignty. Acquisition of the Lockheed Orion patrol plane will help our northern patrolling capacity, but where are the icebreakers and submarines that could operate in the Arctic ice floes to keep track of the Americans and Russians? And what about the specialized mechanized transportation needed for soldiers in the north? It would seem that a finite defence budget has been plugged into the infinite ambitions of the external affairs department.

This is not to suggest Canada default on its NATO and NORAD commitments. But we should renegotiate these obligations in line with our status as a small nation. Comparing the West German and Canadian economies it seems absurd that we have jet fighters stationed 4,000 miles from home at tremendous expense to fortify a rich nation while our vast northern frontier is virtually undefended. A $2 billion price tag on a trinket that will soon tarnish is a luxury Canada can't afford. What we need are some serviceable items to use around the home.

Pharmacare Fraud

The "universal" pharmacare program announced two months ago in the speech from the throne seems less and less universal and more and more a way for the provincial government to pinch a few more pennies from the elderly and handicapped and those on welfare.

The program has not been formally announced, but a spokesman for the B.C. Pharmacists' Society which has been negotiating with Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm's department for the introduction of an expanded plan dropped some disquieting hints on the weekend.

Charles Willett said he believes the government plans to pick up only 80 per cent of the cost of prescription drugs, and then only after the applicant has paid for the first $75 worth himself ($25 in the case of senior citizens and other needy individuals).

Now, pharmacare provides free prescription drugs or at a much-reduced cost, to those over 65, the handicapped or those on welfare. The elderly, who make greatest use of the program, now can take their prescriptions to a pharmacy and walk out with their needed drugs without paying anything. The pharmacist bills the government and is in turn paid a couple of months later.

Under the Vander Zalm plan it seems that they will have to pay cash for their prescriptions (how many senior citizens do you know with a spare $30 or $40 to pay for a large, expensive drug prescription at an inconvenient time?), save up the receipts, then send them into the government for a rebate.

If the plan is to be truly universal, then the pharmacare program that now exists will have to be expanded fourfold, with all the extra bureaucracy and delay that will entail.

There should be a simple test for any new pharmacare plan — will it make it easier, or at least not any more difficult, for those now getting drugs to continue getting their prescriptions?

The outlines of the Vander Zalm plan shaping up suggest it won't. There is only a $1.8 million increase in the budget for pharmacare, and common sense tells one that to increase coverage to four times as many people will mean less benefits for those already covered.

Even a $25 deductible, as low as it sounds to most people, will deter some elderly people and those on welfare on very tight budgets from buying necessary drugs. It happened before pharmacare was instituted. It will happen again.

The ironic thing about the Socred promise is that there has been no measurable public demand for a universal program. Most families can afford to buy their own prescription drugs, but to make pharmacare a universal plan, the government will cut back on coverage for those whose pharmacare assistance is sometimes a matter of life and death necessity. It makes no sense.

Crisis Will Go On, and On

OTTAWA — So you're tired of trying to figure out what Quebec really wants, of scanning the polls for separatist strength, of holding up to the light each declaration by Premier Rene Levesque in order to see what may be hidden between the lines, and want instead to worry about something else, like inflation or unemployment, or hockey, or floods, or drought.

Too bad. In one, two, five, perhaps even 10 years' time you'll still be fixated by the crisis of Confederation.

"The will to exist as a nation," said Prime Minister Trudeau at his press conference last week, "is going to have to be expressed over a long, long time."

Bad Cop, Good Cop

As depressing as the probable duration of the crisis is, it's impossible to foresee any way in which it can be shortened. Even a decisive victory for Confederation in Quebec's referendum on separation wouldn't end the tension. "If there's a well-organized, dedicated minority of 40 per cent," said Trudeau, "they're not going to lie down and give up." On the same day Trudeau spoke, Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau made exactly this same point in a speech in Toronto.

Two events last week demonstrated the way in which the Confederation crisis is going to go on and on and on.

"Sovereignty, independence . . . to get out of the 109-year-old federal regime." Nothing that Levesque said was new—his timing was. He slammed shut the door to compromise that had been opened a crack a fortnight ago by Parti Quebecois spokesmen who had told English-speaking audiences their goal was not to "fracture Canada." Bad cop, good cop, bad cop, in unending rotation.

The second event showed that the fracturing of Canada has already begun. At a world water conference in Argentina, Quebec Environment Minister Marcel Leger addressed the meeting, not as a Canadian (the passport that had taken him there) but as a representative of Quebec alone. At another international meeting in Brussels, Quebec Education Minister Jacques-Yvan Morin, likewise a member of a Canadian delegation, spoke with a Quebec fleur de lys flag on his desk.

Trudeau's response was instant, and tough. If Quebec officials, "behave as though the province has an international personality . . . they won't be invited to come along on future international delegations."

Since Quebec won't yield and since Ottawa can't—Alberta, for example, could claim an equal right to speak its own mind of petrochemical tariffs at the Geneva trade talks—future Canadian delegations will be composed in part of empty seats.

Wrangles about diplomatic protocol are sterile, but effective. Quebec puts out the message that it's different. In case any English-Canadians still are in doubt, Quebec during the past fortnight has demanded a "determinant" role in immigration, has pulled out of a long-planned study of a national power grid because Ottawa is involved along with the other nine provinces, and has dismantled, without consultation, its wage and price control machinery.

The temptation for English-Canadians will be, not to yield to this pressure but to fulfill its purpose by saying: "To hell with them." The strain indeed already is taking its toll. The recent Gallup poll which reported that 22 per cent of Quebecers now favor separation found that 14 per cent of English-Canadians, a smaller proportion but not drastically so, think the same way.

Within Quebec itself, more and more English-speaking Canadians, afraid of uncertainty, and even more of second-class status, are voting with their feet, due to be announced shortly is yet another corporate move from Montreal. Dominion Bridge will shift its engineering department to Toronto. As English-Canadians leave Quebec, so will we become two solitudes in physical (as well as psychological) fact, and so inexorably, two nations.

Survive by Caring

Can English-Canada endure the pressure, Trudeau was asked. "The concern is a real one," he replied, "To quote Abraham Lincoln, there has to be a re-dedication to union."

The gloom isn't unrelieved. Some people are re-dedicating themselves to the union. A new organization, Commitment Canada, has just started up. Its purpose, explains Chairman Allan Lawley, a Toronto businessman, "is to do things for people, with people" like a national youth music festival in Ottawa, exchange vacations and projects to record local history through the stories of old people.

Commitment Canada is different because all its workers will be volunteers and all its money will be raised privately. "It's an effort," says Lawley, "to get back to caring about each other." Political insights and inspired constitutional formulas all will be useful; if we are to survive the crisis it'll be caring, and commitment, that will carry us through.

Nation of Sheep

I would like to say a few words concerning the defence of Margaret Trudeau in regards to her recent antics with the Rolling Stones. There seems to be a loud outcry about the wife of our prime minister doing such a thing. To me the whole question here is; does an individual (or a group) have any right to their own unique identity, or must we all conform to some kind of a standard that will appease the masses? The Canadian people seem to be saying that Margaret should play her role as the prime minister's wife and completely forsake her own life.

I personally feel that Margaret Trudeau has just achieved more than Pierre could ever do. She has aroused an interest in people like myself, who have become completely apathetic towards politics. If Margaret has the guts to rebel against the role "expected of her," maybe there is some hope for us.

I would like to see the rest of us Canadians develop this kind of backbone. Without our own unique individual identity we are nothing. For us all to play our roles as the masses expect us to do, we will eventually end up — total conformist plodding nation of sheep. — J. Hogan, Victoria.

Clever Move

The recent move by the government to give pensioners rental aid up to $70 is a very clever one. It accomplishes four objectives:

1. It predisposes the senior people in favor of the government. 2. It makes all the people believe that the government is doing something good for the seniors. 3. It makes the landlords happy. 4. It tends to palliate the shock that can result from the removal of rent controls in the near future, once again a landlord-pleasing move.

A closer look at the situation reveals that point No. 2 is really only an apparent benefit to the seniors. The increased rental aid merely goes through the pensioners to the landlords. The landlords get the money, the pensioners get the blame for increased taxation. The move is not a rental subsity at all for seniors but a profit subsidy for landlords.

Their move to assist landlords after assisting the other party support groups — mining companies, insurance companies, oil companies, etc. — was more or less expected.

Speak Up

I wish to commend you on the lead editorial in the Victoria Times of March 9, Morally Handicapped.

I sincerely hope that this provincial government will not "rest easily" when handicapped people in wheel chairs are reduced to public demonstration to protest their financial predicament.

But it is up to us, the electorate, to speak out and to say no as loudly as possible. After all, the government is made up of our representatives who have been given the mandate by us to govern this province.

What manner of society will we have in British Columbia after such draining away of money for social services?

I feel that I must protest or accept some of the blame for the misery, suffering and even violence which may accure. — Rosamund Sorensen, 1564 Gladstone Avenue.

Ghost Town

I must say that I agree with the letter from Terry Reksten (March 14) which pointed out that Fort Street will soon lose not only another landmark, but also more of its character as a pedestrian shopping street.

I have always enjoyed shopping on Fort Street. The variety of small shops and markets along the street is one of the things that lures me downtown.

It will be depressing to see yet another blank space along that once pleasant street and it will be equally depressing when the new Royal Bank building is built, and more interesting retail space is replaced by the bland anonymity of street level banking offices.

Who is advising the Royal Bank? Don't they realize that downtown Victoria will soon have to compete with two major shopping centres planned for Saanich? Don't they know that our city's character is one of the most important and saleable assets it has? Who is going to bank in their new office when downtown Victoria has become a ghost town, shunned by both residents and tourists alike? — Karen Wyatt, 805 Linden Avenue.

Fake Fur Offer

The seal hunt protest by environmentalist groups has produced two main points of argument for continuing the hunt, these being maintaining employment for Newfoundlanders and protection of fishery resource.

On the first point, may I stress that a Swiss millionaire by the name of Franz Webber, an ardent conservationalist, has offered to build an industry in Newfoundland to produce artifacts using imitation seal fur. (This, by the way, is how he became a millionaire in Europe.) Surely this is a very legitimate alternative for the Newfoundlanders and is so much more peaceful.

To the second point may I say that if Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc is concerned with the fishery resource in the Grand Banks surely he can see that a few modern trawlers gorge more fish than the population of harp seals would. Trawlers take the "best" in ridiculous numbers. Harp seals feed on capelin which for years was considered a "junk" fish but in recent years because of declining numbers of high quality fish is now being fished for human consumption. Surely the matter lies in mismanagement of human fishing, not in the supposed voracious appetite of harp seals. To place the blame on innocent seals is a cop out to the nth degree.

Is it not time that we all, using our supposed high intelligence, see what is actually happening and get our heads together and stop this insanity? To me the fault lies with man not harp seals.—Bob Eichel, 6-1265 Grant Street.

Their Own Fault

I was both shocked and disgusted when I read a letter to your newspaper recently, abusing Bill Vander Zalm, Human Resources Minister.

That correspondent compared Mr. Vander Zalm with a Nazi. I do not know if the minister's parents are still living here in B.C., but if they are, I wonder how they would feel on reading such a tirade? Mr. Vander Zalm himself although only a small boy no doubt recalls the terrible hardships which he and his parents and family endured during the years of the German occupation of the Netherlands. I, personally, know of people who suffered, and the very poorest family on welfare in B.C. at this time is living in luxury by comparison with conditions endured by Mr. Vander Zalm in his childhood.

It is my belief that the minister is anxious to have sufficient funds for all in real need, and especially if a great depression should come. I applaud him for declaring war on all the spongers and loafers and cheaters, of which there are still plenty in this province.

I myself am a pensioner in the poverty bracket" income, but never, even in the 1930s, depended upon the government for help. It's my opinion that the unemployment among so many between 18 and 24 is clearly their own fault, because they just want a pay cheque without working for it. — Justice.

The Hidden Side Of U.S. Arms Sale

By MICHAEL T. KLARE

(Klare is author of War Without End: American Planning for the Next Vietnam and is visiting fellow at Princeton University's Center of International Studies. He wrote this for the Washington Post)

In fulfilment of a major campaign pledge, President Carter has taken the first steps towards enacting a cutback in U.S. weapons sales abroad. Unfortunately, he has so far said nothing about restricting the most dangerous aspect of the weapons trade: the sale of arms-making technology to foreign producers via co-production and licensing arrangements.

Documents acquired through the Freedom of Information Act show that the defense department is currently engaged in some 40 major co-production projects, worth an estimated $8.5 billion in direct outlays. Private U.S. firms are involved in another 75 ventures through commercial sales channels, and the total keeps rising.

U.S. arms manufacturers were first encouraged to participate in co-production projects in the early 1950s, when Washington sought to mobilize West Europe's industrial might for the global struggle against communism. Beginning with maintenance and overhaul of U.S. aircraft stationed abroad, co-production has progressed to the point where the F-16 fighter program will involve fabrication of other components by a consortium of 85 firms in Belgium, Holland, Norway and the United States.

Developing nations, in an effort to promote arms self-sufficiency and technological advance, are claiming an increasing share of co-production. Taiwan is building F-5E jet fighters with assistance from the Northrop Corp.; Iran has commissioned Bell Helicopter to help develop a domestic helicopter industry.

Legally, all co-production projects involving American known-how must contribute to U.S. foreign-policy objectives. But this requirement is often overlooked in the interests of corporate profit or diplomatic expediency.

The lack of adequate safeguards makes the sale of American-designed arms to nations on the U.S. embargo list, such as South Africa and Rhodesia, almost inevitable. In the course of a six-month investigation, I encountered the following abuses:

- Aeronautical Macchi, an Italian affilate of Lockheed Aircraft International, has sold its licence-produced Lockheed AL-60 transport planes to the South African and Rhodesian air forces, which use them for supply, paratroop and reconnaissance missions.
- Several other Italian-made aircraft in the South African inventory — including the AM-3C transport, the C-4M utility plane, the AL-60 and P-166 patrol craft — are powered by Avco-Lycoming engines produced under licence by Piaggio of Genoa.
- Construzioni Aeronautiche Giovanni Agusta, the leading Italian Helicopter producer, is now delivering Boeing CH-47 Chinook troop-carrying helicopters to the Libyan Air Force. Libya has been on the U.S. embargo list since 1973 because of its participation in the October War and its suspected role in supporting international terrorist organizations.
- The congressional ban on military sales to Turkey (a penalty for Turkey's intervention in Cyprus) did not halt deliveries of the Lockheed F-104 Starfighter to the Turkish Air Force by Aeritalia, Lockheed's Italian partner. According to one state department officer, agencies responsible for enforcing the embargo discovered that more than 175 foreign firms were authorized to sell U.S. military hardware to Turkey — in most cases without obtaining further approval from Washington.

Naturally, the greatest danger of abuse will remain in the advanced countries, but the problem is bound to spread as new producers enter the arms trade. U.S. officials have already clashed with Israel over alleged misuse of American technology in arms produced for export in an effort to reduce mounting balance-of-payment deficits.

Collaboration with developing countries can lead to a variety of problems. Fostering capital-intensive military industries in otherwise impoverished societies diverts resources away from other critical projects. Creating a technical-military elite in the midst of widespread poverty deepens the divisions between rich and poor. Strengthening the repressive capabilities of entrenched militarized regimes reduces the incentives for compromise and so increases the likelihood of violent change.

In Iran, for example, U.S. firms are helping to build a diversified military-industrial complex. Northrop is a co-partner with Iran's government in the formation of Iran Aircraft Industries Ltd., which plans to produce U.S. warplanes under licence, and Hughes is helping to build a missile factory in Shiraz. And while the Shah has ordered cutbacks in social and educational spending because of less-than-anticipated oil revenues, he is pushing ahead with these costly arms schemes.

The resulting imbalance in development spending has sparked resentment and, along with the repressive nature of Iranian society, helps to explain the rise in terrorist action.

As the case of Iran demonstrates, there can be a significant "feedback" effect on the shaping of American policy. Since Iranian schools cannot train new scientists and engineers fast enough to man the new weapons industries, and since many foreign-trained Iranians are reluctant to return home, Tehran has had to recruit thousands of American technicians. Some experts predict that as many as 50,000 American nationals will be working on military-related projects in Iran by 1980.

A deployment of this scale — whether or not the American are in uniform — constitutes a major U.S. military commitment to the current Iranian government. This will surely lead to increased hostility on the part of anti-government Iranians (last summer three U.S. military technicians were assassinated by an underground group) and further commit Washington to the survival of a dictatorial regime.

If American policy-makers were ever to clash with the Shah, the thousands of U.S. technicians could, as a Senate Foreign Relations Committee study noted, be held as "hostages" by the Iranian government.

All this suggests the need for very tight controls on the export of technology to foreign arms producers. The only specific legislation covering such ventures, Section 42 of the Foreign Military Sales Act, is notably lax. It authorizes co-production projects when "such production best serves the foreign policy, national security, and economy of the United States."

Such drterminations are left to the secretary of state, while all sales of finished military products worth $7 million or more must receive independent approval by Congress. Given this lack of guidance, it is not surprising that the State Department tends to be relatively tolerant of co-production requests (except in cases involving very advanced technologies, normally reviewed by the National Security Council).

If the administration is sincere in its desire to curb the flow of conventional arms, it must impose restrictions on the sale of know-how as well as on finished weapons.

As J. Fred Bucy of Texas Instruments has noted, "The release of know-how is an irreversible decision. Once released, it can neither be taken back nor controlled."

U.S. Unions Fight 'Right to Work'

By A. H. RASKIN
New York Times

Battle lines are being drawn for the fiercest conflict over revision of the federal labor laws since Congress passed the Taft-Hartley Act over President Truman's veto 30 years ago. The decision by the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations to press for federal nullification of state "right to work" laws and for other legal changes aimed at making unions stronger opens a fight that is as much social and political as it is economic.

For labor the stakes are high, but so are the risks. The AFL-CIO's goal is to swing the pendulum on government guarantees of freedom to organize and bargain collectively back to where it was when labor's Magna Carta, the Wagner Act, was approved as a foundation of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal of 1935.

Erasing all or most of the restraints put on unions by Taft-Hartley and the Landrum-Griffin Labor Reform Act of 1959 is viewed by the federation chiefs as the key of the Sunbelt states, where unions have always been weakest and where most of the nation's future economic growth is likely to be.

But the sweeping nature of the AFL-CIO legislative package, the most comprehensive the merged labor movement has ever put forward, is already bringing mobilization of an unusually diverse front of potential opponents not only from industry but also from other groups with substantial political influence. The result could be a clash so divisive that it might impede joint labor-management approaches to programs for economic recovery and inlfation control.

To reduce that danger, George Meany, the federation's president, has stressed that labor has set no deadline for achieving all its legislative goals and that it is not asking President Carter to lobby for its bills. However, the federation is counting on Carter to fulfill his campaign promise to sign a "right to work" repeal measure if labor does push it through Congress, most of whose members were elected with strong union support.

The labor drive to get rid of Section 14(B), the clause in the Taft-Hartley Act that permits the states to prohibit the union shop or other forms of compulsory union membership, confronts the White House and Congress with the most emotional of all labor issues.

Twenty states, including Carter's home state of Georgia, have such bans on requiring workers to join unions as a condition of holding their jobs.

The extent to which the South, from which the president draws much of his electoral strength, continues to prize "right to work" laws was underscored in the November voting in Arkansas. Its citizens backed Carter by a margin of roughly 2 to 1. In the same balloting they rejected a "right to work" repeal proposal by almost the same margin.

The National Right to Work Committee, which works as hard to outlaw the union shop as labor does to spread it, says the Meany call for repeal of Section 14 (B) has already brought action in five states, North and South Dakota, South Carolina, Virginia and Wyoming, to "memoralize" Congress to preserve the provision.

The last serious attempt to kill the section was frustrated in 1966 through a successful filibuster by the late Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, R.-Ill. The Right to Work Committee predicts that it will stop repeal again in the Senate, but union chiefs are confident that overwhelming Democratic votes will enable them to win in both houses.

The unions got an unexpected boost three weeks ago when Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, the Republican whip in the House, told a business group in his district that "right to work" laws were helping the South steal industry from the North and that it might be wise for the Republican party to review the wisdom of its advocacy of Section 14 (B). Such a review might also help build a new constituency for the Republicans by convincing unionists that they were not all ogres, Michel said.

The likelihood that any sizable number of Republicans will translate Michel's suggestion into votes for "right to work" repeal is considered slim. Indeed, it is improbable that his own vote will switch when the floor test comes.

Among employers the move to undo the main provisions of both Taft-Hartley and Landrum-Griffin is shattering a long period of detente in battles on Capitol Hill over labor law reform.

Many of the nation's largest corporations have held aloof from efforts to lobby for more restrictive labor laws in the interest of developing more harmonious relationships with organized labor on general economic issues and on import controls.

One of the leaders in that attempt at greater co-operation, R. Heath Larry, newly installed chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, deplored the federation's legislative initiative.

"This is a time when labor and management should be sitting down together and trying to get answers to the problems of an economy that is running out of opportunities for real growth," Larry said. "The union program goes in exactly the wrong direction. They have dusted off everything they have wanted for 50 years. It all points to compulsory unionism for everyone, regardless of choice."

Larry, vice-chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said that industry would have to "get our troops lined up again" for a fight on Capitol Hill. He said that the manufacturers' association, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the Business Roundtable, a co-ordinating body for the biggest of big businesses, would form a united front with other trade groups.

But the opposition to the AFL-CIO program will not end there. The national associations representing governors, mayors and other local government officials are expected to close ranks in opposition to labor's bill for federal collective bargaining standards for public employees, especially since the federation wants the measure to include a right to strike for police and firefighters.

Terror Lingers in Haiti

By GREG CHAMBERLAIN
Manchester Guardian

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti—The silent battle between the United States and France for Haiti's heart, mind and pocketbook is being fought out just now at the level of garbage disposal, down temporarily from the heights of school construction, hastily built new roads, cultural agreements, sales of arms and helicopters, and modernising of airports.

The Americans have got in first with a fleet of monster red collection trucks. The French, through a Spanish subsidiary firm, are coming up from behind with a plan for what to do with all the rubbish. The cold war extends to the two foreigners, one American, one French, both white, who are resident correspondents for the U.S. and French news agencies. Between them they have an effective monopoly on all spot news which gets out of the country. Both are loners who settled in Haiti years ago. Each hints that the other is a spy.

Haitians darkly accuse them of everything. Conspiracy theories reign supreme. The pair would fit comfortably into an updated version of The Comedians. But Graham Greene is still persona non grata in Haiti, especially since his recent public appeal to the Duvaliers to release political prisoners.

Mere Catherine, who starred in the book as queen of the Port-au-Prince madams, still prospers. No longer from fleshpots, though. She presides quietly now over a popular little "straight" guesthouse in the suburbs, on land reputedly bought for her by a long-departed American boyfriend.

Large cages filled with monkeys, pink flamingos, a peacock, and cats entertain her new kind of clients, in a shady garden of mango trees Now around 50 and of immense girth, her size and booming voice strike terror into her employees when necessary She still sees all, knows all. But she says little, from years of enforced habit. "I remember Mr. Greene," is all she will say. The past is not her favorite subject. For years the government refused to include her in their official hotel listings.

Port-au-Prince is kind to refugees as long as they're not too political. Carlos Leschhord, last survivor of the U-boat crew which sunk the Lusitania in 1915, lived in the hills above the city for more than half a century until he died last year.

Marion Saul, a vigorous little old lady of 84 from New York, has lived nearly 60 years in Haiti since becoming a rich widow at 21. She danced with the dwarfish army officer Rafael Trujillo, she recalls, when he used to cross the border from the Dominican Republic for dirty weekends in the twenties just before he brutally took over that country for 30 years.

There was, until he died recently, John Brunne, a 79-year-old Canadian dreamer, guest of Mere Catherine's who handed out dimes in the street by day and schemed by night how to make a million bucks with his senior Citizens' International Pension Plan, of which destitute Haitians were to be the beneficiaries. But it never got off the ground.

DUVALIER
. . . revolution 'delayed'

There is always, of course, Martin Bormann. "He lives in a hut in the back country," says the American news agency man. "The only thing I need now is his fingerprints."

Port-au-Prince and Haiti have always generously accommodated the bizarre and the eccentric. Ten years after Greene, the city's power to mystify, puzzle, thrill and chill remains. And though the level of political violence has diminished and is anyway hidden now from the foreigner, the message of a past era of terror lingers, surreal, insistent and uncompromising still, if now a little overgrown with the puny weeds of the new "liberalism."

"Vive le Docteur Francois Duvalier," says the writing on a downtown wall, "le Christ Haitien, Chef de l'Eglise Nationale." And more bluntly, daubed on the side of a slum shack: "Voulour detruire Duvalier, c'est vouloir detruire Haiti."

You can hear Cuban radio stations loud and clear all over Haiti. Castroland is but 50 miles distant, across the Windward Passage. But the strait is sanitized. The same marines, who caused a stir when they slipped into Port-au-Prince harbour overnight aboard a giant U.S. aircraft carrier a few days after Papa Doc's death, police the passage round the clock from the nearby US naval base at Guantanamo, which clings incongruously (and forgotten by the world) like a magnetic mine, a warning to Cuba's easterrn underbelly.

Its admirals and officers are always in and out of Port-au-Prince on R and R. Squads of Marine Corps engineers sometimes come to repair bridges and roads in Haiti. "Let's go! Goddam! Hey Joe! Give me one dollar!" the Haitians yell at them good humouredly. The revolution is not yet.

Funds for University Research Will Not Increase—Faulkner

EDMONTON (CP) — Hugh Faulkner, federal minister of science and technology, did not have good news for university researchers Monday.

Faulkner said a relatively healthy increase in federal research grants in 1977-78 doesn't mean the government will be as generous in the future. It is unlikely the government will support research as well as it did during the 1960s.

The government has proposed to increase grants for medical, scientific and social sciences research by 12 per cent.

Dr. Harry Gunning, University of Alberta president, said this is a good step but not enough to repair the damage to Canada research capabilities caused by six years of tight federal spending on research.

The restrictive policy has led to the break-up of several major research groups, especially in medical research, Gunning said. And it takes time to rebuild these groups and retrain scientists.

What is needed is more than one year of increased funding, he said. He suggested several years with 15 per cent increases in funding while the inflation rate is held at six per cent.

Gunning and other university officials met with Faulkner.

Faulkner said in an interview the proposed increase which is more than an overall seven per cent hike in government spending showed a recognition of the need to encourage research.

Faulkner said Canada can't afford to spend its research dollar on all areas of research, so he has proposed keying on certain national priorities for developing expertise.

Canada must boost its capability to do its own research and develop its own technology to protect its sovereignty, he said.

One of the many consequences of close ties with the United States has been a heavy importing of U.S. technology, he said. In return, Canada has traded depleting natural resources and allowed considerable foreign investment.

"It's short-sighted to build a standard of living trading off resources," Faulkner said.

BBB QUESTIONS MOON CHARITY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vince Forbes of the Better Business Bureau says his organization is asking Vancouver-area municipalities not to give charitable licences to followers of Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon.

Forbes said that Moon's U.S.-based Unification church has applied for a licence in Burnaby. He said the Moonies apparently have rented a suite to serve as headquarters for a campaign to raise money for a youth centre in B.C.

Mayor Tom Constable of Burnaby said that the licence application — made in the name of the Holy Spirit Association of Seattle — has been referred to staff for investigation.

Armed Theft Case Will Be Reopened

The case for the defence will be reopened in an armed robber trial in Victoria county court.

The move Monday came in the wake of an unusual turn of events last week in the trial of 23-year-old James Donald Meanney, accused of robbing the Mixer Shop in Nootka Court Oct. 27 of $120 while armed with a knife.

Meanney, who called no evidence, was found guilty by Judge M. L. T. Drake.

But when Drake asked him if he had anything to say before sentence, Meanney protested his innocence and said he could provide an alibi. Drake noted he had given judgment but ordered that it not be officially recorded pending an adjournment until Monday.

Meanney's new lawyer, Douglas Christie, sought and was granted permission Monday to reopen the case, saying it was "in the interest of justice to allow the accused to give evidence where any possibility of miscarriage may occur."

Drake adjourned the case

BEFORE THE JUDGE

The second of two men facing three charges after they were arrested last Tuesday morning at Shelbourne shopping plaza was denied bail Monday in Victoria provincial court.

Judge William Ostler denied bail to 20-year-old Patrick Norman Witter, of 252 Gorge Road East, before a preliminary hearing date of April 4 was set.

Witter is jointly charged with Ossie William Barnes, 28, of 252 Gorge Road East, with conspiracy to commit armed robbery, possession of a weapon for a purpose dangerous to the public peace, and possession of an unregistered, restricted weapon.

Before the bail hearing, Ostler advised defence lawyer Michael Hutchison that he had heard the facts of the case before turning down bail Friday for Barnes and had his mind made up, if Hutchison would rather have another judge hear the application.

However, Hutchison, whose application for a no-publication order on the hearing was granted, said he was content to have the matter heard by Ostler.

Barnes had elected trial by judge without jury Friday and Witter made the same election Monday.

★ ★ ★

Oslter ordered a pre-sentence report and remanded 18-year-old Kenneth Allan Mallory, of 4483 Majestic Drive, until April 12 for sentencing.

Mallory changed his plea to guilty on a charge of theft under $200.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the court Mallory and companions were cruising in a car last Halloween, looking for youngsters with treats until Wednesday to enable Meanney to call evidence, and taking them away from the children.

Mulligan said Saanich police arrested Mallory after a 12-year-old was grabbed, thrown to the ground and choked before his Halloween treats were taken away from him.

★ ★ ★

A 24-year-old man who changed his plea on a charge of breaking and entering was sentenced to one year in jail.

Donald Gordon Cole pleaded guilty to a March 6 break-in at Island Medical Laboratories, 1900 Richmond.

Cole and 22-year-old Michael Eric Still, of 3220 Quadra, were jointly charged with breaking and entering and possession of housebreaking tools. Mulligan stayed the second charge on Cole.

Still changed his plea to guilty on the charge of possession of housebreaking tools and was remanded to March 28 for a pre-sentence report and sentence. The break-in charge was dropped by Mulligan against Still.

Mulligan told the court Victoria city police found Cole in the premises of the medical laboratories at about 1:40 a.m. and found still later in another office with rubber gloves on and in possession of a screwdriver used to gain entry.

He also informed Ostler Cole was on a pass from Wilkinson Road jail at the time of the break-in while Still was awaiting trial for a similar charge.

William McElmoyle, defence lawyer for Cole, said his client had a drinking problem and committed the break-in while drinking.

An 18-year-old, who surrendered to Victoria city police Monday morning, was charged with possession of MDA for the purpose of trafficking and released on his own recognizance.

Robert Gordon Sewell, of 254 Gorge Road East, was charged in connection with a drug squad raid at his address last Tuesday in which two 20-year-olds, Ronald Edward Durdle and Robin Page, are also charged with the same offence.

Defence lawyer Harold Turnham told the court Sewell called the lawyer and then turned himself in to the police after learning a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

★ ★ ★

Christopher Ronald Ollson, 18, of 205 Burnside East, was fined $35 and ordered to make restitution after pleading guilty to wilful damage.

Court was told Ollson kicked at and broke a headlight of a car in the 500 block Fisgard on March 12 after an argument with a girl at about 5 a.m. Damage to the vehicle was put at $20.

★ ★ ★

A man who pleaded guilty to having a blood-alcohol content of .24 and also had a previous drinking-driving offence was fined a total of $850 by Ostler.

Stanley Edward Schofield, 49, of 349 Cook, was fined $800 for having a blood-alcohol content over .08 and an additional $50 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Mulligan told the court Schofield failed to remain at the parking lot of McDonald's Restaurant on Pandora after backing into another car on March 19. The next night, Mulligan said, Schofield was observed weaving badly and was stopped by Victoria city police after he hit a parking meter.

The preliminary hearing into charges of armed robbery, and possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace against three men got under way Monday.

Dennis Richard Legault, 19, of 1235 Balmoral, Peter Michael Legault, 18, of the same address, and Robert George Walton, 26, are jointly charged with the two offences and have elected trial by judge and jury. In addition, Walton is charged with possession of a stolen stereo and shotgun.

Before the hearing started, crown counsel Richard Anthony applied for one more day for the hearing, scheduled for two days, and was granted another day.

Vic West Ballots Thursday

Victoria West residents go to the polls Thursday and their ballots will help determine the future of the area.

Eight nominees are contesting seats on the seven-member executive board of the Victoria West Community Development Association.

They are: John Schalke, 729 Belton St.; Peter George, 1127 Catherine St.; Bill Oudshoorn, 1115 Catherine St., who is seeking a second term on the board; Jim Lee, 223 Robert St.; George Wilkinson, 1326 Burleith Cres.; Paul Condon, 1135 Catherine St.; Ann Tarasoff, 902-701 Esquimalt Rd., and Marion Jensen, 235 Wilson St.

The balloting is combined with the annual general meeting of the association, which starts at 7:30 p.m. at Victoria West Elementary School, 750 Front Street.

Also on the agenda is a Victoria police-sponsored Neighbourhood Watch film presentation and display of security locks.

TEACHERS PLAN SESSION

When schools close for the spring break on Friday 1,000 teachers will head for Vancouver to represent their colleagues at the annual general meeting of the B.C. Teacher's Federation.

The delegates will discuss recommendations of the BCTF' executive committee and resolutions submitted by local teachers' associations throughout the province.

They will also hear reports from BCTF president Bill Broadley and general secretary Bob Buzza.

The meeting — the largest teachers' annual meeting in Canada — will elect officers for the next school year. Three candidates are running for the presidency: Pat Brady, of Prince George; Gordon Hutton, of Delta; and Don Walmsley, of Boston Bar.

Delegates will see the 15-minute slide-tape presentation on racism prepared for use in classrooms. The presentation has been opposed by the B.C. School Trustees' Association, but endorsed by many other groups and individuals.

Safety Patrol Winner

Rockeheights Elementary student, Marion Harding, 12, has been chosen as one of 15 B.C. representatives to the 18th National Safety Week Jamboree in Ottawa in May.

More than 8,000 school patrollers will attend the May 26-29 jamboree sponsored by the Canadian Automobile Association and the Ottawa police department.

"It is our way of saying thank you for an outstanding job done by these young citizens in protecting the lives of their classmates," said William McKinley, BCAA president.

Marion and the other representatives will stop in Vancouver for tours of television studios, the PNE, Gastown, city hall, Stanley Park and the harbor.

Two Tackle Cadboro Ratepayers

Dick Readshaw and Kennedy Smith are the latest candidates to join the team organized to upset the executive of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers Association.

The crunch will come Wednesday when the annual election and general meeting takes place at 7:30 p.m. in the Cadboro Bay United church hall.

Leading the movement is Howard Sturrock, who is running for president. Others running for directors are Dick Boss, Anna Foster and Gordon Howard.

Sturrock said today the main reasons he and his supporters want change are the need for stronger representation and for better communication between the general membership and the executive.

GUILTY PLEA ON FIREARM

A 20-year-old Saanich man will be sentenced April 25 in Victoria County Court for dangerous use of a firearm.

'Toytown Terrorism' Strikes Tenerife

By JOHN HOOPER
Manchester Guardians

TENERIFE, Canary Islands — Since November members of the tongue-twisting Movement for the Self-determination and Independence of the Canarian Archipelago (MPAIAC) have launched more than 30 terrorist attacks.

Among their more spectacular efforts were the setting off of 4 bombs within 24 hours last Devember, and explosion at the offices of Royal Air Maroc airlines in January and a hand grenade attack on a civil guard vehicle a few days ago.

With the recent arrest of the movement's military organizer, Faustino Santana Garcia, and the subsequent discovery of an arms cache on Tenerife, the police seem to have broken the back of the movement. There are now 21 suspects either in the police station or at the provincial jail in Las Palmas.

"It's very much a case of toytown terrorism," a local newspaper editor said. "Most of those involved are between 16 and 20. When we looked into the grenade attack, it turned out the boy who threw the grenade had hailed a taxi to make his getaway. The taxi driver didn't have the faintest idea of what was going on, stopped at the lights and the police drew up and made their arrest."

Few people regard the movement — whose main activity is broadcasting propaganda from an Algiers-based radio station, Voice of the Free Canaries — as much more than a joke. But apart from the Basque organization ETA, it is the only regional extremist group to have given a semblance of reality to its threats of revolution.

The wave of bombinngs is an indication that the gap between reality and government rhetoric is wider here than in probably any other spanish region.

In tourist brochures, in the platitudinous remarks of countless officials and in the minds of many mainland Spaniards, the Canaries are still the fortunate isles —a land of year-long sunshine that the free ports have made into a paradise for shoppers.

In fact, as Lorenzo Olarte, a deputy in the Cortes (Spanish parliament), points out, the islands' shops are a good analogy: "The windows are crammed full of radios and televisions at rock-bottom prices: then there's the backroom you never see —and that's an altogether different story."

By any standards, the Canaries are potentially explosive. The high birth rate (25 per 1,000 as against Spain's national average of 19) and low death rate (6.39 as opposed to 11.04) make the area the youngest and one of the fastest expanding in Spain.

To these difficulties has been added a single, catastrophic development — Spain's withdrawal from the Sahara, which deprived the islands of a market for labor and for more than 50 per cent of their own exports.

The great pension debate

the rip off

The employers' costs to all pension plans are borne by the public. The cost of employer contributions to private pensions is part of the operating costs of the enterprise, and is passed along to the consumer in price increases. When private pension funds run into difficulties and additional money is needed, companies just say their operating costs have increased and raise their prices. If less than 40% of the labour force is covered by pensions and the cost of the employers' contribution is paid by all consumers and taxpayers by more price increases, it means that the 60% of Canadian workers without pensions are subsidizing the employers' costs for the less than 40% who have pensions.

Write to your member of Parliament today and insist that the government take over the provision of pensions to ensure that you will have an adequate indexed pension when you retire.

Maple Leaf Mills

Directors of Maple Leaf Mills Ltd. of Toronto will recommend to shareholders that common shares of the company be split on a three-for-one basis, rather the previously proposed basis of two for one. The company said its directors reconsidered the situation and decided that the three-for-one basis was a more appropriate split of the company's shares.

Traders Group

The offer of Traders Group Ltd. of Toronto to purchase common shares of Guaranty Trust Co. expires April 15. Traders Group is offering one of its class A shares and $9 cash for each three Guaranty Trust shares. Traders already holds 58.5 per cent of Guaranty's 6.7 million issued common shares.

Teck

Teck Corp. Ltd. has sold its interest in North Canadian Oils Ltd. for an undisclosed amount. Dr. Normal Keevil, Teck executive vice-president, said the company sold its entire parcel of 1,488,266 North Canadian shares to a group headed by Toronto industrialist James Kay. Keevil did not reveal the amount obtained for the shares. North Canadian shares have recently sold for about $8 on the Toronto stock exchange. North Canadian has 5,629,165 common shares outstanding, making the Teck parcel of shares slightly more than 25 per cent of the issued capital.

Keg Restaurants

Keg Restaurants Ltd. of Vancouver says it has entered into an agreement with Cara Operations Ltd. of Toronto for the joint venture operation of Keg restaurants in the Eastern Canada market. George Tidball, president of Keg Restaurants, said that the agreement with Cara will provide for an aggressive expansion of the market potential for Keg restaurants in Ontario, Quebec and the maritimes.

Cara's financial commitment will enable the opening of a minimum of 16 restaurants in that market in the next five years," Tidball said. No further details were released. Keg Restaurants, a public company, operates as a corporation and with others, 25 restaurants in Canada and the United States.

Eacom

Eacom Timber Sales Ltd., Canada's third largest lumber shipper, reports a 71 per cent increase in shipments during 1976 with the value of shipments rising to $68 million compared with only $36 million in 1975. Donald King, president, told the company's annual meeting that the year-end figures represented a turn-around which reflected improved economic conditions in all major market areas. Eacom shipped 365 million board feet of lumber in 1976 compared with 213 million the previous year. Plywood sales remained constant at just under 7 million square feet. Shipments to the U.S. east coast accounted for 54 per cent of total shipments from mills with which Eacom has sales agreements. The United Kingdom took 24 per cent of shipments, Europe and Japan 9 per cent each and Australia 4 per cent. King said he expects an 18 per cent increase in lumber shipments in 1977 to 430 million board feet, with Europe being the only market in which a decrease can be expected. Plywood shipments are expected to decline by 1 per cent, to 6 million square feet. He said inflation, currency disruptions, high inventories, extended maintenance and declining productivity pose a continuing threat to B.C.'s competitive position in international markets. He also noted the distinct possibility of a strike in the B.C. forest industry.

Price

The Price Co. Ltd. reports net earnings of $3,636,000, or 35 cents a share, for the year ended Dec. 31, down from the $12,453,000 or $1.24 a share recorded in 1975. Sales, less delivery expenses, reached $340,076,000 compared with $298,917,000 in 1975. Strikes in the lumber industry and depressed worldwide demand for paper products contributed to lower earnings in 1976, the company said. Price also reported a loss of $311,000 in its mining operations in 1976 compared with $1 million in earnings in 1975.

CanPac

The Royal Bank of Canada has agreed to buy all outstanding shares of CanPac Leasing Ltd., a lease financing organization, from Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd., The acquisition takes effect April 1 when CanPac will become a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Royal Bank. CanPac, involved in a broad range of equipment leasing to Canadian businesses, has assets of nearly $100 million. Robert G. Hunkin will continue as president of CanPac, based in Montreal, with offices in Halifax, Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver.

A Voice for Small Businessman

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Canada needs a national organization to help small businesses, according to local merchant John Bradshaw, so he's going to start one.

"The big companies can influence government decisions but nobody listens to the small businessman," he said in an interview.

"I am going to try to get small businessmen speaking with a single voice so Ottawa will listen to our problems."

Bradshaw, owner of Island Seed Co. Ltd., said he hopes to call a meeting within one month to set up a province-wide organization before going national.

While he is trying to get small merchants speaking with a unified voice, his organization — still unnamed — would be a rival to the 40,000-member Federation of Independent Business.

"The Federation is doing a good job but it has members with 100 employees or more. I want to set up an organization of small companies, 50 employees or less. As a matter of fact, most of the members, I expect, will be one-man companies."

Meanwhile, Ian Sherwin of Victoria, local representative of the Federation of Independent Business, says Bradshaw's group would be "a welcome addition."

"Every new organization of businessmen that's formed can only be for the good," Sherwin said.

"We want the federal government to sit up and take notice of our problems."

Sherwin said he has had amicable discussions with Bradshaw and has encouraged him to take which-even route he fells is best to make the voice of small businessmen heard in Ottawa.

"How could I oppose his group? I am in favor of free competitive enterprise, even in organizations."

He conceded that some of the federation's 40,000 members are large companies but they all have the same thing in common — a single owner.

"We believe that size is not the improtant factor. The important thing is: is the company run by the owner or by a manager? The owner wants to show a profit and keep his people happy. For the manager, it is more important for him to look efficient than to be efficient.

"The big test is when Ottawa sends some form that has to to be filled out. The owner is angry because it wastes his time bnut the manager is happy because it gives him something to do."

In addition, says Sherwin, 43 per cent of the 40,000 members are in companies with four employees or less. Another 25 per cent have between five and nine employees, another 10 per cent have between 10 and 14 employees and 16 per cent have between 15 and 50 employees.

Another three per cent have between 50 and 100 and the remaining three per cent of the members have more than 100 employees.

However, Bradshaw is not impressed with the numbers of small members.

"The fact the Federation is made up of both large and small companies means they do not direct all their energies to the needs of the small merchant. I want to set up an organization that will look after the small businessman only.

"However, I think the Federation is doing a good job for its members and I wish them luck."

Outlook for U.K. Not That Gloomy

TORONTO (CP)— The economic outlook for Britain is not as gloomy as some have painted it, says Sir John Johnston, Britain's high commissioner to Canada.

He said Britain faces another hard year economically, but he predicted the tide will eventually turn in the country's favor.

"In many ways, the chief effect of recent events has been to clear the decks for a concentrated effort in the next 12 months on the industrial front," said Sir John.

He said the North Sea oil fields, expected to begin high production in the next few years, will provide a stable foundation for the British economy, replacing the vast foreign holdings and investments drained away since the Second World War.

Sir John said the North Sea oil will add a net benefit of about $6 billion to the country's balance of payments by the end of the year.

"It seems now more than likely that we shall reach total self-sufficiency in 1979 rather than in 1980."

He predicted that by 1980, the net benefit of the oil on the balance of payments will be about $16 billion.

Sir John said that the British economy has absorbed some severe shocks in recent years, but added he is confident it can meet the challenge.

The government had cut spending drastically and labor was co-operating with efforts to balance the economy.

Reynolds Metals

Reynolds Metals Co. expects capital spending this year to total $85 million to $100 million. In its annual report, the Richmond, Va.-based metals producer said 1976 outlays were $77.8 million, 22 per cent below the $100 million estimated last October. A spokesman said projects were not cancelled last year, but instead, some planned programs spilled over into 1977. Capital spending in 1975 totalled $109.5 million. Reynolds also noted in its annual report that it reached final agreement late last year with the government of Haiti on "bauxite taxes and export quotas" for 1977 through 1981. Further details were not given. Haiti supplied 14 per cent of the company's bauxite ore needs in 1975, latest available Reynolds figures show: During a previous three-year pact with Haiti, export quotas were said to be "flexible."

No Marilyn Monroe Says Top 'Angel'

NEW YORK — America's latest sex symbol, Farrah Fawcett-Majors says she has no intention of becoming another Marilyn Monroe. In an interview with McCall's magazine, the star of Charlie's Angels rejected any comparison with the late movie star. "I'm not like her at all," Ms. Fawcett-Majors said. "Sex oozed from her, even when she just said 'Ooo.'"

PRINCE GEORGE — Alfonso Miranda and his wife Myriam will leave here Wednesday for Costa Rica so they can apply for landed immigrant status in Canada. The Chilean couple came to Canada in 1975 to escape what they say was political persecution but were unsuccessful in an appeal last February to stay in the country as political refugees. Miranda said the first thing he would do if given landed immigrant status would be to send for his two children, who are living with his wife's parents in Chile.

LONDON — British actor Peter Sellers lunched on his bride's home-cooked chicken and swore off oysters Monday as he recovered from possible food poisoning in a London hospital. The 51-year-old movie star laughed and joked with his 22-year-old wife as doctors tried to find out why he collapsed on a flight from Nice, France to London on Sunday.

CLAREMONT, Calif. — Soviet dissident Vladimir Kozlovsky, who left Russia for exile in the United States four years ago, Monday praised President Jimmy Carter's human rights stands as "terrific from the point of view of a Russian dissident." "It certainly helps the morale of the dissident community. It is the biggest morale booster they have had in years," Kozlovsky told a lecture audience at The Claremont Men's Colleges.

Money All Lined Up . . . But No Takers

Debbie Brooks has an unusual problem — she wants to give away money and can't find any takers.

Brooks is field supervisor for the ministry of labor's employment opportunity program which has over $270,000 earmarked to assist local farms and business in hiring students for the summer.

Through the program the provincial government pays up to $2 an hour of wages for students hired by farms or businesses in the regional district, and up to $4 an hour for non-profit organizations hiring students.

The program's deadline is Friday, said Brooks, and so far only 40 businesses and a dozen farms have come forward, or about half the number compared to this time last year.

"People are being very lethargic in applying for the money that we have," she said Monday. "I don't know if there's some confusion over federal and provincial programs or what, but so far the response hasn't been too good."

Brooks said that last year the program helped give about 1,500 students jobs in the region and she is hopeful that mark could be reached again this year.

"But time's running out," she stressed.

Anyone interested in finding out more about the program, or getting an application form, can drop into the department's offices at 1006 Fort St., or phone 387-1631.

The Naked Truth

DURBAN, South Africa — A woman told a court on Monday that a hang-glider pilot flew over and made a sexual suggestion to her as she was sunbathing nude on the roof of her garage.

Loran Thompson was testifying in the trial of her husband, Francis, 68, who has pleaded not guilty to the attempted murder of two hang-glider pilots by firing at them with an air rifle.

She said she had complained to police many times about the activities of hang-gliders.

Carter Tells Fukuda U.S. to Stay in Asia

WASHINGTON — President Jimmy Carter told Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda Monday that the United States will maintain a presence in Asia and keep its commitments there, despite the end of the Vietnam war and the planned removal of U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

Carter's statement, reported by a Japanese official, came in the first of several meetings planned with Fukuda in a two-day "working visit."

The first Asian chief of government to visit Carter in the White House, Fukuda passed along a request from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations that an American presence in the region be maintained. Fukuda did not define the nature of the desired U.S. activity, but administration sources said Asian nations have asked for continued U.S. economic as well as military presence.

Japanese officials sird Fukuda pointed out that there had been no "Domino effect" following the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. However, Fukuda also noted that "the repercussions since Indochina have still given concern to the Asian nations."

Carter also proposed that Japan be given permanent membership in the United Nations Security Council.

In his brief remarks, Carter emphasized the need for closer co-operation between the two countries with a firm pledge never again to bypass Japan in future U.S. foreign-policy initiatives.

As U.S. and Japanese spokesmen described the talks, Fukuda made no effort to convince Carter to reverse his decision to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea over the next four or five years. Japanese leaders have expressed public and private concern over the U.S. action but evidently decided it would be folly to argue in public over a decision that already has been made.

For his part, Carter said the U.S. would look with favor on Japan's assuming "a larger political role in world affairs and particularly in Asia," according to presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell. Powell added that the U.S. believes Japan's economic strength entitles that nation to an expanded political role.

While its post-Second World War growth has made it second only to the U.S. in yearly production in the non-communist world, Japan has been reluctant to assert itself politically and has spurned a return to major military power.

In recent months Japan has been tentatively exploring stronger political links with Southeast Asian nations. Fukuda noted in the talks Monday that Japan maintains diplomatic relations with Vietnam and gives that country some economic aid, calling it "a buffer zone" in Southeast Asia.

Public Notice

OTTAWA, MARCH 18, 1977

BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY
APPLICATION FOR RATE INCREASE
REGIONAL HEARINGS FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA
VANCOUVER, DELTA, VICTORIA AND NANAIMO, BRITISH COLUMBIA

On December 10, 1976, British Columbia Telephone Company filed an application with the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission. (CRTC) for an increase in its rates. The application called for an increase of approximately 15 per cent in most monthly charges—which means most increases for basic residential telephone service will range from 45 cents to dollars 1.60 a month depending on location. Increases of about 10 per cent or two to five cents per minute are proposed on most direct-dialled long distance calls within British Columbia. Proportionately greater increases for person-to-person and some types of long distance calls are included in the request. The company is also requesting a new rate structure for installation work.

In addition to the central hearing in Vancouver, British Columbia commencing on March 22, 1977, the CRTC has organized a series of regional hearings to consider representations from members of the public.

Regional hearings will be held at Vancouver, Delta, Victoria and Nanaimo, British Columbia. These have been scheduled as follows.

DATE (1977)	CITY	LOCATION	TIME
Thursday March 24	Vancouver, B.C.	Sheraton-Landmark Hotel Robson and Broughton Streets	7:00 PM
Friday March 25	Delta, B.C.	South Delta Hall 1720-56th Street	7:00 PM
Monday March 28	Victoria, B.C.	Victoria Labour Council, 750 Quadra Street	7:00 PM
Wednesday March 30	Nanaimo, B.C.	Bevan Park Recreational Auditorium 2300 Bowen Road	7:00 PM

Any group or individual in the general area served by British Columbia Telephone Company wishing to make representations regarding telephone service is invited to attend at one of these hearings and make such representations directly to the commission. Representations are particularly invited from groups or individuals who have filed comments with the commission in accordance with its notice to telephone subscribers, published in newspapers and inserted in telephone billings.

Persons wishing to participate should indicate their intention by phoning (613) 996-2294 or 995-6957 — Ottawa or at the regional office in Vancouver (175) 666-2111.

Lise Ouimet,

Little-Used Rail Passenger Routes Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Seven rail passenger services in five provinces will be discontinued because of declining use, the Canadian Transport Commission said Monday.

The commission also said it has ordered the railways to maintain service on two other routes, suspended a third application pending further study and agreed to allow a railway to discontinue part of a fourth route.

Routes allowed to be dropped are:

—A daily rail diesel car service operated by CP rail between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The service, one trip each way daily, averaged between 13 and 15 passengers a trip and in 1974 lost $384,523.

—A tri-weekly rail diesel car service between Winnipeg and Thunder Bay North. The Canadian National operation had fewer than 16 passengers a trip and lost $802,136 in 1974.

—A weekly service from Dauphin, Man., to Winnipegosis, consisting of one passenger car tacked onto a Canadian National freight train. Most trips had no paying passengers and the loss in 1975 was $51,381.

—A tri-weekly service of one passenger car connected to a freight train operating between Prince Albert and Hudson Bay, Sask. The Canadian National service had five passengers in 1975 and lost $89,468.

—A Canadian National daily rail diesel car service from Edmonton to Grand Centre, Alta. It averaged only 11 passengers a trip in 1975 and lost $751,928.

—A daily rail diesel service operated by Canadian National between Edmonton and North Battleford that averaged 25 passengers a trip in 1975 and incurred losses of $907,602.

—A daily rail diesel car service between Quebec City and Clemont. The Canadian National service had between nine and 28 passengers a trip depending on the season and lost $471,477 in 1975.

The commission said it ordered two services to continue, saying they are in the public interest since some of the remote communities along the route have no alternate public transportation available.

The two are Canadian National routes between Edmonton and Drumheller, Alta., and Jasper, Alta., and Prince Rupert.

A release from the commission said the railway lost $505,279 on the Drumheller route in 1975 and $4.1 million on the Prince Rupert route.

The commission said it will allow "partial discontinuance" of the CP Rail service between Montreal and Mont Laurier. It has been a three-day-a-week service but will be cut back to two days a week.

"Unless a satisfactory proposal is developed to continue this weekend service it will be discontinued after six months," the commission said.

Curtis Stays Out Of Cruise

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said Monday he has no intention of interfering with a $25,000 donation from the Kitimat Pipeline Ltd. to a municipal convention.

"You can express a personal opinion on the propriety of it," the minister said, "but I can't speak out from on high on every single thing local governments do."

Curtis was asked last week by NDP MLA Graham Lea (Prince Rupert) whether the minister thought it proper that the Kitimat Pipeline Ltd., which backs the proposed Kitimat to Edmonton oil pipeline, gave $25,000 to the North Central Municipal Association to help defray the costs of the association's convention.

The convention will be held in May on board the cruise ship Princess Patricia. The money was donated by the pipeline company on the condition that the cruise ship follow the route that oil tankers would follow if the tanker port is located in Kitimat.

Curtis told the legislature Monday he had looked carefully at the question and found nothing that would prompt a recommendation that the donation should be interfered with.

"My real concern relates not to the grant made by the company but to the total cost of this particular conference," Curtis said.

Lea said at least two municipalities in his riding — Massett and Port Edwards — have decided not to send delegates to the convention because of the costs.

Municipal spokesmen for Kitimat, the host municipality for the convention, have said the convention is being held on the ship because there are no adequate facilities in the municipality.

Curtis said he has also heard of several municipalities which are not sending delegates and several more that normally send four or five delegates but this year are sending only one.

Curtis said the cost of the convention contributes to his decision not to attend.

"I decided several weeks ago that I wasn't going on the cruise and that while it may be extremely useful for some, it does seem a little expensive in terms of the smaller communities," he said.

Wildlife Being Run To Death?

Snowmobiles and other rough-terrain recreational vehicles have been banned from five areas in eastern B.C. because of reports that deer, elk and sheep are being run to death by snowmobilers.

George Ferguson, spokesman for the Fish and Wildlife branch, said Monday the ban was imposed because snowmobile operators "have been roaring around" the traditional wintering areas of wildlife in several parts of the province.

"I guess they think it's a fun thing to do when they chase after these animals," he said, "but the animals can't take it. Many of them die from heart attacks.

"We're not trying to save the whole province for wildlife but they must be protected in their wintering areas."

The ban on Crown range land in the eastern areas will be in effect in most areas until March 31 and then from Dec. 1 until March 31, 1978.

Ferguson said the possibility of closures in other areas is being studied by a committee of several government agencies.

HYDRO PROBE RULED OUT

Premier Bill Bennett Monday repeated his concern over the spending habits of B.C. Hydro, but ruled out any sort of royal commission into the operations of the crown corporation.

Bennett, speaking during question period in the legislature, said he certainly considers Hydro responsible to the legislature and the government "but there is some concern over the capital expenditures for electrical generating puposes."

"We will consider those expenditures and see if any additional controls are needed."

The premier had been asked by Liberal leader Gordon Gibson whether he thought the government had adequate control over Hydro.

Gibson also asked whether the premier would consider a royal commission, such as the one convened into the operations of the B.C. Railway, for B.C. Hydro.

Bennett ruled out such a commission, but said cabinet will definitely consider Hydro's expenditures.

During the same debate, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said he would not ask Hydro cairman Robert Bonner to appear before cabinet to answer questions about the corporation.

Curtis had earlier blasted Hydro for its negative attitude towards the new Burrard Inlet ferry service initiated by his department ministry but to be operated by Hydro.

"I have difficulty understanding an agency that assumes a new responsibility and then starts to express grave doubts about it," he said.

An unnamed Hydro official was quoted earlier as saying there were many problems with the new service.

Both Curtis and Bennett indicated legislation would be introduced this session setting up some sort of transit authority separate from Hydro.

Women's Grant May Soon End

The Vancouver Status of Women organization will have its $75,000 annual grant renewed for the coming fiscal year, Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said Monday.

Mrs. McCarthy cautioned the women's rights group, however, that such funding may not be forthcoming in future.

She told the legislature that when the provincial ombudsman's office is set up, it could take over many of the group's services and that a review of the group is currently being undertaken by the ministry of human resources.

She also said her ministry is considering setting up a special committee to examine equal opportunity in the public sector.

Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said more funding is needed.

Romance Junky

POINTE GATINEAU, Que. (CP) — Lorraine Tighe, 35, who says she learned to read English with the help of romance magazines, now is selling part of her library. She says that reading romance mags "is just like smoking — once you start you're hooked." She still reads about three magazines a week.

Gibson Pedals 'Urgent' Debate

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson tried to get the legislature to break tradition Monday by allowing the normal order of business to be set aside to allow debate of a matter of "urgent public importance."

The urgent matter?

Gibson wanted the house to debate a motion put before it earlier by Emery Barnes (NDP — Vancouver Centre) urging it to extend to the entire province a Vancouver city declaration of Bicycle Safety Week from March 21-27.

The urgency, said Gibson, lay in the fact that Monday was March 21 and any delay in debate would render the motion meaningless.

Speaker Ed Smith, who gave no sign he appreciated Gibson's sense of humor, ruled the Liberal leader out of order.

Smith called the motion "novel and unusual" but said it was not novel or unusual enough to get a favorable ruling.

Gibson has long been critical of what he considers the government's iron grip on house procedure.

Outside the legislature, Gibson said "it was a lighthearted way for me to pursue my drive to get the legislature to take some of the power now left with the executive, and at the same time give a plug to Bicycle Safety Week."

Lafleur Ties NHL Mark

By The Canadian Press

Scotty Bowman and Don Cherry differ on a number of subjects but quickly agree when Guy Lafleur's name is mentioned.

"That Lafleur goal was the killer," Boston coach Cherry said after the Montreal left winger scored his 52nd of the season to lead the Canadiens to a 5-1 win over the Bruins in a National Hockey League game Monday night.

"We were coming on, 3-1, and I thought that we could pop in another one and make it interesting," Cherry said.

"Guy's goal gave us breathing room. They were coming back. It could have been 3-2 and we might have been in trouble."

Lafleur's goal gave him at least one point in his last 22 games, tying the NHL record for consecutive scoring games set by Bronco Horvath of the Bruins in 1959-1960.

"I don't think they outplayed us in the first two periods," Cherry said. "But when they wanted to control the game in the third period, they sure controlled it."

The close-checking Canadiens allowed Boston just three shots in the final period to preserve the lead and snap an 11-game Boston unbeaten streak. The loss left Boston two points behind Buffalo Sabres in the race for first place in the Adams Division.

Lafleur and Doug Risebrough scored in the second period before the Canadiens went into their defensive shell in the final period.

At Toronto, the Barons took a 2-0 first-period lead then cruised to victory with little opposition from the lacklustre Leafs.

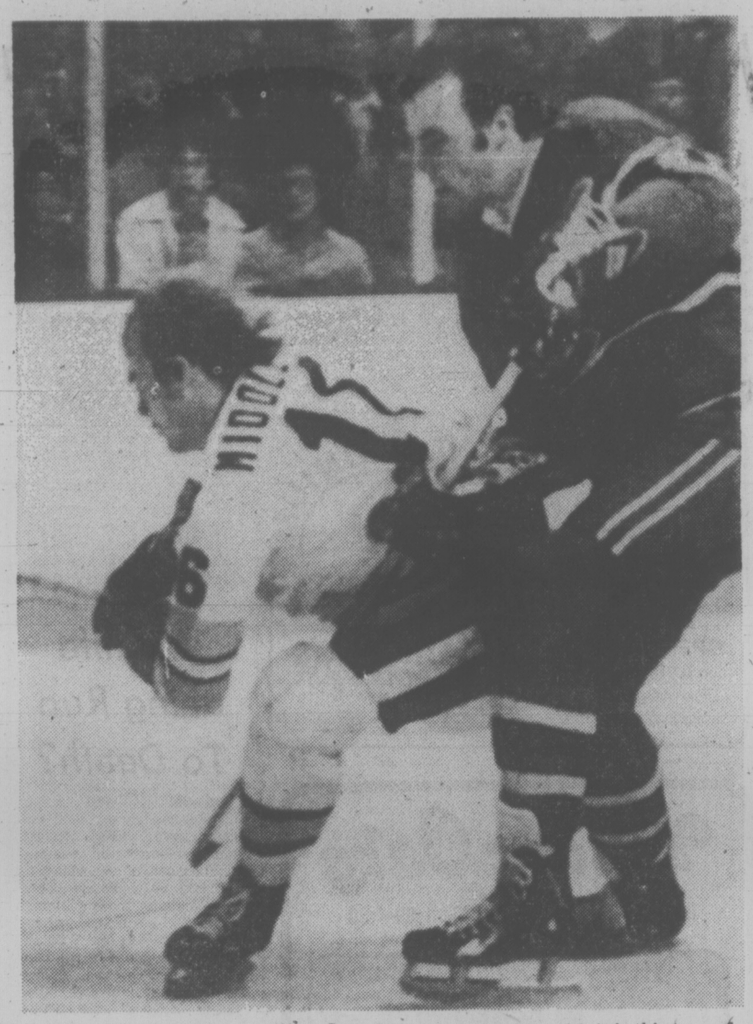
Al MacAdam and Dennis Maruk scored two goals each to pace the Barons to victory while Jim Neilson, Dave Gardner and Brent Meeke added single goals.

Lanny McDonald, with his 43rd of the season, and Dave Williams, replied for Toronto.

"We didn't have a good night," Leafs coach Red Kelly said. "We weren't physical and didn't play the game we should have played.

"Some guys tend to feel they can get fancy against certain teams and they can't."

Part of the problem on defence was the absence of rookie Randy Carlyle, who was out with a virus. He was replaced by Bob Neely, a former defenceman who has played mostly on the forward line this season.



Neat Trick Stops Rick

Neat trick if you can get away with it is this type of check being applied by Montreal's Riek Chartraw (right) to slow down Rick Middleton of Boston Bruins during National Hockey League game Monday night. Chartraw got away with this check and Canadiens got away most of scoring shots to trim Bruins 5-1 in Boston. (AP Wirephoto)

Home Lumber and Bays Wowed a Few Fans Too

The weekend in review and while Roy Gislason and his Winnipeg rink were wowing 'em here at Victoria Curling Club with their undefeated march to the Canadian police championship, Victoria's Home Lumber and Oak Bay Bays were wowing 'em in basketball in Saskatoon and the Pacific Coliseum. If Gislayson was far the best in the police show, and that's beyond doubt as his 33 straight victories will attest, so were the Bays in winning their fifth provincial high school boys' basketball title and Home Lumber in capturing their third national women's title in four years. The Oak Bay story is one of dedication, discipline and poise, while Home Lumber certainly now must rank with some of the other great women's teams of the past off their recent record.

When Oak Bay got behind a good Princess Margaret team in the first quarter of that final in Vancouver, Saturday, there had to be cause for worry. But there was never any panic. That's where the club showed its poise. Oak Bay adjusted, shut off the Princess Margaret attack, went about their business of gaining back the lost ground, did, and then were pulling away at the finish as a champion should.

And gee, has it is only just over a week after the 1977 Sports Celebrity Dinner and all those award winners, and already Oak Bay and Home Lumber are clamoring for recognition. The selectors must already be pondering over the problem they undoubtedly will face again next spring.

Because, let's face it. The soccer people haven't named their rep team for the provincial playoffs yet, and they, through Vic West, own that national orown; the lacrosse season hasn't even begun and McDonalds will be defending national juniors in that sport; and who's to say that Bate softballers won't add another national crown to their collection? Not many, that's for sure, and probably fewer now that Vancouver's Jim McMillan and Norm McLeod are joining the club. It's been said before, it will be said again. Victoria just doesn't realize how good its athletes are. And congratulations to both Home Lumber and Oak Bay.

And speaking of wowing 'em, has anyone looked over Vancouver way recently? The Canucks have suddenly caught fire, have caught third-place Minnesota in the Smythe Division, are only a single point behind the once-proud but now dowdy Chicago Black Hawks, have gone eight games without a defeat, and that's a club record. Has it been the magic of coach Orland Kurtenbach, the surprising play of Derek Sanderson, the thievery of goalkeeper Cesare Maniago, or just a plain over-all improvement? Whatever, the Canucks are red hot and may have peaked in time for the playoffs. At least it's the first time they've peaked in some time and that is good to see. The pick here for the change — Kurtenbach. He said he would take his own time. He has; and it's paying off.

Back east there were more honors for Philip Delesalle . . . He's No. 1 on the Canadian gymnastic team . . . Clark Davis captured a junior Greco-Roman wrestling title to add to his honors list . . . And Ron Grahame, who must rank as the most under-rated of hockey grads from this town, set a World Hockey Association record of 12 straight wins as a goalkeeper with Houston. The guy is good and if he were playing in that other league, it just could be that he would rate with the very best. Maybe he does even now. And it was also nice to see that Karen Kelsall of Surrey, the little gal who amazed everyone in last year's gymnastic championships here, topped the recent Canadian women's selection meet. She's only 14, an Olympian, and Canada's best hope in the next Olympics.

And I must have missed the item, but 'tis true as the man suggested. Within a long fly ball of the peace Tower in Ottawa, there was uncovered one quiet night this month a bookmaking ring that was doing $10-12 million annually on racing and hockey. It appears that everyone who was anyone, and there are a few of that kind in Ottawa, knew of its existence; but so did the RCMP, the Ottawa police, the Hull police, the Ontario provincial police, the Quebec provincial police . . . Thus the raid which produced many warm bodies, $100,000 in cash and one fellow with a good-sized arsenal. And all under the shadow of Parliament Hill. Tut, tut. Or another reason, perhaps, for off-track betting.

Cats on Route For Collision With Bruins

Victoria Cougars appear to be destined for a last-place finish in the Western Division of the Western Canada Hockey League and that means the unenviable task of clashing with New Westminister Bruins in the first round of the playoffs.

Cougars Monday night fell further behind the third-place Kamloops Chiefs when they dropped a 4-2 decision to the Chiefs in Kamloops in a make-up game postponed from Feb. 6.

The defeat left the Cougars six points behind the Chiefs and, with only four games to play, two of those against the Chiefs and the other two against New Westminster, it appears unlikely they can overcome the deficit. Besides, Chiefs have a game in hand over the Cougars.

Cougars meet the Chiefs in Kamloops Friday and then at home on Saturday. On Wednesday, they play in New Westminster and then close out the regular season against the Bruins here a week from today.

Under this year's playoff format, the first-place club meets the fourth-place team with the second-place team meeting the third-place club. Both series will be best-of-seven affairs with the higher-placed team having the extra-game advantage.

The Cougars opened and closed scoring Monday as the Chiefs did all the rest. Curt Fraser got the Cougars away early with a short-handed goal at 1:27 of the first period. The Chiefs scored the next four as they took a 2-1 edge into the final period.

Len Dies scored what proved to be the winner at 2:43 of the final period and Mike Boychuk added the insurance marker. Paul Enquist scored his 29th goal of the season for the Cougars on a power play late in the third period. Fraser's goal was his 34th of the year.

Easy Ski Victory

ARE, Sweden (AP) — World Cup champion Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden held off all challengers with a steady second run Monday and won the next-to-last giant slalom ski race of the season.

Stenmark trounced runner-up Klaus Heidegger of Austria by a wide 2.20-second margin after the two runs for his second victory in two days.

Ski Career Ends For Jungle Jim

OTTAWA (CP) — Jim (Jungle Jim) Hunter of Calgary, one of the country's best known alpine skiers, has announced his retirement from the national ski team to enter the ministry.

The Canadian Ski Association announced the decision Monday, saying it has accepted the resignation of Hunter, an eight-year veteran of the national team, with reluctance.

Hunter, 24, has won several medals in international competition, including a 1973 bronze medal at the Winter Olympics in Japan and several American and Canadian events.

Ed Champagne, manager of Canada's national ski team, says Hunter has had plans to enter the ministry for some time and has played an active part in youth groups and religious gatherings.

"I feel that spreading the gospel is more important than ski racing" he quoted Hunter as saying. Hunter added that his decision was also based on the fact that "I have to make a living, something that amateur racing does not provide."

Evert, Casals King on Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Billie Jean King, Chris Evert and Rosemary Casals have been named to the 1977 United States Federation Cup team, the U.S. Tennis Association has announced.

The team will defend its title at Eastbourne, Britain, in June.

Legion Curling

NEW GLASCOW, N.S. (CP) — Dave Simpson of British Columbia, George Kjenner of Alberta and John Morrison of Saskatchewan each won two games Monday to share the early lead in the 21st annual Royal Canadian Legion curling championship.

Kemp's Bat Booms A Comeback Tune

By The Associated Press

It all fell apart for Steve Kemp on Aug. 29, 1976, and putting it back together has not been easy.

But Kemp continues to make strides along the road back, the latest a 10th-inning home run that gave Detroit Tigers a 6-5 exhibition baseball victory over Montreal Expos on Monday.

"I've felt pressure from all over," says Kemp, a 22-year-old outfielder who is trying to come back from torn ankle ligaments which cost him the final month of the 1976 season.

Kemp, a six-foot, 185-pound left-hander, was considered the brightest pro prospect in the U.S. in 1975 when he was belting home runs as a collegiate all-American at Southern Cal.

The Tigers made him the first pick on the January, 1976 draft. Kemp's early efforts lived up to his billing — .289 in 73 games at Montgomery of the Southern League, then a stunning .386 with 11 homers and 38 runs batted in in 52 games at Evansville of the American Association. He tore his ankle on Aug. 29, undergoing surgery the next day.

Kemp didn't hurt his chances of sticking with the Tigers when he stroked Joe Kerrigan's first pitch in the bottom of the 10th inning over the fence for the winning run against Montreal. Kemp has now driven in 11 runs in nine games this spring.

Meanwhile, Jim Wohlford drove in three runs and Von Joshua homered to lead Milwaukee Brewers past Seattle Mariners 10-3. The expansion Mariners have allowed nearly a run an inning, giving up 101 in 107 1-3 innings to date.

Jim Colborn pitched his second consecutive scoreless five-inning stint as Kansas City Royals routed Chicago White Sox 14-2. A two-run single by Gene Tenace highlighted a four-run eighth inning that carried San Diego Padres past Chicago Cubs 4-2.

First baseman Doug Ault belted two home runs to lead Toronto Blue Jays over New York Mets 5-1. Enos Cabell and Jose Gonzales had three hits and scored three runs apiece as Houston Astros defeated Cincinnati Reds 10-8.

Dennis Walling's two-run triple in the eighth inning gave Oakland A's a 7-5 victory over San Francisco. Reggie Cleveland, a native of Swift Current, Sask., worked six innings and Bernie Carbo stroked a homer and two singles as Boston Red Sox beat St. Louis 11-6.

Bruce Bochte slammed two home runs and Danny Briggs one as California Angels routed Cleveland Indians 12-3. Ron Blomberg doubled home the tying run in the seventh inning and drove in the winner with a sacrifice fly in the eighth as New York Yankees edged Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

B.C. Earns Share Of Women's Lead

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP) — Saskatchewan and British Columbia defeated Quebec and Ontario, respectively, Monday in fifth-round action to move to the lead of the Canadian senior women's curling championship with 4-1 records.

Moose Jaw's Millie Binner dumped Rita Proulx of Quebec City 10-6. Earlier in the day, she beat Vi Pike's Grand Falls, Nfld., rink 8-6.

Burnaby's Vi Tapella kept pace with an 8-3 win in the fifth round over Ontario's Shirley Keeley — her first loss of the tournament. In fourth-round action, Tapella edged Beverly Reber of Whitehorse, representing Yukon-Northwest Territories, 10-8.

Newfoundland handed Alberta its second loss in the tournament with a 9-6 fifth-round win.

Winnipeg's Lorraine Bloomer scored two in the eighth and ninth to clinch a 10-5 win over Joyce Myers of Halifax.

Eberts Drops Two Decisions

HALIFAX (CP) — Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan shared the lead Monday night after four rounds at the Canadian mixed curling championships while British Columbia and Nova Scotia, coleaders after play Sunday, dropped a pair of games apiece.

Defending champion B.C., skipped by Tony Eberts of Williams Lake, had the toughest day, falling in an extra end to John Fortier of Charlottetown in fourth-round action after taking an 8-14 loss from Bob Woods of Toronto in round three when he missed a last-rock attempt to tie at 4-4.

In other round-four action, Garnet Campbell of Avonlea, Sask., stole two in the ninth and pulled away to a 7-3 decision over Alan Darragh of Dartmouth, N.S.; Ontario's Woods grabbed five in the fifth end and whipped Quill Ouellette of Alma, Que., 9-2; Manitoba's Harold Tanasichuk came from behind for an 8-6 triumph over Don Sutton of Alberta; Bill Grozelle of Northern Ontario took a 6-3 win from Joe Burden of Newfoundland; and Richard Belyea of New Brunswick dumped Klaus Schoenne of Yellowknife, N.W.T., 9-3.

Volleyballers Eye B.C. Titles

Six men's teams and eight women's squads will be battling for titles starting Friday in the British Columbia senior volleyball championships at the University of Victoria.

Uvic Vikings, who recently finished second in the Canada West University Athletic Association men's tournament, are hoping the home-floor advantage in McKinnon gymnasium will make a difference in the two-day tourney.

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, who won the CWUAA title and went on to finish second in the Canadian collegiate championships, are favored to take the crown.

Vikings are led by Mike Bonnell, Mark Byra and CWUAA all-star Richard Chapple while Thunderbirds include CWUAA all-stars Tom Jones, Keith Gollicano, Ian Gregory, Walt Janzen and Gary Warner in their lineup.

Defending-champion Vancouver Volleyball Club and 1976 runner-up B.C. Olympics are expected to field strong contenders while Khalsa of Victoria, the reigning B.C. senior "B" champion, and Okanagan Volleyball Club could provide a few surprises.

In the women's division, perennial-champion Vancouver Chimos, who boast Olympic star Patty Olsen and former national team member Helen Hunt in their lineup, are favored.

Rated as a major threat to Chimos are the newly-formed Vancouver All-Stars while UBC Thunderettes, Canadian collegiate champions, are also capable of posting an upset.

UVic Vikettes, Victoria "Y", Victoria Volleyball Club, Mission Volleyball Club and Simon Fraser University are also entered in the women's tourney.

Okanagan Volleyball Club, Vancouver Volleyball Club and B.C. Olympics will form one division for preliminary round-robin competition in the men's tourney while UBC Thunderbirds, Vikings and Khalsa have been drawn into the other pool.

Vancouver All-Stars, UBC Thunderettes, Victoria VC and Simon Fraser form one women's pool while Chimos, Vikettes, Victoria "Y" and Mission will compete in the other section.

Action gets underway at 6 p.m. Friday and resumes at 9 a.m. Saturday. The men's final is scheduled for 7 p.m. and the men's title will be decided at 9. Some of the Saturday games will be played at Mt. Douglas High School.

Mosienko Spree Came 25 Years Ago

BILL MOSIENKO
. . . three goals, 21 seconds

WINNIPEG (CP) — twenty-five years ago Wednesday, on March 23, 1952, Billy Mosienko established a goal-scoring record that has withstood the challenges of time, expansion, curved sticks and the efforts of some of hockey's most explosive scorers.

One of hockey's top scorers himself, Mosienko earned his spot in the record books by scoring three goals in just 21 seconds. The goals sent Chicago Black Hawks to a 7-6 victory over New York Rangers.

"That night brings back fond memories," Mosienko recalls from his comfortable home in the north end of Winnipeg where he grew up.

"It's something that happened. But you didn't realize it . . . it happened so darn fast. I didn't even know it was a record until a team-mate, Jimmy Peters, told me after the third goal.

" 'Mosie' he said, 'go get that puck, that's a record,' It seems like that's all I did that night was retrieve pucks from the net."

Mosienko retrieved all three pucks because the first two represented his 20th and 30th goals of the season, a feat not common in the days of pre-expansion.

"If it does ever get broken, well it'll just get broken. You can't help those things . . , but it would be nice if it could stay. It is an honor."

At age 55, Mosienko has added a few pounds around the middle and has thinning, grey hair. But he still retains that strong, stocky build that enabled him to survive 14 years of punishment in the National Hockey League.

Small by professional hockey standards at five-foot-eight, 160 pounds, Mosienko's size was never a factor mainly because of his skating. He was a joy to watch when he combined his smooth-skating style with tremendous speed and excellent stick-handling.

"I used to spend an awful lot of time at it when I was a youngster," he explained. "I spent hours and hours at the rink, skating backwards, sideways, jumping, stepping, manoeuvring, stick-handling. Skates were like a pair of shoes to me."

And when his skating and other natural hockey ability wasn't enough, his courage was.

"Some guys used to knock the hell out of me, but I would go back after them," Mosienko says with a laugh. "Big bruisers like Jack Stewart . . . there were a lot of times he would end up on his fanny behind the net and he'd say 'You little bugger, I'll get you.'

"Every time I went in there I'd give him a little body-check or something. They respect you for that. I never hesitated going into the corner . . . they may have knocked my head off, but I never backed down."

Mosienko played 711 regular-season games in the NHL scoring 258 goals and 600 points. When he left the NHL he stood seventh among career goalscorers.

He won the Lady Byng Trophy in 1944-45, was twice named to the second all-star team behind Maurice Richard and also shared the record for most assists in a period, four.

Five years after retiring he became, at age 43, the youngest player elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

His desire to succeed resulted in a number of injuries. During his NHL career he had his nose broken three times, his cheek broken, two teeth knocked out, a broken ankle, ligaments torn twice in each knee, toes fractured and a shoulder separated and then fractured.

The worst, and most fearful for a man who some said had a million dollar smile and a million dollar pair of legs, was the broken ankle suffered in the first NHL all-star game, in 1947.

"I didn't know what to think because the doctor in Toronto said they would have to put pins in the ankle. That scared me. But my doctor in Chicago just put it in a cast . . . I was so happy about that."

Mosienko was teamed with the Bentley brothers, Max and Doug, to form the Pony Line, one of hockey's most remembered and successful units. But while Mosienko sat out his ankle injury Max was traded, along with Cy Thomas, to Toronto for five players.

"I don't know what happened, whether they panicked or what, but it was a very bad move," he says now. "It didn't do the team any good."

It came after what Mosienko considers perhaps his only regret in hockey other than failing to win the Stanley Cup.

"I tried to talk the two Bentleys into signing as a unit," he chuckles. "I wanted us to go together and get a five-year contract. But they just wouldn't listen to me . . . I think they were kind of afraid."

So the trade was made and it broke up the Pony Line, a threesome Mosienko compares to the Bobby Hull, Anders Hedberg, Ulf Nilsson line that Winnipeg Jets have formed to terrorize World Hockey Association opponents.

"We all had good speed and threw the puck around a lot, made it work for us," he explained. "Much in the same way that Hull, Hedberg and Nilsson do. That's why it's such a pleasure to watch them."

But his successful bowling alley didn't leave Mosienko much time to watch the game he loves and contributed so much to.

He began his lone business venture in 1948 and it now allows him to enjoy a type of semi-retirement as one of his sons manages the alley.

Mosienko still demonstrates that same smooth-striding style on the blades twice a week when he gets together with a group of other old-timers "just to keep us on our toes."

"We sometimes sit back and reminisce and chuckle about things," he says. "And I sometimes wish I had become more involved after I quit playing. But when I retired I told myself I owed it to my family to get out completely."

HERMAN

Visitors Take Badminton Titles

Vancouver players captured both seniors singles titles Sunday during finals of the British Columbia seniors and masters badminton championships at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Mimi Nilsson won the women's crown by default over Doris Friesen of Cordova Bay while Bert Fergus downed John Meija of Cordova Bay 15-6, 15-7 to collect the men's title.

Other results:

Senior men's doubles: Bert Fergus and Dave Calder, Vanc., defeated John Meija and Frank Brix, Cordova Bay, 5-15, 15-13, 15-3.

Senior mixed doubles: Mimi Nilsson and Bert Fergus defeated Carol and John Meija, Cordova Bay, 5-15, 15-13, 15-3.

Masters women's doubles: Maureen Hibberson and Kay Woodland, RCV, defeated Joyce Jones and Joyce Chinnick, Seattle, 15-14, 15-2.

Masters men's doubles: Dave Adams and Bert Quartermaine, Vanc., defeated Jack Lequesne and George Rawlings, Vict., 15-6, 15-8.

Masters mixed doubles: Greta and Bert Quartermaine, Vanc., defeated Joan Parlby and Jack Lequesne, Cordova Bay, 15-9, 17-14.

Liverpool Draws Everton in Semis

LONDON(AP) — Liverpool and Everton, whose headquarters are one mile apart in Liverpool, were drawn Monday to play each other in the semi-finals of the English Soccer Cup.

Manchester United and Leeds will contest the other semi-final.

When the draw was announced, bookies immediately made Liverpool a 2-1 favorite to win the Cup, with Manchester United second favorite at 5-2.

Liverpool is bidding for an unprecedented triple. It is trying to win the English League, English Cup and European Cup of Champions in the same season.

The semi-finals of the English cup are traditionally played on neutral ground. The Football Association ordered Liverpool and Everton to play at Maine Road, Manchester, and set the Manchester United - Leeds match at Hillsborough, Sheffield.

The semi-finals are scheduled for April 23. The final, which is the traditional closing showpiece of the English season, is at Wembley Stadium on May 21.

Clippers Gain Junior Final

By The Canadian Press

One best-of-seven British Columbia Junior Hockey League semi-final series was decided Monday night while the other will go to a seventh game.

Nanaimo Clippers doubled Langley Lord 6-3 to win the Coast series 4-2, while in Penticton, the Vees beat Kelowna Buckaroos by the same score to tie the Interior series at 3-3.

The final game in the series is Wednesday in Kelowna.

In Langley, George Fritz broke a 3-3 tie with the Lords at 0:37 of the third period as the Clippers went ahead for the win.

Teams were scoreless after the first period and were tied 3-3 after 40 minutes.

Fritz scored twice for Nanaimo, as did Bob Jansch. Singles went to Morley Anderson and Darcey Listaeghe.

Mike Bracko led the winning attack for the Vees with two goals while Dave Smith, Ken Pedersen, John Uveges and Carey Eades added one each.

Injured Skier Improves

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP — Hospital officials said Monday that skier Sheila McKinney was regaining consciousness after being removed from intensive care for injurace.

Sacramento Medical Centre authorities said McKinney, 18, was moved to a regular nursing ward Sunday night. As ries suffered in a World Cup she showed signs of regaining consciousness, attendants revised their description of her condition from "serious" to "fair."

Semi-Final Playoffs Scheduled Saturday

Playoff time arrives on Saturday for teams in the first division of the Vancouver Island Ladies Field Hockey Association.

In semi-final matches, Sandpipers and Mariners will clash at 12:45 on the Beacon Hill pitch and Windsor Park will be the site of a 2:30 contest between UVic Vikettes and Oak Bay.

There was semi-final action last weekend for squads in "A" section of the second division. Evergreens got three goals from Gail Hoskins on the way to a 4-0 triumph over Hobbits Mauve and two-goal efforts by Andrea Anderson and Diane Matry lifted Sanderlings to a 4-0 victory over Rebels Gold.

Tennis Tourney A Family Event

Scheduled April 2 and 3 at the Island Indoor Club in Central Saanich is the first Island closed parent-child tournament.

McCorkall Steers Umps

Veteran official Lou McCorkall has been selected umpire-in-chief for the Lower Vancouver Island zone of the B.C. Amateur Softball Association.

And McCorkall's first call is an invitation to a slow-pitch clinic. District umpires are invited to attend a three-hour session conducted by national umpire-in-chief Ed Bitz.

The clinic will be held in the Ingraham Hotel, starting at noon this Saturday.

Patriots Try Again

Preparing for the their first season in the bantam league, Patriots were trimmed 39-8 by the Hornets Sunday at Duncan as Brian Kennish counted three touchdowns for Saanich.

On Friday, the Patriots will go against the Hornets in another exhibition contest, scheduled for 7 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park.

CEDAR HILL CARNIVAL

A trip for two to Disneyland and other prizes including a color TV set will be awarded during Cedar Hill junior secondary's Spring Carnival Thursday.

Admission is 50 cents and all money raised will be used to sponsor student activities and purchase equipment for the school.

Arbitration Binding: LRB

VANCOUVER (CP) — An arbitration board cannot change its mind about a decision once that decision has been published, the British Columbia Labor Relations Board has ruled.

In a 33-page decision, labor relations board panel headed by vice-chairman Don Munroe, ruled that an arbitration board had overstepped its authority in changing its decision on a grievance involving seniority provisions for hiring and laying off after the employer decided not to comply with one of its requests.

The arbitration board originally ruled that an employee of the Gearmatic Company, laid off before others who had less seniority than he had, was entitled to back pay for being laid off too early.

The board also requested that the company improve its training program for first aid attendants because this would allow it to observe seniority more closely in lay-offs.

When the company declined to do so, however, the board reconvened and ruled that the employee should be reinstated and given back pay effective to the date that its first finding was published.

In overturning this second ruling, the labor relations board panel said the arbitration board had, in effect, reversed its decision rather than simply amending and completing it.

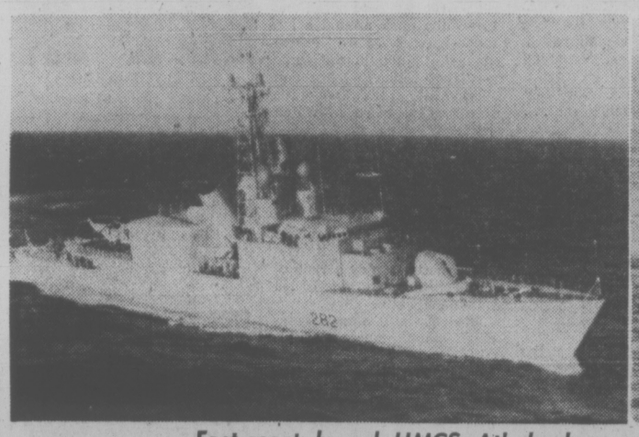
DUNCAN, N. COWICHAN UNION GETS SUPPORT

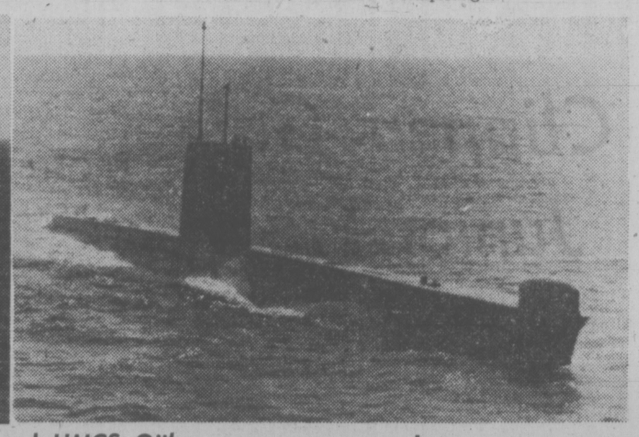
DUNCAN — A straw vote among 1,700 homes and business by Duncan Ald. Michael Coleman indicates 44 per cent of the population favors amalgamation between Duncan and the neighboring municipality of North Cowichan.

In response to the three-part questionaire, 27 per cent favored retaining present boundaries and 29 per cent support retaining Duncan's identity but expanding present boundaries.

Only 121 replies have been received, Coleman said, but the divisions are very marked.

A vote scheduled this spring on boundary realignment involving Duncan, North Cowichan, Saltair and Eagle Heights has been delayed until the committee studying the idea receives financial information from the provincial government.





East-coast based HMCS Athabaskan and HMCS Ojibwa on manoeuvres here

Naval Sailpast Off Beacon Hill Friday

HMCS Athabaskan, one of Canada's new Tribal class helicopter-destroyers will be joined by three Esquimalt-based destroyers and a New Zealand frigate in a sailpast off Victoria on Friday.

It will mark the beginning of a five-week operational, maintenance and visit program for the Halifax-based Athabaskan and the east coast-based submarine HMCS Ojibwa.

Also taking part in the sailpast will be the destroyers HMCS Gatineau, HMCS Terra Nova and HMCS Kootenay, which return this week from Exercise Rimpac 77, a multinational exercise in Hawaiian waters.

The New Zealand frigate is HMNZS Otago. She will visit Esquimalt until April 13 and Vancouver from April 20 to 25.

Both Athabaskan and Ojibwa will be operating out of Esquimalt until May 5. Athabaskan will be in Vancouver from April 1 to 5 and Ojibwa from April 22 to 25.

Ojibwa, which travelled from Halifax with Athabaskan, will not take part in the sailpast. Instead, she will head directly for the Canadian Forces Maritime Experimental and Test Ranges at Nanoose Bay near Nanaimo.

The Athabaskan will be open to the public at CFB Esquimalt between 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on April 10, 11, 17 and 24.

Capable of more than 27 knots, she is one of four Tribal class ships built in Quebec at a cost of approximately $63 million each. The 426-foot vessel carries 285 officers and men, as well as 30 trainees.

The Ojibwa will be open to the public in Esquimalt during the same hours on April 2, 10, 11 and 17.

The two ships will also be open to the public during the same hours while in Vancouver.

Separatism Debate Topic

Teams from Victoria High School and Shawnigan Lake School will participate in a debate on separatism at the Open Space Gallery Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Open Space is presently located in temporary premises situated at 1960 Government, opposite Labatt's Brewery.

The resolution to be debated is "that all separatist parties should be declared illegal".

Speaking for the affirmative will be Tom Harding and Rob Kohenter of Vic High. Shawnigan Lake School will be represented by Don Hayes and Kelly Wiebe, speaking for the negative.

Master Key Eyed For Oak Bay Fires

A plan that could save time, door-breaking and lives, has been proposed for Oak Bay apartment blocks in case of fire.

Council has been asked to approve the purchase of latch key vaults to be fastened near a main entrance of apartment buildings. Firemen responding to an alarm would carry a master key.

Inside each vault would be the building's main entry key, allowing firemen to enter without delay.

At present, one Oak Bay fire truck carries 48 different apartment building keys, but as Chief Fred Leeke points out, that truck may not always respond to an alarm, and in any case it may stand unattended at a fire, during which the keys would be insecure.

ABDUCTION WARRANT

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Victoria area man wanted in connection with an abduction in Sidney Saturday, RCMP said today.

Police would not identify the suspect.

A 17-year-old Victoria girl was abducted at knifepoint after a man picked her up near the Town and Country shopping centre and gave her a ride to Sidney. The girl jumped out of the car about a mile past Beacon Ave. and ran to a nearby house for help.

Bahamas Legislation Hits Victoria Investors

Several Victorians have expressed concern over new legislation in the Bahamas requiring foreigners to register their holdings with the government by March 31 or face a $3,000 fine.

The investors are mainly concerned by the fact the Nassau government made no announcement in Canada of the new requirement.

Canadians holding land in the Bahamas are required to obtain registration forms from the government and return them by March 31, just over one week away.

Word of the new legislation came from the Bahamian embassy in Washington. The Canadian external affairs department transmitted the information to Ottawa but details of the legislation remain sketchy.

It requires two things of foreign investors. They must pay an annual tax, as little as $20, and they must register their holdings. It is the second requirement that is causing concern.

If fines of $3,000 are levied and not quickly paid the Canadian investors fear they could have their property confiscated.

The main intent of the legislation is to control speculation and get a list of all foreign holdings in the country.

Report Hushed On Cowichan

DUNCAN — A report on the administration of the Cowichan Valley Region District is being kept secret until further discussions.

The region board saw the report for the first time at a weekend meeting with representatives of Peat, Marwick and Partners of Vancouver, who drew up the 14-page document after a week-long review of the area's administration.

Board chairman Ken Paskin, mayor of Duncan, refused to discuss the report until after another meeting on the matter March 30.

Pumphouse Plan Wins Approval

Oak Bay sensitivity to pumphouse construction may not be as strong as supposed after the outcry from Shoal Bay residents opposed to a large sewerage pumping station.

The municipality asked residents of the Beach Drive-Orchard Avenue area to comment on its plan to rebuild a 20-year-old water pumphouse on the foreshore between Orchard and Oak Bay Marina.

And she liked the proposed design with its rock-faced exterior: "I think the pumphouse is very pretty."

But what the residents of her block would like to see is more screening about the marina parking lot and pruning or replacement of trees in front of the building to improve the outlook.

The requests would be examined, she was told.

Weapons Banned In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Three semi-automatic rifles known as the Commando Mark V, the Cold Model AR-15 and the Thompon Model 27A-1 have been placed on the restricted weapons list.

In a press release Friday, Justice Minister Ron Basford said "the guns have no legitimate sporting use in Canada and are closely modelled along military lines. We do not want weapons of this kind readily available in Canada without exercising control over those who possess them."

No restricted weapon may be sold, bought or possessed without the permission of the attorney-general or the commissioner of the RCMP. Penalty for possession of a restricted weapon is up to five years in jail.

Nona Damaske Dies at 61

A memorial service will be held in Indio, Calif., Friday for former Times fashion editor Nona Muriel Richardson, 61.

Under the byline, Nona Damaske, Mrs. Richardson wrote weekly columns for the Times for about 10 years.

She was also well-known as a model in the city and was a devoted worker for the Junior Solarium League.

She died at Palm Desert on March 14.

She is survived by her husband, Frank Davis Richardson and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth May Jackson, both of Palm Desert.

JUVENILE AGE CHANGE TO 12 PROPOSED

FOX

OTTAWA (CCP) — The age of criminal responsibility, currently seven, would be raised to 12 under proposed legislation to replace the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

Solicitor-General Francis Fox said in an interview Monday that the main points of the bill, which has not yet been introduced in the Commons, will be discussed at a forthcoming federal-provincial conference on the subject.

—Police would be allowed to fingerprint and photograph youths 12 to 18—the age group to be covered by the bill — charged with serious criminal offences. The prints and photos would be returned if the youth was acquitted.

—A specific charge would have to be placed and would be heard in a youth court. The Crown or the accused could move to have the case heard in adult court. In the case of 12 - or - 13 - year - olds, consent of an attorney-general would be needed for such a move.

—Judges handling such cases could impose orders of restitution up to $1,000. They could also sentence offenders to community chores or probation. Maximum sentence for an offence would be three years in custody, separate from adult offenders, or a $1,000 fine.

—Youths would be entitled to legal representation. Currently juvenile court hearings are often informal, evidence may be vague, and resulting custody lengthy.

—Judges would be able to recommend examination of a youth believed to be suffering from a physical or mental illness, learning disability or mental retardation. A youth found unfit to stand trial could be referred to the provincial authority for treatment.

—The public would be excluded from youth courts and two reporters allowed to attend. The judge would decide whether youths could be publicly identified.

Indexed Pensions Hit

OTTAWA (FP) — The federal government was advised yesterday to stop granting "indexed" pensions to public servants who take early retirement.

It was also advised to examine the potential cost of indexed pensions to those retiring at 65.

The recommendations were contained in the fifth report of the advisory group on executive compensation in the public service.

Allen T. Lambert, chairman of the advisory group, said indexed public pensions create pressures on private firms to follow suit.

However, this would be an extremely costly undertaking and, in all likelihood, beyond the financial capacity of the private sector.

In other major recommendations the group proposed that growth in size of the executive population of the public service be restrained, but that salary ranges applying to senior executives be increased.

One group also proposed that the freeze on executive salaries be lifted March 1, 1977; that performance assessments of executives be stiffened; and that a large group of employees immediately below the executive level be denied collective bargaining rights, in order to create "a buffer" between the bargaining groups and those outside of them.

It was recommended that demotions and dismissals be used more frequently in dealing with inadequate performers in the public service, and that greater use be made of early retirement provisions in removing inadequate performers.

The report said a disproportionate number of executives in the public service have their performances assessed as "superior" or "outstanding."

It called for "a more realistic appraisal" using an alternate rating methodology.

The report stated that managers should be allowed as much freedom as possible in reallocating executive resources.

And it noted a tendency in the bureaucracy to reward spending, and to punish managers who save funds.

It was the pension recommendations that stood out, however.

Foreign Academics To Face Roadblocks

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government Monday announced measures making it more difficult for foreign academics to enter Canada.

Immigration Minister Bud Cullen said in a statement that as of April 15, persons planning to come to Canada to take university teaching appointments must have an approved job offer in addition to meeting immigration requirements.

Schools seeking to hire foreign teachers also must show the positions being offered cannot be filled by Canadian citizens or landed immigrants.

Cullen said the positions must be advertised throughout Canada first.

Women Pound MPs on 'Rights'

OTTAWA (CP) — A day-long campaign by women Monday provoked debate in the Commons and in offices on Parliament Hill over unemployment, wage discrimination, family law, the Indian Act and abortion.

Members of the National Action Committee on the Status of Women discussed these issues with MPs from all parties in meetings while opposition leaders challenged the government during the daily question period in the Commons.

Manpower Minister Bud Cullen said the government is trying to do its best about unemployment which Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark called "a particular crisis facing Canadian women who are out of work and looking for work."

Latest statistics show nearly one million Canadians are unemployed with the rate among women at 9.8 per cent and among men at 8.7 per cent. They also show the average full-time working woman earns 57 cents for every dollar earned by the average full-time working man.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent blamed anti-inflation legislation for widening that wage gap by usually allowing only across-the-board percentage wage increases to workers.

Meanwhile, June Menzies, vice-chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, told National Action Committee members that by attacking the legislation on these grounds, they are diverting attention away from other fundamental problems that have to be solved.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said the board will grant greater increases to women who have suffered wage discrimination but "of course, the initiative in this regard rests with the collective bargaining representatives of the women in question."

But Mrs. Menzies acknowledged during her meeting with the women that the board had in at least one case prevented unionized female workers from getting wage parity with male workers despite a parity agreement with their employer.

As committee members told MPs that only two per cent of women have access to day care centres, Cyril Symes (NDP—Sault St. Marie) presented a motion in the Commons — not voted on— calling for increased federal financing of day care centres.

The federal government provides no capital costs but shares operating costs with provincial governments for day care.

NO CP AIR TAKEOVER—LANG

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has no intention of having Air Canada take over CP Air despite difficulties faced by the private carrier, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Monday.

Lang told Ron Huntington (PC—Capilano) in the Commons that the government is working to improve the conditions under which privately-owned airlines operate.

Huntington said part of the cause for the Vancouver-based airline's recent losses and the payoff of 200 employees is duplication by Air Canada of some CP Air flights, causing both airlines to lose money on what could be profitable runs.

HANDICAPPED PERFORM

Thespians Prove Play's the Thing

There are no potential Oscar winners in this group, whose members perform without bright lights, costumes or fancy stage props.

There's not even an audience.

But none of that matters to the kids who make up the weekly drama class at the Cedar Hill Community Centre, organized by the Victoria Society for the Recreation of Handicapped Persons.

For these youngsters, in the words of Hamlet, the play's the thing.

"Like any other kids, they like pretending and using their imagination," says Suzanne Simard, who runs the program.

Mostly the young thespians like to read and then act out a story. Stories featuring animal characters are especially popular, because they offer plenty of scope for growling, grunting histrionics.

Beginners are sometines a little shy and awkward but that stage only lasts a couple of weeks and then they lose their inhibitions, she says.

The group includes at least one extrovert — nine-year-old Robbie. Given the slightest encouragement he will not only write an instant play but also direct it and play a starring role.

Recent absences for operations and health problems have reduced the class to four children, but organizers expect numbers will build up to about eight by the end of March.

Then they'll get down to serious rehearsals for one of their more ambitious ventures — a play for the enjoyment of parents.

Across town another program conducted by the VSRHP is under way in the gymnasium at Oak Bay's Henderson Park recreation centre.

This time it's physical education, and the enthusiasm is just as apparent.

For about 90 minutes once a week, up to 10 youngsters aged seven to 11 have themselves a ball. They tightrope walk around a course of narrow benches, clamber over apparatus, crawl through a tunnel fo wooden boxes and generally let off steam.

After a while, there's a noticeable improvement in coordination and agility, said Philip.

Drama and physical education are just two of the ways in which the society is trying to provide a full, active and enjoyable life for handicapped children in the Greater Victoria area.

It's an aim which the Times, together with CJVI, wants to help by sponsoring a fund-raising campaign.

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE DONATIONS

To make your donation to this worthwhile cause:

Make cheques or money orders payable to the Handicapped Recreation Society and mail to the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas Street, P.O. Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4.

Donations placed in an envelope addressed to the Handicapped Recreation Society may also be left at the counter of the main floor office at Victoria Press building, 2621 Douglas.

A receipt will be given if requested and accompanied by a name and address. The society has applied for a tax registration number.

Unless donors wish to be anonymous, the Times will publish a list of donations later.

BALANCE BEAMS at Henderson Park recreation centre are fascinating path for Pamela Vickers, 7, to follow, with a little help from Judith Armstrong. The Times is sponsoring drive to raise operating funds for Victoria Society for Recreation of Handicapped Persons, which operates 17 programs for local handicapped children, teenagers and adults. Civil Service Smear Denied By McCarthy

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy "smeared the whole civil service" when she said some of its members are politicized, NDP leader Dave Barrett charged Monday.

The long debate on the political leanings of civil servants erupted in the legislature during debate on the spending estimates of McCarthy's office after Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber charged McCarthy is trying to interfere in the province's judicial system.

McCarthy denied the charge and suggested Barber must have obtained his information from a "politicized" civil servant left over from the days of the NDP government.

Barber said in the legislature he had information which suggested that McCarthy, at a cabinet meeting with justice officials March 16, had suggested both a cabinet committee and an outside consultant investigation into the operations of the ministry of the attorney general.

Barber suggested that McCarthy's lack of confidence in Attorney General Garde Gardom prompted her suggestions.

McCarthy said Barber's allegations were "completely erroneous" and said that as all those present at the March 16 meeting had taken an oath of secrecy, Barber must have received his information from a civil servant present at the meeting who was "politicized."

McCARTHY
. . . weathers attack

Opposition skokesmen charged that McCarthy, by her statement, had attacked the integrity of all civil servants at the meeting and the public service as a whole.

McCarthy said during the years of the NDP government, for the first time the province had a political civil service.

"For the first time we had a political public service and those are the same people we had to work with today," she said.

McCarthy denied she had meant a personal attack on anyone who was at the meeting.

McCarthy said she had not made a blanket charge against the civil service.

"I am not saying that we have a political civil service, I'm saying that under the NDP government we had a civil service that became very politicized.

"I want to make it clear that this government believes in having a public service that has no fear or favor from whatever government comes to B.C., " she said.

Barrett charged that political statements made by McCarthy while the NDP was government had "poisoned the political life of this province."

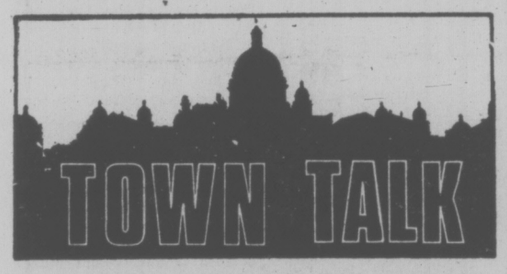
He suggested that McCarthy had a double standard which dictated that political civil servants were all right as long as they were Socreds, not NDP.

Barrett said both the NDP and the Socreds make political order-in-council appointments, but that is different from the civil service.

He said as soon as the NDP lost the election it fired all the political appointees made during its terms of office.

The Socreds, he said, had hired exactly the same kind of political "hacks."

"My hack is better than your hack — is that what it's come down to?" he asked.



Do plumbers in Sidney really get paid more than a dollar a minute? Alas, it appears to be another of those pipe dreams.

Sidney Mayor Dick Leigh told a council committee meeting Monday night about a woman who complained to him after being charged $62 to have two tap washers fixed. That's the normal hourly rate for a plumber in Sidney, he said.

And that's news to plumbers. Tom Wheatley, business agent for the plumbers' union in Victoria, said the journeyman rate for plumber is $11.16 an hour plus cost of fringe benefits.

That's what a union plumber working for a contractor gets. But what does the contractor charge the customer? Bill Maxwell of G. H. Birnie Ltd. said his firm's charge-out rate is $25 an hour and he doesn't know of anyone charging more than $28 an hour.

Got 15 minutes at lunchtime? Catch the noon show at the Bay cookware department. The patter and humor of wok cookery teacher Stephen Yan is worth as much as the demonstration.

He makes no bones about pushing Chinese wok utensils for the Bay and the cookbook he wrote based on 20 years' experience.

In about 10 minutes Monday he prepared a hot meal of vegetables and flank steak — plenty for two average appetities — and had the crowd drooling.

Yan, in a typical aside, said after doing this all week he eats at McDonald's.

Ald Sandy Noel lauded the effort, which cleared the park of trash ranging from old refrigerators, bath tubs and car engines to "two caches of Sears catalogues."

University of Victoria president Dr. Howard Petch was obviously sympathetic towards the students who crowded in to a board meeting to oppose those UVic fee hikes Monday.

Petch said he realized the fee hikes would be an excessive burden for some and painted a touching picture of an impoverished student starving in a garret.

Can you give me the names of the three bills passed by the Alberta legislature in 1936-37, during the term of Premier William Aberhart, which were not signed by the lieutenant-governor?

During a special session of the Alberta Legislature in August, 1937, three bills were passed which were designed to place all banks under the control of the Social Credit Board and compel them to operate with the board in the establishment of the Social Credit monetary system. The three bills were, The Alberta Credit Regulation Act, The Bank Employees Civil Rights Act, and The Judicature Amendment Act of 1937. All were given royal assent by the lieutenant-governor Aug. 6, 1937, but were later disallowed by the federal government.

What are the results of Italy's recent election, the number of members elected, and the name of the majority party and the opposition? F.J.B.

In Italy's election in June, 1976, the Christian Democrats won 262 seats with 38.7 per cent of the vote, the Communists, 228 seats with 34.4 per cent and the Socialists 57 seats with 9.6 per cent. There were about eight other parties which received a few seats each. There are a total of 630 seats in Italy's Chamber of Deputies.

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

A 200-strong University of Victoria student lobby failed Monday to sway Uvic governors from increasing tuition fees by up to 26.2 per cent.

But the students, who marched through a downpour and jammed into the room where the board met, learned that while fees will go up, more financial aid may be provided.

At a rally shortly before the board met, the students chanted anti-fee hike slogans and brandished placards protesting the proposed increases.

The students then crowded into the board meeting to listen to the debate that ended with governors voting 10-2 to increase fees in most faculties from $428 to $540 in September.

PETCH

Other increases include a 30 per cent rise for law bringing the annual cost to $658 and a 25 per cent hike for all graduate fees. The average cost per course for part-time students will increase 20 per cent.

In a report to the board of governors, UVic president Dr. Howard Petch recommended a significant increase in funds be made available by the university for student financial assistance.

Petch suggested a 73 per cent increase in undergraduate scholarships, bursaries and job placement aid to $130,000 and a 58 per cent uplift in graduate fellowships, scholarships and bursaries to $435,000.

Petch cited rising costs in all areas of univeristy operation, rising tuition fees in other parts of Canada and the fact there has been no fee increase for 12 years in B.C. as reasons for requesting the fee hike.

"It's like having an operation," he said after the decision was made, "painful but necessary."

Student representatives given an opportunity to address the meeting said higher fees will put the university further out of the reach of the low income groups.

Alma Mater Society President Brian Gardiner said if the fee increase is the cause of even one student not making it back to class next year, "then we all have to bear the responsibility."

Student senator Theresa Kerin, who was instrumental in getting the university senate to oppose the fee increase, said the $600,000 that will be raised by higher tuition could be found by trimming the budget.

One of the two governors who voted against the increase, Molly Phillips, noted that 30 per cent of returning students last year earned less that $1,000 last summer.

Saanich Adds Police

Saanich council Monday approved a $3.3 million police budget and the hiring of eight more policemen and two clerk-typists.

The 1976 police budget was pegged at $2.9 million.

Ald. Ian Cass observed the new staff will make more men "available for front-line duty."

Mayor Ed Lum, who is also chairman of the police board, said the eight new constables won't be of benefit for at least eight or nine months because this time is needed for initial training.

Ald. Sandy Noel noted Saanich policemen now have to spend hours writing up reports at the end of their day. Tape recorders will be used in the future and the new clerk-typists will complete reports from the tapes.

"Because of the increase in crime over the past two years, the existing persons just can't cope with it," Lum explained.

Lum said the attorney-generals' department is also trying to streamline court procedures.

He said this would reduce the large amounts of overtime spent by policemen in courts.

Announcer Axed and So Is Ecology Show

By MARK HUME

It was to have been the biggest thing to hit Duncan's airwaves in decades, more than 100 hours of non-stop broadcasting by two determined disc jockies who wanted to push their endurance and environmental concern to the limit.

But it never got off the ground.

CKAY Radio 1500 Ltd., was going to go gunning for the top spot — the "wake-a-thon" record of 108 hours set in 1958 by Vancouver broadcaster Red Robinson.

The theme was to be oil — tankers, pipelines, pollution.

Ralph Hull and Richard Hughes called it the Clearwater Marathon, after a newly emerged local environmental group, Clearwater, and they spent six weeks getting it organized.

Federal, provincial and regional politicians were lined up and it was hoped they'd go at each other's throats, said the organizers. There were to be conservatives and eco-freaks — the April 1 weekend show was going to have fireworks.

And then the bottom fell out. The man who started it all, the man who kept the ball rolling, Ralph Hull, was fired last Thursday.

The Clearwater Marathon went down before it even got airborne.

"This is so sudden it's just shocking," said Hull, Monday. "There was no warning, nothing, just bang."

Hull, who's 40, says he has more broadcasting experience than the rest of the CKAY staff put together and can't understand why he was fired, unless it was because of his involvement with Clearwater.

"He didn't fit in with the operation . . . it's as simple as that," she said.

Mykyte adds that Hull was let go without any notice because he was finishing up his three-month probationary period after being hired in December.

As for the Clearwater group, she says, "it is an organization that's probably very needed and we've tried to help them as much as I can."

And the proposed marathon broadcast?

"Well, it's died a natural kind of death," she says.

Hughes said Hull was the sparkplug behind the planned show and everybody who knew anything about it knew it couldn't go on without him.

He said although he'd never heard any complaints about Hull's performance he could see that management might be displeased with him, "because he's not your format top 40 disc jockey."

He said if the station had wanted to stop the show, "we'd have cancelled the weekend, we wouldn't have terminated his employment."

Cartwright said he still likes the concept and would still like to see something done with it, but right now is a little short on staff.

CHILD MISHAPS HIGH ON ROADS, IN WATER

GENEVA (Reuter) — Children who die in accidents are most likely to meet death on the roads or by drowning, the World Health Organization says. A study among 151 member countries on child accident mortality said death rates from accidents among children under 15 were lowest in Sweden and Paraguay while Egypt had the highest rate.

Top Designs Now for Men

By BERNARDINE MORRIS
New York Times

NEW YORK — Who are some of the best known men's fashion designers?

Pierre Cardin, Yves Saint Laurent, Bill Blass, Christian Dior, John Weitz.

What do they all have in common?

Why this fashionable rite of passage? Because women's clothes traditionally are more diversified, more receptive to change. Men managed to get by with a brand name or a manufacturer's label until the influx of designers from the women's field in the 1960s.

There's another reason, too, as Gerald Guttman, vice president of Progress Brand Clothes, a men's wear producer in Montreal, pointed out.

"Women are a definite influence on their mates," he said.

The monogram he spoke of was CD. for Christian Dior, a name that, according to Guttman, "means something to the women."

He was one of several hundred manufacturers and retailers who crowded into the Four Seasons for a showing of Dior men's fashions. It combined, in a surprisingly effective way, the Dior designs by 12 licences in the United States, the best known of which are Hart Schaffner & Marx for suits and Hathaway for shirts.

But there were shoes, umbrellas, ties and beach clothes presented, proving that a man can spend a whole day, from the time he slips into a terry cloth robe after his morning shower until he goes out for the evening in basic black dinner clothes, wearing nothing but Dior.

The fashion show procedure is one that has been adopted from the women's field, and most men still do not look quite comfortable on a runway. They tend to smoke a lot, to show that they're at ease, or to slap each other too heartily on the back to show that they're friendly.

So producers of men's fashion shows tend to throw a few women models into the act to loosen things up. In this case, the women conveniently wore Dior clothes from Paris. Sometimes they wore men's pajama tops to offer a little life style commentary, but except for one who was decorated with neckties as if they were a grass skirt, the women were generally subordinate.

The men's clothes managed to show sufficient variety within the confines of the Dior standard of rather quiet tastefulness. Wraparound skirts were about as playful as they got, but the skirts were in terrycloth and were meant for the bath or the pool.

In outerwear, loose wraps on the order of ponchos were received enthusiastically by some suburban men in the audience, "because they're so comfortable when you're driving."

And obviously the most practical style a man could own is a pair of grey flannel pants, which he can team with a matching battle jacket and matching vest for business.

Before you buy a new shower sprayer, soak the old, sort-of-clogged one in white vinegar (dilute the vinegar with water if the head is plastic) for an hour to two. You can then ream out the loosened calcium deposits with a long needle and have a free-flowing stream of water once again.

Never place the control of your electric blanket under your bedside lamp. The thermostat is warmed by the burning bulb, and you won't get the warmth you want. On the other hand if you place the control near a cool window the blanket will overreact to the cool air. Add a lightweight blanket or spread over your automatic blanket and you won't need to set the control so high — heat rises, you know. How much does it cost to use the blanket for a month of nights? About 80 cents when you know how to use it properly.

Each year accidents kill more than 2,000 Canadian children under 15 and seriously injure half a million others. Many serious accidents can be prevented if parents and babysitters know what type of accidents children are prone to at various ages.

The 16-pages booklet "Your Child's Safety" tells you how to protect babies and toddlers, pre-schoolers and children between 5 and 10 years of age.

It also suggests some two dozen questions you should ask yourself: Do you store knives and scissors well out of reach of young children? Do you turn the handles of pots and pans toward the back of the stove? Are your scatter rugs anchored so that nobody can slip? Do you use flame-restardant fabrics for home furnishings?

Don't Ignore Gran

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear mother who lives about an hour's drive away. She's blind, but very cheerful and mentally alert. I phone her every day. She lives with a housekeeper and loves to have company.

When she had her sight, she couldn't do enough for my children. She sewed for them, bought them gifts and always made sure there were goodies in her house. Now the children are teenagers, and I have to beg them to visit their grandmother because it is so "boring" there, there's nothing to do there, etc.

My husband and I visit her as often as possible. We realize that our kids are involved with friends and activities, so we don't expect them to accompany us on every visit, but is it too much to expect them to visit her once a month?

They read your column daily, Abby. I can bet my bottom dollar that you'll agree with me, but if the kids hear it from Dear Abby, maybe they'll realize that Mom and Dad are right. — ASKING.

DEAR ASKING: Your children are old enough to realize that it's a mark of maturity to do things (without whining) that aren't particularly fascinating but are well worth the effort because of the pleasure it gives others. Visiting grandparents fall into that category.

A suggestion for youngsters who resist visiting elderly relatives because it's "boring": Interview the old folks. Ask questions about relatives who preceded you, how things were back in the "olden days." You'll learn some interesting facts, and you'll find that those visits will be rewarding to you and the old folks.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl and my problem is I'm flat. My mother thinks that if a girl is flat, she shouldn't wear a padded bra because it's like false advertising. I have a part-time job, so I bought myself a few padded bras, and when my mother saw them, she went berserk! She took the bras back to the store, said they were the "wrong kind" and got my money back.

Abby, being flat-chested really bothers me. When I can afford it and I'm on my own, the first thing I'm going to do is get silicone implants.

In the meantime, I'd sure appreciate if you would back me up and say that some girls wear padded bras so they'll look better in clothes and not as "false advertising." Thanks. — PLENTY OF NOTHING.

DEAR PLENTY: I'm on your side. I'm also behind you concerning what you don't have in front of you. Lotsa luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am a directory assistance operator and until I started working I didn't know there were so many rude, inconsiderate and thoughtless people in the world.

In the first place, wouldn't you think a person who wants to have a telephone number would have sensee enough to have a pencil in his hand when he calls? No way. They call us first, and then ask us to wait until they find a pencil.

Also, when we ask them how to spell a name, they will say, "If I knew how to spell it, I'd find it myself!"

When we do find a number, do they say, "Thank you?" No, they just slam down the receiver!

One more thing, Abby. Will you please ask adults not to ask their very young children to call for them? One thing that drives a telephone operator up a wall is a kid who cannot be heard or understood.

Even if this doesn't make your column, it did me a lot of good just to be able to get this off my chest. — OPERATOR.

DEAR OPERATOR: Glad to oblige. It's time someone gave a little recognition to that vast faceless army of unthanked heroes and heroines.

Japanese Demand Equality

TOKYO (Reuter) — A group of teachers and housewives is campaigning for an end to compulsory sex segregation in Japan's state-run schools.

The Kateika Kai group wants equal educational opportunities for children and a change in the traditional Japanese educational philosophy that boys should be trained for a career and girls for the home.

The organization, whose name means "Association to Promote Domestic Science Classes for Boys and Girls," is gaining increasing support in its campaign.

The results of a recent government survey of 5,000 Japanese women show how public attitudes have changed in four years.

Less than 50 per cent polled still agree with the old maxim that girls must be educated to be gentle and boys to be strong. Four years ago a similar survey revealed that more than 80 per cent adhered to traditional Japanese principles.

In Japanese schools, a minimum of four hours a week is allocated to home management, cookery and sewing lessons for girls and carpentry, electronics and body-building for boys.

The association argues that girls grow up believing their vocation is confined to motherhood and housekeeping while boys, before reaching adulthood, see women as their social inferiors.

Recycle Throwaway Containers Into Mini-Greenhouses

Large peanut butter jars and translucent plastic milk containers, can be recycled into mini-greenhouses that will give your garden a big jump on spring.

The peanut butter jars, of course, are the easiest to use: just take off their lids, wash the containers, and turn them upside down over whatever in your vegetable patch needs this kind of protection.

Last year, for instance, the mulched soil in which I seeded my first planting of pole lima beans was so cold that the beans began to rot instead of germinate. So I replanted the crop with an upended peanut butter jar over every bean. Presto! The extra heat that collected under each cloche brought the limas right up and quickly forced me to remove the individual greenhouses altogether (to keep the new growth inside from being scalded during the increasingly warm and sunny days).

Translucent plastic milk jugs work even better as garden plant protectors (since you can regulate their internal temperatures by removing and replacing their lids). Just cut the bottoms right out of these containers and set the jugs — upright, this time! — down over your early transplants.

For the leaflet, "Mini Garden," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Mother Earth News®, in care of this newspaper, Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa 50306. Ask for Reprint No. 180.

Frozen Juice Keeps Vitamins

MONTREAL (CP) — Consumers who cut purchases of expensive items need not worry about gettting the required nutrients in their diet, says dietitian Helene Tremblay, if they substitute processed fruit and vegetables and if the rest of their diet contains a variety of foods.

Vitamins B and C are more sensitive to air and light than other vitamins, she said.

In winter consumers are never sure of the nutrients present as they're influenced by transportation time and the way produce is stored.

She said vitamin C content of oranges increases also as the fruit matures on the tree. When partially ripe fruit is picked for shipment, the vitamin C content is not that high.

Ms. Tremblay is president of the recently formed L'Association des Dietitetists Autonomes du Quebec, which numbers about 70 private practising dietitions around the province.

To be sure you're getting enough vitamin C, she tells her patients, use frozen and canned orange juice in the winter. High quality, mature fruit is used for processing.

Four onces of orange juice provides all the vitamin C an adult requires for the day. Potatoes, are also a good source. One medium potato, peeled after baking because the vitamin C is right under the skin, will provide two thirds of the required amount as will one cup of mashed potato.

The B complex vitamins provided by vegetables are also present in whole grain breads and cereals and meat.

Ms. Tremblay said one portion of meat and the amount of milk recommended in Canada's Food Guide will satisfy the daily requirements for vitamin B.

The guide recommends adults drink 12 ounces of milk, children under 12 drink 20 ounces, children over 12, pregnant and lactating women drink 32 ounces.

"We require only a small amount of vitamin A which is provided by yellow vegetables such as carrots and acorn squash and some green vegetables. Half a cup of carrot or spinach provides twice the amount adults require per day.

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

DEAR LYNN and JOEL: Yesterday, while visiting a friend I fell in love with one of her plants called an Irish lace fern. I'm determined to buy one, but I need all the information I can get before I make the purchase since she hasn't been having much luck with hers. I'll wait for your advice before I buy it. Thanks so much.—E.P.

DEAR E.P.: Our advice — and we're quite serious — is don't buy it; not unless you can afford the luxury of having a beautiful plant for a few weeks and then throwing it out. Or, unless you have a greenhouse.

We grant you that it's difficult not to fall in love with this lush, soft, beautiful member of the fern family, but we've yet to see one that didn't eventually turn brown at the crown and then slowly turn yellow all over and die.

We've tried watering from the bottom, but that didn't help. Misting doesn't seem to do the trick, either. Perhaps the only hope in keeping these lovelies alive is to have the luck of the Irish.

Sorry we can't be more helpful, but you asked for our advice and you've got it. By the way, if any of our readers have had success with the Irish lace fern, please let us know. We'd dearly love to have one ourselves. And that's no blarney!

I have been trying to buy the cancer drug "laetril." My doctor says it is worthless, but I'd like to try it anyway. He says it's not available in this country. Where can I get It? — Mr. B. N.

Dear Mr. N.:

Since I completely agree with your doctor that laetril is a valueless anti-cancer drug, I can hardly suggest the black market areas where it is avaiable. Laetril is a chemical substance that is extracted from fruits, especially plums, peaches and apricots. Those who are enthusiastic about laetril have produced no evidence of the fact that it has any value in the control or cure of early or late cancer.

The Federal Drug Administration has thoroughly investigated laetril. A panel of cancer experts came to the conclusion that "there is insufficient evidence of the efficacy of laetril to justify its use in humans. In addition, its safety was not established.

"Laetril is not a drug, in any sense, and must be consigned to the category of nostrums and quack remedies. Patients who insist on obtaining laetril can always be told to save their money."

The cost of laetril purchased illicitly is exorbitant. The underground black market is extensive.

I'm certain that if you hunt long enough you, too, can fall into the trap of exploitation. You'd be wise to give up your search for this valueless substance.

When I was a child I had ether as an anesthetic, for a hernia operation. I've never forgotten the experience, nor the smell of that ether. If my child needs surgery, can ether be avoided? — Mrs. R.R.

Dear Mrs. R.:

Almost all of us who have ever been given ether remember, as you do, the unpleasantness of the experience.

Ether still remains one of the safest and best anesthetics. Because of its disagreeable after-effects, it is being used less and less. During the past ten years, there has been enormous progress in the gases for inhalation anesthetics.

The anesthetics that are now given are easier to take. In addition, there is a marked diminution in the nausea and vomiting post-operatively. Nitrous oxide, cyclopropane and fluothane are only a few of the many compounds that are now being safely used.

THE LOWEST PRICED POPULAR CAR IS HERE.

Terrific, but price isn't everything.

The Toyota Canadian definitely lives up to its name and comes equipped to give you exceptional value for your money. That's because it's a direct result of exhaustive testing by Toyota in Northern Canada and various Canadian cities under some of the coldest, meanest, toughest weather conditions that exist anywhere.

What was learned from years of this kind of testing resulted in an automobile that's built to take on the worst weather this country can dish out. And win.

The Toyota Canadian comes especially equipped with a powerful electric rear window defroster, side window defoggers, a heavy duty heater, a heavy duty battery and some very advanced rust inhibitors including plastic front fender liners, zinc coated rocker panels, corrosion and dampness resistant engine fittings...to name but a few.

The Toyota Canadian is rated at an estimated 51 miles per gallon on the highway, 33 in the city, based on TRANSPORT CANADA approved test methods. Of course, the actual mileage you get will vary according to the kind of driving you do.

Backing the Toyota Canadian are over 230 dealers right across the country and a sophisticated computerized parts system to ensure the rapid availability of virtually any part, anywhere.

The Toyota Canadian...born out of exhaustive research in this country and now part of the world's number one selling car model line...lives up to its name... terrific! TOYOTA

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

During the 1940s and 1950s, one of the world's greatest players was the laste John R. Crawford, of Philadelphia. Here is an example of Crawford's skill in action. In this deal, which acme up in the Vanderbilt Cup Championships of 1950, South was forced by Crawford, East, to make a 50-50 guess. As it turned out, he guessed wrong.

	NORTH ♠ 6 3 ♡ K 9 4 ◇ J 10 7 2 ♣ Q 9 5 2
WEST ♠ J 9 5 4 2 ♡ 10 7 3 ◇ A 8 3 ♣ A 8		EAST ♠ A Q 7 ♡ J 8 5 2 ◇ Q 6 4 ♣ J 7 6
	SOUTH ♠ K 10 8 ♡ A Q 6 ◇ K 9 5 ♣ K 10 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

On West's opening lead of the four of spades, Crawford, East, put up his Queen, which South won with the king. A club was then led to dummy's queen, which held the trick, after which a low club was returned. When East played low, declarer inserted his ten-spot, which West was compelled to take with his ace. West played back a spade, Crawford's ace winning.

At this point most players would have returned their remaining spade, West would have cashed his three spade tricks and declarer would have had his seven-trick contract all wrapped up: three hearts, three clubs and a spade.

But Crawford surmised that declarer har seven tricks all ready to take, and would take them if given the opportunity. So, at trick five, after winning his spade ace, Crawford did not play back his remaining spade. Instead, he shifted to the four of diamonds, thus putting declarer squarely to the test.

Our declarer was an excellent player — and, quite naturally, he knew that Crawford was an excellent player. Declarer fully appreciated that Crawford would just as surely have led a low diamond away from the ace as away from the queen. The issue — the resolution of which could not be deferred — was whether Crawford was underleading the ace or the queen.

After lenghty deliberation, declarer pur up his king, playing Crawford for the diamond ace. It was the wrong guess, for the defenders were now able to take four spade tricks, one club and two diamonds.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, March 23

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hold off on money decisions. Time is on your side. Take family into your confidence. Budget talk, investment potential should be open for discussion. One who flatters you wants something for nothing. You're no baby — prove it and save yourself from financial embarrassment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message — refuse to be rushed to judgment. Legal affairs require more attention than has been customary. If married, mate wonders where your heart is hidden. You have a job cut out for you! If single, you made commitments — now chickens have come home to roost.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pressure, responsibility figure prominently. Vivid dream is not prophetic — your digestive system is "acting up." Emphasis on what occurs behind scenes. Reject the superficial — you have right to a detailed, careful explanation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish rather than begin — you'll get offer, opportunity resulting in better distribution, display. You also will be rid of burden not your own in first place. Friend is in trouble. Be sympathetic without becoming inextricably involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Those "at top" could be involved in controversy. Don't rush in where only fools wish to tread. Means hold your ground. Fulfill basic obligations. You may be starting an assignment as result of "shakeup." On personal level, love is very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Guard possessions. Conflict might exist over rights, permissions, who owns what, who should benefit as result of swift changes. Aquarius, Cancer and Leo persons could be part of scenario. Check communications — there is tendency to "garble" information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight flexibility — go with tide, avoid direct confrontations. Steer clear of course that leads to extravagance. Element of confusion is present — one close to you wants an accounting. An apology will follow if you maintain your emotional balance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lie low. Play waiting game. Judgment, intuition might be off base — know it and take time to review, to do more listening than asserting. Check fine points, details. Be aware of inner workings, of techniques generally taken for granted. Aquaruis, Taurus figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be analytical — show that you have maturity, that you can chuckle at your own foibles. Answers you seek are behind scenes. Those who can aid are currently "tied up" with their own problems. You get chance to make a significant change — do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be diplomatic in the face of provocation from youngsters, lover, mate, partner, close associate. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio figure prominently. Some of you ideas, efforts tend now to be fragmented. You'll soon get chance to consolidate. Until then, go easy!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Property, real estate matters, questions of family, ownership, security figure prominently. Someone who offers get-rich-quick scheme is whistling in the dark. Know it and protect self in clinches.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stay out of traffic as much as possible. Confusion reigns — wait, be patient, check telephone messages. Avoid any hint of wild-goose chase. Older person will aid — be receptive, but adhere to major principles. Money situation will improve, too.

IF MARCH 23rd IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have highly developed intellectual curiosity. You are seldom content with superficial explanations. You analyze, deduct — you seek reasons for happenings. Gemini, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You are sensitive, attractive, creative, restless. March and December could be outstanding months for you in 1977, a year during which you make significant changes, could form meaningful relationship which changes course of your life.

Rose Pruning High on Agenda

Rose pruning is the next major job for home gardeners on the southern tip of Vancouver Island. There is no exact calendar date for the work, everything depending on the prevailing weather and the location of the garden in which the roses are growing.

Gardens near areas of salt water and those on high ground usually have a minimum of frost by the end of March and it is reasonably safe to proceed with the pruning.

Gardens located further inland or in low spots where cold air collects at night, may still have three to five degrees of frost, making it risky to attempt pruning before the early part of April.

Knowing the general conditions for the immediate area and the micro-climates of the garden involved is the best guide for the home gardener.

Our first attempt at rose pruning is always a timid venture, snipping little pieces here and there, hoping the plant will survive our ministrations.

It may help to know that a rose is a difficult plant to kill. As long as the budded top portion is not severed from the rootstock there will always be new growths although flowering may be delayed.

In fact, severe pruning is practiced on a weak spindly bush in order to obtain vigorous new growths capable of bearing good flowers.

A rose to most gardeners is the plant growing in the garden. Only the specialist knows the different classes of roses that are in cultivation and the pruning requirements of each class.

All that is possible within the confines of this column is to give the basic principles of pruning as it applies to hybrid teas, hyb. perpetuals, and polyanthas commonl found in the home garden.

The actual removal of pieces with a pair of clean, well sharpened secateurs is the easiest part of the job. Observing the bush as a whole, deciding what parts to remove, and being able to visualize the growths that will result from every cut, is an art learned from experience.

Dead wood will bear neither leaves or flowers, so all dead wood is removed first. If tips are dead, cut back inch by inch until the pith shows no signs of a brown stain.

Growths smaller in iameter than a lead pencil will never bear good flowers, so they are removed at the point of origin.

To lessen disease, and obtain well ripened wood for flowering, the centre of the bush must be kept open. Shorten or remove branches that cross the centre so that light can penetrate and air circulate.

Finally cut the remaining canes to a height of approximately 16 ins above soil level. This will give a good garden display. Cut down to three buds from soil level if you want a few near-perfect blooms for exhibition work.

Always make the cuts immediately above a growth bud facing outwards, away from the centre of the bush. If the plant is on the edge of a walk, or edge of the lawn, cut to a bud facing right or left so that the new growths do not interfere with passers-by or lawn mowing.

Make the cuts on a slope, the high point just above the bud and the lower end of the slope just behind the centre of the bud. Spurs left above a bud will die back and may kill the new growth.

Following these directions will help the beginner to do a good job. Later, as interest in roses increases, books can be consulted on how to handle the different classes and types.

308-A CARDS OF THANKS

At some time or other the thought that we would suffer the loss of a loved one occurred to us, but we little realized the extent of sympathetic understanding that would exist. We are more grateful than mere words can express to all of you who did so much to help us through this time.
—Reg. Simnes and Family.

PETER JOHN de HAAN—I would like to express my appreciation and thanks to all the many of Peter's friends who honoured him and attended his final service. Those who knew Peter will know the loss I suffer, but may his spirit and courage during his lifetime live on forever, in our hearts.
—Peter's mother, Wilhelmina Harris (Mrs. L. R.) 202-240 Simcoe Street.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEAR'S CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

SMITH—In loving memory of our granddaughter and niece Lynnette Dawn who passed away March 21, 1970.
Your smiling face and cheerful ways
Are the memories we hold dear
Remembering all the happy days.
Will forever keep you near.
—Sadly missed by her Grandma and her uncles, aunties and cousins.

SMITH—In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister Lynette Dawn, who passed away March 21, 1970.
In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name,
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death just the same.
—Loved always and very sadly missed by Dad, Mom, Leanne, Laurel and Scott.

FEST — Herbert William (Frenchy) Fest, passed away Mar. 22, 1976, Shaughnessy Hosp. (You have one home Bill Bailey.) — Sadly missed by his loivng wife Kathy.

CMHC BUDGET $1.8 BILLION

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. will spend about $1.8 billion on housing and related projects in 1977, Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said last week in the federal agency's capital budget tabled in the Commons.

The budget is an increase of $200 million over 1976.

The corporation has set aside $107 million for its program of improving older housing. The program provides for loans and grants to improve 22,500 houses this year compared with 16,500 in 1976.

The Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) is to continue this year and the corporation has set aside $100.6 million for it.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING

ON AMENDMENTS TO THE ZONING BY-LAW AND TO THE UPLANDS REGULATIONS BY-LAW

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed By-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal Council on the matters contained therein, at a Public Hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Hall, Oak Bay, B.C., on Monday, March 28, 1977, commencing at 7:30 p.m.:

(a) By-law No. 3191 "Second Zoning By-law Amendment By-law, 1977"
Amends the "Zoning By-law, 1974," being By-law No. 3066, by prohibiting under "General Regulations" the occupancy of any lot or of the foreshore by dwelling units for sleeping or dwelling purposes that are designed to be mobile.

(b) By-law No. 3199 "Third Zoning By-law Amendment By-law, 1977"
Amends the "Zoning By-law, 1974," being By-law No. 3066, by amending the definitions for "Balcony," "Building area," and "Height," "Multiple dwelling," "Setback"; a general prohibiting clause regarding the uses within any Zone or Development Area; the height of a building in a Single Family Residence Zone; the Regulations for Church-and-Kindergarten Zones A and C; the limiting of one dwelling unit to any building other than a two-family dwelling, apartment building, or combination of apartment building and commercial building; and the exclusion of any building for use as a boarding house.

(c) By-law No. 3194 "Uplands Regulations By-law, 1977"
This proposed By-law provides for the following:
1. Repeals the "Uplands Regulations By-law, 1967" and three amending by-laws, which are now consolidated into one by-law;
2. Increases the minimum cost of a dwelling house which may be built in the Uplands from $20,000 to $40,000;
3. Revises subdivision regulations;
4. Revises regulations for appurtenant buildings;
5. Revises definition of "Height";
6. Revises regulations for Pergolas, rose arbors and screening for patios;
7. Includes regulations for parking of recreation vehicles, and parking regulations for the Yacht Club Zone;
8. Regulations for swimming pool fencing included;
9. Amends Penalty Clause in accordance with Summary Convictions Act.

Copies of the proposed By-laws may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, Oak Bay, B.C., between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., on any day in which the said Municipal Hall is open for business.

JEAN L. MACQUEEN

B.C. Tel Seeks $280M For Electronic Expansion

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gordon MacFarlane, chairman and chief executive officer of British Columbia Telephone Co., said Monday the company's 1977 capital construction program will require expenditures of more than $280 million for improvement and expansion of the telephone system.

MacFarlane said in a news release that 13 new electronic central offices will be in service or under construction this year, while six others will be expanded.

He said the company began converting to electronic switching centres in 1974 and expects that 25 per cent of all B.C. Tel lines will be served electronically by the end of 1978.

Largest share of the $280 million construction budget will be spent in the Vancouver area and on the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

MacFarlane said more than half the estimated $280 million needed for construction this year must be raised through investors and lenders.

"B.C. Tel must go to outside money markets," he said, "and the only way it can attract the necessary funds at a reasonable cost is by maintaining a good financial performance.

"This illustrates the importance of the company's current application for a rate increase because we must achieve financial stability to attract these funds."

He said the company would continue to expand telephone services in outlying regions where there are high costs and low returns.

MacFarlane said that about $2.5 million will be required for mechanization of directory assistance services, which he said would reduce operating, processing and printing costs and improve customer service.

Directory assistance operations will use a computerized information retrieval system operated from one centre in each of the company's divisions. Centres will be located in Prince George, Kamloops, Victoria and Vancouver and will be in service in 1978.

The installation of new equipment to measure telephone performance throughout the company's systems will cost $3.8 million. MacFarlane said the equipment will provide information on the performance of the network, so it can be better and more cheaply maintained.

He said the company has accelerated its fire detection and prevention program. The province-wide program will cost about $4 million this year and about $13.5 million over a five-year period, he said.

MacFarlane said the company has allocated more than $153 million for work in the Vancouver area, while $42.8 million is required for Vancouver Island. He said $28 million has been set aside for work in the interior division, based in Kamloops, and a further $26.3 million will be spent on projects in the northern division.

Expansion projects planned or underway for 1977 will add more than 84,000 telephones to the company's systems, bringing to more than 1.5 million the number of telephones in service this year, MacFarlane said.

Alaska Pilot's Body Found

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The lone occupant of a crashed light plane in mountainous terrain about 30 miles southeast of Watson Lake, Yukon, was found dead Monday.

BRUCELLOSIS STRIKES

VANDERHOOF (CP) — About 150 cattle in central British Columbia have been destroyed in an effort to control brucellosis, and two people have been found infected with the disease.

Agriculture Canada's health of animals branch has been testing cattle in the area since January, and the northern interior health unit has been working with them to check any people who may have been in contact with the diseased animals.

Brucellosis, a bacterial disease, is mainly confined to animals, especially cattle, pigs and goats, but can spread to other animals such as horses, and to man.

Dr. Andrew Ross, director of the northern interior health unit, said that people contact the disease by working with, or drinking the milk of infected animals. The disease can not be passed from person to person.

Ross said the disease is hard to detect because the symptoms of fatigue, chills, sweating, weakness, body aches and loss of appetite and weight can easily be mistaken for flu.

He said death from the disease is very uncommon. The earlier it is detected and treated, the less chance there is of a prolonged illness, he said.

Ross said the health unit is asking anyone suspected of being in contact with or drinking the milk of infected animals to get a blood test.

Cominco Penalty Slashed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Adam Little, chairman of the Workers' Compensation Board, said Monday that the monthly penalty being assessed on Cominco Ltd. in Trail, will be cut to $5,000 from $30,121.

Little said in a news release that the penalty assessment was imposed because several areas of Cominco's lead-zinc smelter had unsafe levels of contaminants, including lead and sulfuric acid fumes.

The assessment, an extra three per cent of the regular assessments for workers' compensation coverage, had been in effect since August, 1975. The new rate is effective Jan. 1, 1977.

Dr. Little said that during the past year the board has seen several improvements and a decreasing level of contaminants in many areas of the Cominco plant.

The company has improved its contaminant monitoring rate, upgraded ventilation, the board said, and Cominco has started work on a $7-million continuous-drossing furnace which will lower workers' exposure to lead dust and fumes.

The board said the United Steelworkers of America, which represents workers at the Trail smelter, has recommended a lowering of the penalty assessment.

FREEDOMITES STRIP

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Twenty-eight of 29 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors charged with arson disrobed in county court here Monday.

The 23 women and five men began taking off their clothes five minutes before the trial was scheduled to begin. After stripping, the group chanted a prayer and sang hymns.

CLOSE-UP!

Assassination Probe Gets New Support

WASHINGTON (WP) — The House of Representatives assassinations committee Monday won a turnaround promise of "wholehearted support" from House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill Jr.

After a closed-door meeting with the committee's threet senior members, O'Neill also told reporters, with apparent approval, that the panel would ask the House for $22.5 million to carry it through the rest of this year.

The committee has already spent some $250,000 since Jan. 1. As a result, the new budget proposal presumably would mean a two-year projection costing some $5.5 million, compared with the initial projection of $13 million that caused so much controversy within the House last winter.

O'Neill's endorsement greatly enhances the committee's chances for survival, but the Speaker acknowledged that it still faces considerable opposition.

"They have my wholehearted support," the Speaker said after conferring with assassinations committee chairman Louis Stokes (Dem.—Ohio) and Reps. Richardson Preyer (Dem.—N.C.) and Walter Fauntroy (Dem.—D.C.). "But there is a lot of work to be done (getting votes) on the floor."

The assassinations committee will expire March 1 unless it can win House approval of a new resolution keeping the investigations alive. But before it gets to the House floor, the resolution must first be cleared by the rules committee.

Even Rep. Trent Lott (Rep.—Miss.), who has been critical of the inquiry from the start, was hesitant after Monday's briefing to say he still felt it ought to be squelched. But he made plain that he is still skeptical about the information that was laid out for him and other rules committee members Monday at an "informal" meeting.

He said such an approach had never, to his knowledge, been used with the rules committee before, not even during the impeachment proceedings against former president Richard Nixon.

"I presume the committee has collected some leads, some information which they're going to use to justify continuing the investigations," Lott said Monday.

"Some of them are very far-fetched, very remote, in my opinion, but I am re-evaluating my position."

COCAINE 'SAFE'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cocaine, the popular drug of both jet setters and ghetto dwellers, is not harmful when taken occasionally by the social snorter, says a doctor studying the drug's effects.

However, says Dr. Richard Resnick, use of the drug, which costs up to $1,500 an ounce on the street, should not be legalized.

"Absolutely not, because it would be more available and then more people would be using it in a way that is detrimental," said Resnick, head of New York Medical College's division of Drug Abuse Research and Treatment.

He said his tests indicate that use of cocaine does not affect performance except when the subject is bored or tired.

Half Million Recall

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. is recalling more than a half million 1968 and 1969 Ford Mustangs and Mercury Cougars but is battling the U.S. government over the right to order the safety campaign.

Ford said Monday it was recalling the cars rather than send owners a defect notice written by the government among conditions set down when it appealed the government's recall order almost two years ago.

The alleged defect involves a seat back bracket pin on the drivers' bucket seats. If the pin breaks, the seat back could fall backward and cause the driver to lose control of the car, the government contended in August 1975.

Ford spokesmen said there have been 750 "reports" of seat back failures, including 41 in which there were minor injuries.

Besides its battle against the recall order, Ford has been fighting another provision of the National Traffic Safety Act which calls for civil penalties against an automaker that unsuccessfully fights a recall.

In Ford's case, the penalty could amount to $800,000.

Baby Market Bared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A string of witnesses today told Congress about black market babies, urging federal legislation to prevent illegal adoptions which are arranged for fees that can reach thousands of dollars.

At a hearing before a House Judiciary subcommittee, the black market baby business was described as one providing "healthy white babies for couples who can pay the highest price."

Witnesses said there are no laws — with the exception of income tax statutes — to deal with the problem and state authorities often face criss-crossing jurisdictional problems in tracing baby sellers and buyers.

Pan Zekman, a reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times, described her articles that followed a three-month probe into the situation. She posed as an expectant mother trying to sell her child and a frantic parent trying to buy a baby.

The supply of healthy white babies is low as a result of birth control, liberalized abortion laws and a more tolerant social attitude toward unwed mothers, Ms. Zekman said, but the demand for adopted children is high.

Since legitimate adoption agencies often have waiting periods of one to four years, more parents are moving to the black market and paying fees as high as $15,000 to secure a child through illicit channels.

COSTLY FAVOR

The watch apparently had been in the water for several months, but it started running after being wound. Heirer sent the watch, a calendar model, to the manufacturer with a letter describing how it still worked despite the dunking.

The company sent him a repair bill for $11.11. But it still has not returned the watch.

Conflicting Stories At Pipeline Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conflicting stories concerning knowledge of plans to build the Grizzly Valley pipeline were told Monday to a provincial inquiry.

The president of Cheyenne Petroleum Ltd., Barry Hemsworth, told Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith that Cheyenne and its predecessor companies had been hoping for a pipeline for 25 years.

But he said he was shocked to learn of the government's decision because he "didn't expect a pipeline in the foreseeable future."

The inquiry also heard Arthur Cameron, former constituency secretary to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, say knowledge of the pipeline was "common knowledge" in Dawson Creek before the government's announcement.

Cameron, 24, a Dawson Creek travel agent and director of the B.C. Social Credit Party, said he bought 1,000 shares in Quasar Petroleum Ltd. at $8 a share three days before Premier Bennett made the announcement.

"It (the development) was common knowledge," he said.

But Hemsworth said he was shocked to be told of the government's decision at a private Nov. 8 meeting between the region's gas producers and George Lechner, president of the B.C. Petroleum Corp. (BCPC)

Hemsworth said his hopes had been buoyed by the BCPC's decision to advance Quasar $2 million in August, 1976, to per form final studies of gas reserves in the region, but a heated argument between lawyers for Quasar and BCPC at a meeting in Calgary in October convinced him a "pipeline was not forthcoming" in the near future.

Since Cheyenne was about to launch a $100,000 share offering to raise money, Hemsworth said he arranged for Cheyenne to invest in natural gas leases in Northern Alberta owned by Paramount Oil and Gas Ltd.

By a complex series of transactions, Hemsworth bought an interest in the gas leases which he, in turn, sold to Cheyenne shares, while Hemsworth received 488,500 shares for his role in the deal.

All shares involved in the transaction were escrow shares, which cannot be traded or sold without the approval of the Vancouver Stock Exchange. As a result of the deal Hemsworth won complete control of Cheyenne. He also promised to seek exchange approval for the sale of Paramount's shares.

Hemsworth testified he embarked on the Paramount deal in early November because he had "no knowledge there might be a pipeline." Even after the Nov. 8 meeting, he said, BCPC lawyers advised him "not to take the announcement too literally" because the project still needed National Energy Board approval.

Hemsworth's testimony was in sharp contrast to statements by earlier witnesses who said the government's intentions were evident to the public in early December. Some have said they felt a development was almost a certainty after the govern-

Gandhi 'Accepts Verdict'

NEW DELHI (AP) — Repudiated by the Indian electorate, Indira Gandhi resigned today as prime minister, saying: "The collective judgment of the people must be respected." Her son, also defeated, said he was quitting politics.

With returns from the general election last weekend almost complete, Mrs. Gandhi's foes said they will have a majority of at least 126 seats in the lower houset of Parliament.

In a statement conveying her best wishes to the new government and offering the "constructive co-operation" of her Congress party, Mrs. Gandhi said she and her colleagues "accept the verdict unreservedly and in a spirit of humility."

"I have always said, and I do believe, that the winning or losing of an election is less important than the strengthening of our country and ensuring a better life for our people," she said. "My love and concern for the welfare of every section of the people remain unchanged.

Outlook Bleak: Economic Panel

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Unemployment and inflation will both become worse before they start to improve, the Conference Board in Canada has predicted in a bleak scenerio for the Canadian economy.

In its quarterly report, released Monday, the Conference Board said unemployment will average about eight per cent for 1977, somewhat higher than in the first two months.

The rate would be the worst since the 1930s Depression.

At the same time, increased costs for food and energy, as well as indirect tax increases recently announced in provincial budgets, will result in an acceleration in the pace of inflation in early 1977.

The renewed upward pressure on prices should moderate towards midyear, and for the year as a whole the Consumer Price Index is forecast to increase by about seven percent, compared with 7.5 per cent in 1976.

The board states that its forecast does not account for any policy changes that might be implemented in the March federal budget.

It states that the slowdown in economic activity has yet to turn the corner towards renewed expansion.

Growth in total output will slow substantially in 1977, resulting in a widening gap between actual output and the potential production if the economy's capacity was fully utilized.

Real Gross National Product (the value of goods and services produced) will be only three percent in 1977, compared with 4.5 per cent last year.

Canada's economic performance is in marked contrast with that in the U.S. where the GNP gap has narrowed considerably in the last two years.

The Board says the situation in Canada bears a "rather disturbing resemblance" to conditions prevailing during the period from 1958 to 1961 when Canada experienced a prolonged recession.

The principle source of weakness in the economic outlook continues to be in investment spending.

Housing starts are expected to decline throughout 1977 to reach a low of 220,000 units seasonally adjusted at annual rates in the second half of the year.

Real investment spending on housing construction is expected to decline by about four per cent for the year as a whole.

The outlook is also weak for business investment in plant and equipment. A recent survey suggests that businessmen are not optimistic about the short-term outlook for the Canadian economy, and generally expect continuing weak demand conditions, and a high degree of excess capacity.

"These factors, together with an uncertain policy environment and the continuing poor performance of corporate profits, strongly suggest that a resurgence in investment spending is unlikely to occur," the board states.

Merchandise exports are expected to increase by 4.5 per cent this year following a growth of 12 per cent in 1976. However, merchandise imports are also likely to decline so, as a result Canada's merchandise trade balance is therefore likely to strengthen.

However, a further deterioration in the balance of trade in services is expected, with the service deficit measured in current dollars approaching $7 billion for the year.

3 SURVIVE CRASH NEAR HOPE

Three people who survived a light plane crash east of Hope Monday evening walked out of the bush today to flag down a semi-trailer truck on the Hope-Princeton highway.

Torg Hansen, Bob Israel and Barb Israel appeared to have only bruises and superficial injuries, according to an RCMP spokesman in Hope.

The three are in Hope Hospital.

"They were in good spirits," he said, "but I don't think the shock had worn off yet."

The Cessna 172 went down about 4:10 p.m., Monday, crashing into a mountain side near the Hope slide.

The three spent the night with the plane before making a two-hour hike through the damp bush to the highway.

3 Held In Knife Holdup

The robbery was the 33rd armed holdup or incident in the Greater Victoria area this year.

Saanich police Inspector Robin Stewart said the trio were arrsted at 11 p.m., 45 minutes after two men walked into the Pay N' Save station at 3477 Quadra and forced the 16-year-old attendant to hand over the cash in the till and his wallet.

Stewart said the three were arrested as they got out of a van parked at the Pacific Isle Motel, 626 Gorge Road East.

He said Langley RCMP had asked Greater Victoria police to watch for the van and its occupants, wanted for questioning in an armed robbery in that municipality last week.

Stewart said the three came over to Victoria on the weekend.

When police returned to the motel, they discovered three juvenile girls staying in a room the men had rented for the night.

The girls — two age 15, one 13 — had accompanied the men on the trip out from Calgary, Stewart said.

He said arrangements are being made to return the girls to their homes in Calgary.

Charged today with armed robbery were Julio Alexander Da Silva, 23, of Drumheller, Alta.; Terry Wayne Hager, 20, of Calgary and Allan Dale Hanson 17, of Calgary.

The three elected trial by judge without jury and were remanded in custody until Wednesday for bail hearing. A trial date will be set at that time.

'Racial Prejudice'

DELTA (CP) — Leaders of North Delta's Sikh community accused council Monday of racial prejudice following council's reluctance to allow reconstruction of a fire-damaged Sikh temple.

The Sikhs have been pressing council for permission to rebuild their temple since the two-storey building was damaged by fire earlier this year.

Mayor Tom Goode said Monday that rebuilding the temple would be a disaster and shouldn't be permitted because of the problems it would cause the neighborhood.

Outside the council meeting, Hardy Singh, temple secretary, said council's attitude showed "complete racial discrimination."

Various aldermen said that the temple was overcrowded and caused parking problems.

Harbans Singh Athwa, temple recording secretary, said there were no more than 100 people inside the temple at one time, and said the temple council will seek court action to force Delta to allow reconstruction of the temple.

Council decided to delay a vote on reconstruction for a week.

'Boardroom Backbencher' Quits Ferries' Position

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

A former Social Credit candidate has quit as a director of B.C. Ferries saying he's fed up being a boardroom benchwarmer.

Graham Roberts, who lost out to NDP MLA Dave Stupich in the last provincial election, said he submitted his resignation to Transport Minister Jack Davis March 1.

Roberts, an automobile dealer in Nanaimo, charged that Davis is running the ferry operation "in the past."

"I never understood my role to be that of a boardroom backbencher," Roberts said.

Roberts said he has a concern for the problems facing the ferry corporation and its staff.

"I feel I can get better results and more action as an outspoken taxpayer and ferry user rather than a paid director," he said.

Transport Minister Jack Davis said he knows of no firm reason why Roberts resigned and "I wish he would reconsider."

Davis stressed that the board of directors is running the corporation.

"I'm a member of the board so I have a voice but the board is running things," the minister said.

Several days before the recent announcement of the slight reduction of ferry fares, Roberts informally announced the decision.

Davis said he has "privately expressed my displeasure" to Roberts about the information leak and said that might be one of the reasons for Roberts' resignation.

Premier Bill Bennett said Roberts' "independent point of view" was one of the original reasons for his appointment to the board.

He said it is normal for conflicts or disagreements to arise during the early stages of the corporation.

"However I still maintain full confidence in Mr. Roberts and would hope that he would reconsider any suggestion of withdrawing at this early, formative stage of the corporation," the premier said.

QUAKE SHAKES IRAN, 60 REPORTED KILLED

TEHRAN (Reuter) — A strong earthquake struck Iran's southern coast region early today and 60 people were killed in a series of tremors around the port city of Bandar Abbas, the official radio reported.

No casualties have been reported so far from the city itself, which had been packed with more than 20,000 tourists celebrating the Persian new year.

The radio said the deaths were in the villages of Khorkou and Qale Qazi and that rescue teams were still working in other villages in the vicinity.

Damage also was reported from the towns of Minab and Jask, closer to the quake's epicentre in the Strait of Hormuz, but there were no details.

The official Pars news agency said the quake registered seven on Tehran University's open-ended Richter scale.

Shocks were felt on the Persian Gulf island of Kish, where the Shah of Iran and his family were spending the new year holiday.

Wanted to Kill Amin

Times News Services

TORONTO — A self-described mercenary held up to 15 persons hostage at gunpoint in a downtown bank Monday in what an intermediary in the 12-hour drama said today was a bizarre plan to assassinate Ugandan President Idi Amin.

The gunman, who identified himself as Bob McLagan, 38, of Vancouver, was taken in handcuffs from the Bank Canadian National shortly after 11:30 p.m. EST after appeals from his brother and sister.

Throughout the 12-hour drama, the gunman told reporters by telephone that he had been a mercenary in the Congo in 1965 and wanted a C-130 Hercules to fly him to Uganda "so I can see my pal" Amin.

CFRB radio reporter Charles Doering, who was ushered into the bank at the gunman's request in the early hours of the incident, said McLagan told him he "admired," but had never met the Ugandan president.

After the drama ended, however, Doering said McLagan's real purpose was to kill Amin with two fragmentation grenades he demanded from police.

Resthaven Staff Get First Option

Staff at Resthaven Hospital in Sidney who apply for jobs at the Saanich Peninsula Hospital when the Sidney hospital closes next year will get "first consideration," spokesmen said today.

Both Jim Cumming, chairman of the peninsula hospital board, and John Clark, regional director of hospital planning, pounced on Sidney council for claims Monday night that Resthaven workers have been told they won't be rehired.

Construction is about to start on a 75-bed acute care wing at the peninsula hospital and when it is finished in the summer of 1978 Resthaven Hospital will close.

Cumming said a little inquiry by the council would have made it clear to aldermen that the hospital can't make a committment to hire everyone working at Resthaven.

The hospital administrator is legally required to handle hiring, the hospital doesn't have an operating budget for its yet-to-be-built wing and union contracts require that new jobs be advertised, he said.

Clark said council was "totally misinformed" on the matter and both Cumming and Clark said Resthaven has been regularly advised on the job developments and board policy.

Laurie Dunfield, administrator at Resthaven, confirmed that amicable discussions on the question have been held.

There are about 130 staff now at Resthaven. Cumming said he thinks the new wing at the peninsula hospital will involve hiring about 100 people.

There appears to be a legal avenue around a potential labor conflict for members of the church working at Resthaven.

Dunfield confirmed that Seventh Day Adventists don't join unions as a matter of religious practice. About half the staff now at Resthaven are church members.

Union contracts at the peninsula hospital require all staff to be members in one of four unions, the Hospital Employees Union, the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., the Health Sciences Association or the operating engineers' union, Cumming said.

But labor law also provides for people who don't want to join a union on religious grounds to be excused, with the equivalent of union dues going from their salaries to the union.

Safety Patrol Winner

Rockeheights Elementary student, Marion Harding, 12, has been chosen as one of 15 B.C. representatives to the 18th National Safety Week Jamboree in Ottawa in May.

More than 8,000 school patrollers will attend the May 26-29 jamboree sponsored by the Canadian Automobile Association and the Ottawa police department.

"It is our way of saying thank you for an outstanding job done by these young citizens in protecting the lives of their classmates," said William McKinley, BCAA president.

Marion and the other representatives will stop in Vancouver for tours of television studios, the PNE, Gastown, city hall, Stanley Park and the harbor.

Two Tackle Cadboro Ratepayers

Dick Readshaw and Kennedy Smith are the latest candidates to join the team organized to upset the executive of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers Association.

The grunch will come Wednesday when the annual election and general meeting takes place at 7:30 p.m. in the Cadboro Bay United church hall.

Leading the movement is Howard Sturrock, who is running for president. Others running for directors are Dick Boss, Anna Foster and Gordon Howard.

Sturrock said today the main reasons he and his supporters want change are the need for stronger representation and for better communication between the general membership and the executive.

GUILTY PLEA ON FIREARM

A 20-year-old Saanich man will be sentenced April 25 in Victoria County Court for dangerous use of a firearm.

'Toytown Terrorism' Strikes Tenerife

By JOHN HOOPER
Manchester Guardians

TENERIFE, Canary Islands — Since November members of the tongue-twisting Movement for the Self-determinjtion and Independence of the Canarian Archipelago (MPAIAC) have launched more than 30 terrorist attacks.

Among their more spectacular efforts were the setting off of 4 bombs within 24 hours last Devember, and explosion at the offices of Royal Air Maroc airlines in JHanuary and a hand grenade attack on a civil guard behicle a few days ago.

With the recent arrest of the movement's military organizer, Faustino Santana Garcia, and the subsequent discovery of an arms cache on Tenerife, the police seem to have broken the back of the movement. There are now 21 suspects either in the police station or at the provincial jail in Las Palmas.

"it's very much a case of toytown terrorism," a local newspaper editor said. "Most of those inbolved are between 16 and 20. When we looked into the grenade attack, it turned out the boy who threw the grenade had hailed a taxi to make his getaway. The taxi driver didn't have the faintest iea of what was going on, stopped at the lights and the police drew up and made their arrest."

Few people regard the movement — whose main activity is broadcasting propaganda from an Algiers-based radio station, Voice of the Free Canaries — as much more than a joke. But apart from the Basque organization ETA, it is the only regional extremist group to have given a semblance of reality to its threats of revolution.

The wave of bombinngs is an indication that the gap between reality and government rhetoric is wider here than in probably any other spanish region.

In tourist brochures, in the platitudinous remarks of countless officials and in the minds of many mainland Spaniards, the Canaries are still the fortunate isles —a land of year-long sunshine that the free ports have made into a paradise for shoppers.

In fact, as Lorenzo Olarte, a deputy in the Cortes (Spanish parliament), points out, the islands' shops are a good analogy: "The windows are crammed full orf radios and televisions at rock-bottom prices: then there's the backroom you never see —and that's an altogether different story."

By an standards, the Canaries are potentially explosive. The high birth rate (25 per 1,000 as against Spain's national average of 19) and low death rate (6.39 as opposed to 11.04) make the area the youngest and one of the fastest expanding in Spain.

To these difficulties has been added a single, catastrophic development — Spain's withdrawal from the Sahara, which deprived the islands of a market for labor and for more than 50 per cent of their own exports.

The great pension debate

The employers' costs to all pension plans are borne by the public. The cost of employer contributions to private pensions is part of the operating costs of the enterprise, and is passed along to the consumer in price increases. When private pension funds run into difficulties and additional money is needed, companies just say their operating costs have increased and raise their prices. If less than 40% of the labour force is covered by pensions and the cost of the employers' contribution is paid by all consumers and taxpayers by more price increases, it means that the 60% of Canadian workers without pensions are subsidizing the employers' costs for the less than 40% who have pensions.

Write to your member of Parliament today and insist that the government take over the provision of pensions to ensure that you will have an adequate indexed pension when you retire.

HANDICAPPED PERFORM

Thespians Prove Play's the Thing

There are no potential Oscar winners in this group, whose members perform without bright lights, costumes or fancy stage props.

There's not even an audience.

But none of that matters to the kids who make up the weekly drama class at the Cedar Hill Community Centre, organized by the Victoria Society for the Recreation of Handicapped Persons.

For these youngsters, in the words of Hamlet, the play's the thing.

"Like any other kids, they like pretending and using their imagination," says Suzanne Simard, who runs the program.

Mostly the young thespians like to read and then act out a story. Stories featuring animal characters are especially popular, because they offer plenty of scope for growling, grunting histrionics.

Beginners are sometines a little shy and awkward but that stage only lasts a couple of weeks and then they lose their inhibitions, she says.

The group includes at least one extrovert — nine-year-old Robbie. Given the slightest encouragement he will not only write an instant play but also direct it and play a starring role.

Recent absences for operations and health problems have reduced the class to four children, but organizers expect numbers will build up to about eight by the end of March.

Then they'll get down to serious rehearsals for one of their more ambitious ventures — a play for the enjoyment of parents.

Across town another program conducted by the VSRHP is under way in the gymnasium at Oak Bay's Henderson Park recreation centre.

This time it's physical education, and the enthusiasm is just as apparent.

For about 90 minutes once a week, up to 10 youngsters aged seven to 11 have themselves a ball. They tightrope walk around a course of narrow benches, clamber over apparatus, crawl through a tunnel fo wooden boxes and generally let off steam.

After a while, there's a noticeable improvement in coordination and agility, said Philip.

Drama and physical education are just two of the ways in which the society is trying to provide a full, active and enjoyable life for handicapped children in the Greater Victoria area.

It's an aim which the Times, together with CJVI, wants to help by sponsoring a fund-raising campaign.

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE DONATIONS

To make your donation to this worthwhile cause:

Make cheques or money orders payable to the Handicapped Recreation Society and mail to the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas Street, P.O. Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4.

Donations placed in an envelope addressed to the Handicapped Recreation Society may also be left at the counter of the main floor office at Victoria Press building, 2621 Douglas.

A receipt will be given if requested and accompanied by a name and address. The society has applied for a tax registration number.

Unless donors wish to be anonymous, the Times will publish a list of donations later.

BALANCE BEAMS at Henderson Park recreation centre are fascinating path for Pamela Vickers, 7, to follow, with a little help from Judith Armstrong. The Times is sponsoring drive to raise operating funds for Victoria Society for Recreation of Handicapped Persons, which operates 17 programs for local handicapped children, teenagers and adults. Civil Service Smear Denied By McCarthy

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy "smeared the whole civil service" when she said some of its members are politicized, NDP leader Dave Barrett charged Monday.

The long debate on the political leanings of civil servants erupted in the legislature during debate on the spending estimates of McCarthy's office after Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber charged McCarthy is trying to interfere in the province's judicial system.

Barber said in the legislature he had information which suggested that McCarthy, at a cabinet meeting with justice officials March 16, had suggested both a cabinet committee and an outside consultant investigation into the operations of the ministry of the attorney general.

Barber suggested that McCarthy's lack of confidence in Attorney General Garde Gardom prompted her suggestions.

McCarthy said Barber's allegations were "completely erroneous" and said that as all those present at the March 16 meeting had taken an oath of secrecy, Barber must have received his information from a civil servant present at the meeting who was "politicized."

McCARTHY
. . . weathers attack

Opposition spokesman charged that McCarthy, by her statement, had attacked the integrity of all civil servants at the meeting and the public service as a whole.

McCarthy said during the years of the NDP government, for the first time the province had a political civil service.

"For the first time we had a political public service and those are the same people we had to work with today," she said.

McCarthy denied she had meant a personal attack on anyone who was at the meeting.

McCarthy said she had not made a blanket charge against the civil service.

"I am not saying that we have a political civil service, I'm saying that under the NDP government we had a civil service that became very politicized.

"I want to make it clear that this government believes in having a public service that has no fear or favor from whatever government comes to B.C., " she said.

Barrett charged that political statements made by McCarthy while the NDP was government had "poisoned the political life of this province."

He suggested that McCarthy had a double standard which dictated that political civil servants were all right as long as they were Socreds, not NDP.

Barrett said both the NDP and the Socreds make political order-in-council appointments, but that is different from the civil service.

He said as soon as the NDP lost the election, it fired all the political appointees made during its terms of office.

The Socreds, he said, had hired exactly the same kind of political "hacks."

"My hack is better than your hack — is that what it's come down to?" he asked.

TOWN TALK

Do plumbers in Sidney really get paid more than a dollar a minute? Alas, it appears to be another of those pipe dreams.

Sidney Mayor Dick Leigh told a council committee meeting Monday night about a woman who complained to him after being charged $62 to have two tap washers fixed. That's the normal hourly rate for a plumber in Sidney, he said.

And that's news to plumbers. Tom Wheatley, business agent for the plumbers' union in Victoria, said the hourneyman rate for plumber is $11.16 an hour plus cost of fringe benefits.

That's what a union plumber working for a contractor gets. But what does the contractor charge the customer? Bill Maxwell of G. H. Birnie Ltd. said his firm's charge-out rate is $25 an hour and he doesn't know of anyone charging more than $28 an hour.

Got 15 minutes at lunchtime? Catch the noon show at the Bay cookware department. The patter and humor of wok cookery teacher Stephen Yan is worth as much as the demonstration.

He makes no bones about pushing Chinese wok utensils for the Bay and the cookbook he wrote based on 20 years' experience.

In about 10 minutes Monday he prepared a hot meal of vegetables and flank steak — plenty for two average appetities — and had the crowd drooling.

Yan, in a typical aside, said after doing this all week he eats at McDonald's.

Contractor James McLaren and Jim Wilson, vice-principal of Gordon Head elementary school, plus 100 of the school's students received a special mention in despatches from Saanich council on Monday. The school is to receive an engraved tray and the two men letters of thanks for a clean-up campaign on Mount Douglas last Friday. Ald Sandy Noel lauded the effort, which cleared the park of trash ranging from old refrigerators, bath tubs and car engines to "two caches of Sears catalogues."

Private eye Jack Moxam has been flooded with calls since Times staffer Max Low's story Saturday on the missing Brian Guberman — despite the fact he somehow got the wrong phone number for the World Investigation Services — The right number is 382-8258.

"The most non-crackpot of the calls have him living in Brentwood Bay as a Jehovah's Witness, hiding out in James Bay and serving as a Hare Krishna in Hawaii," says Moxam.

University of Victoria president Dr. Howard Petch was obviously sympathetic towards the students who crowded in to a board meeting to oppose those UVic fee hikes Monday.

Petch said he realized the fee hikes would be an excessive burden for some and painted a touching picture of an impoverished student starving in a garret.

Can you give me the names of the three bills passed by the Alberta legislature in 1936-37, during the term of Premier William Aberhart, which were not signed by the lieutenant-governor?

During a special session of the Alberta Legislature in August, 1937, three bills were passed which were designed to place all banks under the control of the Social Credit Board and copel them to operate with the board in the establishment of the Social Credit monetary system. The three bills were, The Alberta Credit Regulation Act, The Bank Employees Civil Rights Act, and The Judicature Amendment Act of 1937. All were given royal assent by the lieutenant-governor Aug. 6, 1937, but were later disallowed by the federal government.

What are the results of Italy's recent election, the number of members elected, and the name of the majority party and the opposition? F.J.B.

In Italy's election in June, 1976, the Christian Democrats won 262 seats with 38.7 per cent of the vote, the Communists, 228 seats with 34.4 per cent and the Socialists 57 seats with 9.6 per cent. There were about eight other parties which received a few seats each. There are a total of 630 seats in Italy's Chamber of Deputies.

Aid Promise Helps Sweeten Bitter Pill of Hikes at UVic

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

A 200-strong University of Victoria student lobby failed Monday to sway Uvic governors from increasing tuition fees by up to 26.2 per cent.

But the students, who marched through a downpour and jammed into the room where the board met, learned that while fees will go up, more financial aid may be provided.

At a rally shortly before the board met, the students chanted anti-fee hike slogans and brandished placards protesting the proposed increases.

The students then crowded into the board meeting to listen to the debate that ended with governors voting 10-2 to increase fees in most faculties from $428 to $540 in September.

PETCH

Other increases include a 30 per cent rise for law bringing the annual cost to $658 and a 25 per cent hike for all graduate fees. The average cost per course for part-time students will increase 20 per cent.

In a report to the board of governors, UVic president Dr. Howard Petch recommended a significant increase in funds be made available by the university for student financial assistance.

Petch suggested a 73 per cent increase in undergraduate scholarships, bursaries and job placement aid to $130,000 and a 58 per cent uplift in graduate fellowships, scholarships and bursaries to $435,000.

Petch cited rising costs in all areas of univeristy operation, rising tuition fees in other parts of Canada and the fact there has been no fee increase for 12 years in B.C. as reasons for requesting the fee hike.

"It's like having an operation," he said after the decision was made, "painful but necessary."

Student representatives given an opportunity to address the meeting said higher fees will put the university further out of the reach of the low income groups.

Alma Mater Society President Brian Gardiner said if the fee increase is the cause of even one student not making it back to class next year, "then we all have to bear the responsibility."

Student senator Theresa Kerin, who was instrumental in getting the university senate to oppose the fee increase, said the $600,000 that will be raised by higher tuition could be found by trimming the budget.

One of the two governors who voted against the increase, Molly Phillips, noted that 30 per cent of returning students last year earned less that $1,000 last summer.

Saanich Adds Police

Saanich council Monday approved a $3.3 million police budget and the hiring of eight more policemen and two clerk-typists.

The 1976 police budget was pegged at $2.9 million.

Ald. Ian Cass observed the new staff will make more men "available for front-line duty."

Mayor Ed Lu, who is also chairman of the police board, said the eight new constables won't be of benefit for at least eight or nine months because this time is needed for initial training.

Ald. Sandy Noel noted Saanich policemen now have to spend hours writing up reports at the end of their day. Tape recorders will be used in the future and the new clerk-typists will complete reports from the tapes.

"Because of the increase in crime over the past two years, the existing persons just can't cope with it," Lum explained.

Lum said the attorney'generals department is also trying to streamline court procedures.

He said this would reduce the large amounts of overtime spent by policemen in courts.

Announcer Axed and So Is Ecology Show

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

It was to have been the biggest thing to hit Duncan's airwaves in decades, more than 100 hours of non-stop broadcasting by two determined disc jockies who wanted to push their endurance and environmental concern to the limit.

But it never got off the ground.

CKAY Radio 1500 Ltd., was going to go gunning for the top spot — the "wake-a-thon" record of 108 hours set in 1958 by Vancouver broadcaster Red Robinson.

The theme was to be oil — tankers, pipelines, pollution.

Ralph Hull and Richard Hughes called it the Clearwater Marathon, after a newly emerged local environmental group, Clearwater, and they spent six weeks getting it organized.

Federal, provincial and regional politicians were lined up and it was hoped they'd go at each other's throats, said the organizers. There were to be conservatives and eco-freaks — the April 1 weekend show was going to have fireworks.

And then the bottom fell out. The man who started it all, the man who kept the ball rolling, Ralph Hull, was fired last Thursday.

The Clearwater Marathon went down before it even got airborne.

"This is so sudden it's just shocking," said Hull, Monday. "There was no warning, nothing, just bang."

Hull, who's 40, says he has more broadcasting experience than the rest of the CKAY staff put together and can't understand why he was fired, unless it was because of his involvement with Clearwater.

Hull is a founding member

"He didn't fit in with the operation . . . it's as simple as that," she said.

Mykyte adds that Hull was let go without any notice because he was finishing up his three-month probationary period after being hired in December.

As for the Clearwater group, she says, "it is an organization that's probably very needed and we've tried to help them as much as I can."

And the proposed marathon broadcast?

"Well, it's died a natural kind of death," she says.

Hughes said Hull was the sparkplug behind the planned show and everybody who knew anything about it knew it couldn't go on without him.

He said although he'd never heard any complaints about Hull's performance he could see that management might be displeased with him, "because he's not your format top 40 disc jockey."

He said if the station had wanted to stop the show, "we'd have cancelled the weekend, we wouldn't have terminated his employment."

Cartwright said he still likes the concept and would still like to see something done with it, but right now is a little short on staff.

806 LINDEN AVENUE
CHARACTER HOME
Located close to downtown, parks, sea and shopping. This spacious home is ideal for family living and entertaining with all the modern appointments combined with the warmth and tradition of the early 1900s. Panelled den, spacious entrance hall, living room, entertainment size dining room, modern kitchen, serving pantry, sun porch and bathroom on the main floor. Upstairs — three bedrooms all with walk-in closets, a private balcony for whatever turns you on, and a bathroom that wows! Downstairs — an in-law suite with private entrance for you know who. The small well cared for lot with separate garage won't make you a slave of the soil. All this in 3,500 sq. ft. including 5 appliances, 4 refuse cans and drapes on 26 windows. The price was $110,000 but we're getting hungry and the trim needs painting so try us at $105,000.
P.S. It also makes a good bachelor's pad. Call Jim or Jim at 388-6208 and 386-7311 days or 382-1129 evenings.

EXTRA LOT
This lovely home, built in 1943, has 2,000 sq. ft. of luxury living space on two floors. Located in the preferred Cadboro Bay area close to the sea and all amenities. The large seaview lot was conditionally approved for subdividing so as to create an extra lot in 1970. Although no action was taken at that time, we feel — based on the letter of tentative approval — that there is a possibility of subdividing. ML. 308-A CARDS OF THANKS

At some time or other the thought that we would suffer the loss of a loved one occurred to us, but we little realized the extent of sympathetic understanding that would exist. We are more grateful than mere words can express to all of you who did so much to help us through this time.
—Reg. Simnes and Family.

PETER JOHN de HAAN—I would like to express my appreciation and thanks to all the many of Peter's friends who honoured him and attended his final service. Those who knew Peter will know the loss I suffer, but may his spirit and courage during his lifetime live on forever, in our hearts.
—Peter's mother, Wilhelmina Harris (Mrs. L. R.) 202-240 Simcoe Street.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEAR'S CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

SMITH—In loving memory of our granddaughter and niece Lynnette Dawn who passed away March 21, 1970.
Your smiling face and cheerful ways
Are the memories we hold dear
Remembering all the happy days.
Will forever keep you near.

SMITH—In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister Lynette Dawn, who passed away March 21, 1970.
In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name,
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death just the same.

FEST — Herbert William (Frenchy) Fest, passed away Mar. 22, 1976, Shaughnessy Hosp. (You have one home Bill Bailey.) — Sadly missed by his loivng wife Kathy.

CMHC BUDGET $1.8 BILLION

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. will spend about $1.8 billion on housing and related projects in 1977, Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said last week in the federal agency's capital budget tabled in the Commons.

The budget is an increase of $200 million over 1976.

The corporation has set aside $107 million for its program of improving older housing. The program provides for loans and grants to improve 22,500 houses this year compared with 16,500 in 1976.

The Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) is to continue this year and the corporation has set aside $100.6 million for it.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING

ON AMENDMENTS TO THE ZONING BY-LAW AND TO THE UPLANDS REGULATIONS BY-LAW

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed By-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal Council on the matters contained therein, at a Public Hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Hall, Oak Bay, B.C., on Monday, March 28, 1977, commencing at 7:30 p.m.:

(a) By-law No. 3191 "Second Zoning By-law Amendment By-law, 1977"
Amends the "Zoning By-law, 1974," being By-law No. 3066, by prohibiting under "General Regulations" the occupancy of any lot or of the foreshore by dwelling units for sleeping or dwelling purposes that are designed to be mobile.

(b) By-law No. 3199 "Third Zoning By-law Amendment By-law, 1977"
Amends the "Zoning By-law, 1974," being By-law No. 3066, by amending the definitions for "Balcony," "Building area," and "Height," "Multiple dwelling," "Setback"; a general prohibiting clause regarding the uses within any Zone or Development Area; the height of a building in a Single Family Residence Zone; the Regulations for Church-and-Kindergarten Zones A and C; the limiting of one dwelling unit to any building other than a two-family dwelling, apartment building, or combination of apartment building and commercial building; and the exclusion of any building for use as a boarding house.

(c) By-law No. 3194 "Uplands Regulations By-law, 1977"
This proposed By-law provides for the following:
1. Repeals the "Uplands Regulations By-law, 1967" and three amending by-laws, which are now consolidated into one by-law;
2. Increases the minimum cost of a dwelling house which may be built in the Uplands from $20,000 to $40,000;
3. Revises subdivision regulations;
4. Revises regulations for appurtenant buildings;
5. Revises definition of "Height";
6. Revises regulations for Pergolas, rose arbors and screening for patios;
7. Includes regulations for parking of recreation vehicles, and parking regulations for the Yacht Club Zone;
8. Regulations for swimming pool fencing included;
9. Amends Penalty Clause in accordance with Summary Convictions Act.

Copies of the proposed By-laws may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, Oak Bay, B.C., between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., on any day in which the said Municipal Hall is open for business.

JEAN L. MACQUEEN
Municipal Clerk
